JAPAN IS TOLD POWERS PLAN DRASTIC ACTION

May Take Measures to Defend China.

TOKIO, Jan. 12 [Thursday.]—Extreme pessimism over Japan's future in the league of nations was expressed in responsible quarters today, following receipt of confidential reports from world capitals which indicate that Japanese negotiations with Great Britain and France in connection with the dispute with China are not progressing satisfactorily.

Some quarters do not hesitate to declare that this will necessitate Japan's withdrawal from the league, and sensational reports are being played up in this morning's papers. It is the consensus that developments in the committee of 10 of the league assembly, which meets again Monday, are taking a turn for the worse, from Japan's viewpoint, with the likelihood of article 15 of the league covenant being invoked.

Ready to Quit League.

Japan will exert every effort to prevent application of paragraph 4 of article 15. Failing in this, the Japanese delegate will leave the session.

(Paragraph 4 provides for intervention by the league in case one or more of the parties to a dispute do not abide by arbitration or a decision of the league council on the matter.)

Reports from the world capitals to the Japanese foreign office plainly indicate that Japanese diplomatic officials, in their conversations with representatives of the major powers, have been given to understand that the powers are inclined to regard application of article 15 as inevitable and are not inclined to lend support to Japan.

Japs March on Chinese City.

SHANGHAI, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Ten thousand Japanese soldiers are marching into the province of Jehol, Chinese press dispatches said today, en route to Lingyuan, about 90 miles north of Shanhaikwan.

The Japanese legation at Peiping announced that the Japanese army is in complete control of Chiumenkow, a pass through the Great Wall about 14 miles north of Shanhaikwan. The Chinese defenders of the pass, who resisted the Japanese attack all yesterday, have been put to flight, the legation declared.

Gen. Miyake, the Japanese commander, was quoted as having said his forces do not intend to proceed into China proper from Chiumenkow, but would keep the pass closed. This conflicted with the Chinese reports that the Japanese, including artillery and cavalry, were pushing ahead.

Report Invasion at Chinwangtao.

The Chinese dispatches also said a Japanese landing force has gone ashore at Chinwangtao, Chinese seaport about 10 miles southwest of Shanhaikwan. Patrols have been put out by this landing force, it was reported. A detachment of American troops is stationed at Chinwangtao, and the British owned Kailan mines are located there.

The National government at Nanking today reiterated that it will not accept the Japanese thesis that the capture of Shanhaikwan is a local incident. Instead, the Chinese policy will be that the occupation of that city is part of the whole Chinese-Japanese dispute which is awaiting settlement by the league of nations. Liu Tsung, first vice minister for foreign affairs, has been sent to Peiping to represent the government in the crisis.

Japan Scorns Protest.

TOKIO, Jan. 11.—(AP)—China protested to Japan today against the occupation of Shanhaikwan and in return was informed that the Tokio government "expressly reserves the right to make demands" in connection with any settlement of the conflict. The Japanese reply asserted that the Chinese garrison at Shanhaikwan was wholly responsible for the outbreak of hostilities there on the night of Jan. 1.

3,000 Chinese Flee Into Siberia.

MOSCOW, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The Tass [Russian] News agency tonight made public a dispatch from Khabarovsk saying that more than 3,000 additional Chinese troops have been driven into soviet Russia from Manchukuo by Japanese troops and have been interned in this country.

Three thousand Chinese troops entered soviet territory in the region of Tury-rog and 150 others in the region of Iman. The dispatch, which was dated Jan. 9, added that among those interned was the Chinese general, Li-du.

PUT $11,500,000 SCHOOL TRIM UP TO TRUSTEES

Total of Estimates Is $74,000,000.

Department heads of the public schools completed their job of trimming the 1933 budget estimates yesterday and laid the results of their work on the lap of the school board.

The trustees will start their part of the work tomorrow, with a probability that they will be compelled to make added trims of about $11,500,000, including salary cuts.

The school chiefs arrived at a technical balance of the budget by assuming that the resources of the board would total $73,971,000 in 1933. They arrived at this figure by including a "paper" surplus of $11,500,000. It was indicated last night that the citizens' committee on public expenditures would not approve the inclusion of this surplus. The committee's approval of the budget is considered necessary before tax warrants can be sold and regular pay days for teachers started.

Included in Estimate.

The moot $11,500,000 is included in the estimate of revenues in the report of H. H. Brackett, school auditor, as anticipated collections from years gone, of taxes already overdue.

It has been promised that the school board will hold down its budget so that $48,000,000 from general taxation in 1933 will cover its needs for current operation. This can be done with the total figure of $73,971,000 only by the inclusion of the $11,500,000 and the transfer of $1,315,000 for the teachers' pension fund to a bond and interest status rather than regarding it as current expense.

The revenue estimate for 1933 is as follows: From taxation for operation, $48,000,000; from the state and rents, $5,225,000; from taxation for bond and interest requirements, $9,225,000; from delinquent taxes, $11,500,000. Total $74,000,000. [The figures are approximate.]

Attitude of Myers.

President Lewis E. Myers of the school board has stated that he is opposed to the appropriation of any part of the estimated collections of back taxes. To make this paper asset real it would be necessary to collect 90 per cent of the back taxes due. The 1930 levy is only 58 per cent paid now.

The board of education now owes $21,900,000 in back salaries for 1932 and President Myers was notified yesterday that Senator J. Hamilton Lewis plans to go to the Reconstruction Finance corporation and ask for a loan of that amount.

No cash will be obtained this year from the 1933 levies, which will not be placed in collection until next year. In specifying limits on the tax levies the Sargent committee merely used them, it was explained yesterday, as a convenient measuring stick for 1933 appropriations, which must be met long before the tax money is available.

Explain Basis of Estimates.

The Sargent committee arrived at its estimates of suitable tax levies in this fashion: On one side of the ledger its fiscal experts set up appropriations based on the levies, plus whatever miscellaneous revenue the various taxing bodies may expect. On the other side they set up what they believed to be a fair estimate of the tax revenue to be collected during the year. This included collections of delinquent 1928, 1929, 1930 taxes, the same from which the school board expects to draw its $11,500,000 "surplus," and expected collections on the 1931 levy and the first installment of the 1932 levy.

It was the belief of the committee's fiscal advisers that if the large local governments confined their expenditures during 1933 to appropriations based on total tax levies of $120,000,000 [the school board's share is $48,000,000], plus miscellaneous revenue, that enough taxes would be collected from all sources to leave the various governments owing a little less at the end of the year than they do now.

One Exception to Rule.

Obviously, it was stated yesterday, calculations made upon this basis would not permit the school board to appropriate an additional $11,500,000 to be met out of delinquent taxes.

The school department heads, under the direction of Howard P. Savage, business manager, made some cuts in their budget estimates yesterday to balance their proposed appropriations with the estimated revenues, including the $11,500,000 "surplus." The cuts agreed upon yesterday included: Educational fund, $325,000; textbook fund, $87,864; business department, $20,000; playground fund, $69,191.

MAN WHO WAVED GUN IN CONGRESS WINS LENIENCY

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Marlin R. M. Kemmerer, 25 year old Allentown, Pa., store clerk, who last month sought to address the house of representatives at gun's point from the galleries, today was permitted to return to his home in custody of his family.

United States Attorney Leo A. Rover held the best interests of the man, who said his startling act during a busy house session was prompted by a desire to present to congress his views on remedying general conditions in the country, would be served through such disposition.

Representative Maas [Rep., Minn.], who persuaded Kemmerer to toss down to him his loaded and cocked .38 caliber revolver before attempting the speech, and Representative Lichtenwalner, Democrat, from the man's home town, agreed to Rover's conclusion.

Kemmerer, who has been under daily examination at Gallinger hospital since his arrest on Dec. 13, left for his home tonight in company of his brothers.

Dr. D. Percy Hickling, district alienist, reported Kemmerer was entirely responsible, legally, for his acts and recommended his parole into home influences.

Loeb, as Head Master, Opens Prison School

A correspondence school for convicts at Stateville and Joliet prisons was opened yesterday with 22 students. The applications of 64 other prisoners were taken under advisement pending investigation of their claims to the entrance requirement of an eighth grade education.

Richard Loeb, who is serving 99 years for the murder of Bobby Franks, is acting as registrar and director of the school. Loeb, one of the originators of the prison educational plan, will also teach classes in English composition, history and Spanish. Other members of the faculty have received considerable notoriety for the crimes that made them eligible for instructors.

Toddy Dillon on Faculty.

Edward [Toddy] Dillon, 26 years old, known as the society bandit, will teach classes in English literature; Joseph Pursifull, former Peoria attorney, school teacher and kidnaper, will teach Latin, and Mark Oettinger, Chicago forger, will have charge of the mathematics department.

Dillon, once a student at the University of Kansas, is serving one to 20 years for robbery. Pursifull is under sentence of five years for his part in the kidnaping of Dr. James W. Parker of Peoria.

Three of the original 22 students registered in Spanish, nine signed up for instruction in English composition, five chose the course in universal history, and five elected to study mathematics.

Prison officials yesterday expressed themselves in favor of the plan. They said that the correspondence school would help solve the problem of idleness.

Costs State Nothing.

The school will cost the state nothing, officials pointed out. Money for textbooks and supplies is taken from the prison recreation fund, and the convict students are required to buy their own supplies at an expense of approximately $10 a year.

The teachers in the school outline the lessons which the convict students study in their cells. The teachers then prepare lists of questions which are distributed to the prisoners on typewritten sheets by John T. Taylor, prison official. The convicts write out the answers and these are gathered up by Taylor and taken to the instructors. No prisoner is allowed to burden himself with more than three subjects at one time.

Rejected by Fraternity, Student Leaps to Death

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 11.—(AP)—An 18 year old student who had brooded, friends said, about his failure to be accepted into a fraternity jumped from a bridge to his death tonight. He was Robert C. Stouffer, a freshman art student at Carnegie Institute of Technology.

A FINE 'PULLER' TACKLES MORE THAN HE CAN LIFT

Abie Ginsburg, 42 years old, of the Drexel Arms hotel, is a puller by profession. A puller is a person who, without the usual legal processes, repossesses property after the buyers are delinquent with the installments. Mr. Ginsburg is admittedly a fine puller and has steady employment with several finance companies.

Complainants said a man representing himself as a bailiff of the Municipal court would appear, present a replevin writ signed by "Judge Ginsburg," and take away radios, sewing machines or whatever was unpaid for.

So Sergt. Ray Crane of the detective bureau, called Mr. Ginsburg and told him he was J. Q. Smothers, a big piano manufacturer from South Bend, and that he wanted about a truckload of pianos pulled.

"I am the greatest piano puller in the business," said Mr. Ginsburg.

The rendezvous was arranged and kept and the puller, his false bailiff's star and his Judge Ginsburg writs were seized. Mr. Ginsburg was crestfallen.

"What a sap," he said. "Here I agree to pull pianos and I should know that nobody could carry out a piano all by himself."

WHY IS HOOVER STILL IN OFFICE? BRITONS INQUIRE

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Jan. 11.—A flood of inquiries from English people puzzled to know why President Hoover is still in office is keeping the American embassy staff here busy during the present after Christmas lull.

"Letters come from schools, debating societies, and even from members of parliament," Ray Atherton, counselor at the embassy, told the British Luncheon club today. "They all want to know how it happens ex-Gov. Roosevelt will not become President until March 4, although he was elected in November. Some of them suggest there must be something unusual in the interregnum and ask whether it has ever happened before."

Another stream of inquiries, he said, comes from Americans who have been told they were heirs to nonexistent English estates. "The letters are so numerous we have had to prepare mimeographed forms to answer them," said Atherton.

French Aviator Plans Solo Tour of the World

PARIS, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Christian Moench, noted French aviator, is planning to start on Feb. 2 on a lone tour of the world by airplane and ship which will carry him to South America, the United States, Japan, and back to Paris. The trip, which will be made under the auspices of the ministry of air, will require six months.

Pinchot Flays Senator Who Insulted Wife

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Striding dramatically to the rostrum of the state senate today and expressing regret that he could not "properly horsewhip a senator," Gov. Pinchot demanded and received an apology for a verbal attack on his wife, Mrs. Cornelia Bryce Pinchot. The attack had been made in the chamber on Monday night by Senator George L. Reed of Dauphin county. The apology, in fact, was delivered later before the senate and not to the governor in person.

Legislative business was paralyzed and the senators sat as if stunned while the governor, who had been the picture of belligerency as he left his office, calmly read a prepared statement terming the attack "false," "insulting," and "entirely beyond the bounds of decency." The apology, addressed to "the senate," was offered by Mr. Reed in a brief statement after a recess had been declared.

Senator Asks Inquiry.

In the course of an address in which he assailed expenditures of the Pinchot administration, Senator Reed had made statements reflecting on Mrs. Pinchot's sobriety. Following his charge, the senator demanded an investigation. He charged that Mrs. Pinchot had used a state automobile in traveling from New York to Wilkesbarre and that the vehicle had broken down in Newark, N. J., and was repaired at the commonwealth's expense.

The remarks referring to Mrs. Pinchot were expunged from the records by Republican organization senators after followers of the governor had sought to have Reed's speech placed in the journal exactly as he had uttered it.

The first intimation that Gov. Pinchot would demand a retraction came just after the opening of today's session. Senator Clarence J. Buckman of Buck county then asked that permission to address the body be extended to the governor. Permission speedily was granted and Senators Buckman, Bennett, and Graff were appointed a committee to escort Mr. Pinchot from his office.

The governor stepped to the desk, wheeled about and faced the senators. A heavy silence descended as he took a few sheets of note paper from his pocket and began reading.

Pinchot Answers Critic.

"An attack has recently been made upon the floor of the chamber so false, so insulting, so inspired by malice, and so entirely beyond the bounds of decency that the honor of the senate demands action more direct and effective than the mere expunging of the lie from its records," he declared.

"Yesterday I was too angry to trust myself before you. But I can no longer postpone this demand for justice.

"This is not the first time that a like dastardly attack has been made by men high in the Republican organization. During my first year an organization senator committed a similar slander on this floor. At the beginning of this term I was warned in advance of the abominable whispering campaign which was being planned and which has, in fact, been carried on.

"I am here to say that I am entirely ready to meet my enemies at any time and on any issue, but I insist they shall cease this cowardly system of striking at me through a woman. It has gone too far.

"The charge, it is well known, is unqualifiedly false. Because it is false, I demand that you require

In the belief that Edwin O. Schildhauer, Austin High school bandmaster, may have been slain in his own home, Supervising Police Captain John Stege and several assistants took possession of the Schildhauer apartment at 3435 Fulton street last night and began a search for evidence to support the new theory.

They took this action after Coroner's Chemist Dr. Clarence Muehlberger earlier in the day had discovered that there were bloodstains on the stairs leading from the street to the Schildhauer apartment. During their search, which lasted several hours, Stege and his men examined all the furniture and inspected the contents of bureaus, drawers, closets and storerooms. They also searched the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. George Birkinshaw, parents of Schildhauer's widow, Frances, which is in the same building.

Muehlberger Aids Search.

When the detectives, who were accompanied by Dr. Muehlberger, left they took with them a pair of drapes, several pieces of carpet and some wall plaster, all of which, they said, bore stains similar to those found on the stairs. These materials will be analyzed today by Dr. Muehlberger to determine whether they are bloodstains.

Schildhauer was slain on the night of Dec. 10. His widow's story is that he was abducted from in front of their home. Several hours later the bandman's body was found near the intersection of 58th court and Pershing road, in Cicero, where it apparently had been tossed from an automobile.

Several discrepancies in Mrs. Schildhauer's story and the revelation of her romance with a former deputy sheriff had led Capt. Stege to doubt the abduction theory and seek some other explanation of the murder. The new turn in his investigation came yesterday afternoon as Capt. Stege was questioning witnesses in his office.

Recall Blood Spots.

He received a phone call, Stege later told reporters, from two police photographers, D. B. Lindstrom and A. T. Linderman, who informed the captain that on the night of the murder they had seen what appeared to be bloodstains on the stairs of the porch leading into the Schildhauer home. They thought nothing of this at the time, they said, because of the belief that Schildhauer had not been killed in his house but on the street after the kidnaping.

Later when police began to doubt Mrs. Schildhauer's story, said Stege, the photographers remembered the blood spots. Yesterday they returned to the Schildhauer home and, finding that the stains were still on the balustrade of the stairs, telephoned their discovery to the police.

Calls for Chemist.

Immediately Stege sent Dr. Muehlberger to the Schildhauer home, where the chemist cut away a section of the stairway and took it to his laboratory. In a few minutes he reported to Stege: "It's blood, but it will take a day or two to make certain that it is human blood." He said it was apparent that efforts had been made to wash the stains away.

Police guards were sent at once to the Schildhauer home, which is in a three flat building owned by the widow's parents, who occupy the third floor apartment. The bandmaster and his wife lived on the second floor.

"Guard the house," Stege ordered Sergts. Francis Donohue and Charles Reynolds of the coroner's office. "We are going to examine the inside of it with every aid science can give us."

Lawyer Promises Aid.

Stege then telephoned Attorney James M. Burke, counsel for Mrs. Schildhauer, and told him:

"I advise you to notify your clients to allow us to enter the home peacefully. If they don't we will use an ax on the front door. No one is going to interfere with us. Any one that tries it will land in a cell. We have been lied to enough in this case and have been hampered too much by lawyers. Nothing is going to stop us."

Attorney Burke replied that he would give every assistance to the police. He gave them permission to enter the home and to break down any doors that might be locked. Stege later said it was not Burke who had hampered the investigation, but lawyers who had preceded him in the case. Burke also sent his partner, George Crane, and Dr. H. E. Denman to be present while the house was searched.

Doubt Widow's Story.

For several days Stege said he had been receiving reports that contradicted the statement of Mrs. Schildhauer that she and her husband Edwin returned home from a dinner at a hotel on the evening of Dec. 10, and that after practicing on his musical instruments for a half hour he left the house at 8:20 o'clock to go to a stag party. According to her story he was waylaid as he was walking east on Fulton street, a hundred feet from his home, and while she was watching out the window. She said she ran screaming after the car in which he was spirited away.

Yesterday Detectives Willis Brennan and Michael Blake located neighbors who said they were on Fulton street in that block at about 8:20 p. m. on Dec. 10, but saw no abduction and heard no screaming. Dr. Miner Richards, 3415 Fulton street, a dentist said he was shoveling snow from his front sidewalk at about that time and later went inside and sat at the front window where he could have seen the abduction described by Mrs. Schildhauer. He said he saw nothing unusual.

Two Autos in Garage.

Other neighbors said the Schildhauer and Birkinshaw family always used the rear door when leaving to take a street car or the elevated line on Lake street. There were two automobiles kept in a rear garage and an employé and boarder in the Birkinshaw home, Paul Palmer, usually acted as chauffeur for both families. There has been no explanation to date, Stege said, as to why Schildhauer did not take one of the automobiles himself or have Palmer drive him to Mirror hall, at Western avenue and Division street, where the stag party was to take place.

More light was thrown yesterday on the alleged romances of Mrs. Schildhauer by Joseph F. Angelski, 1653 West Erie street, a law clerk in the office of a disbarred attorney, Paul Walton, often mentioned as a sweetheart of the widow. Angelski told of her frequent calls on Walton and of his knowledge that they frequently visited the New Albany hotel, at Rush street and Grand avenue. Walton boasted to him of his relations with Mrs. Schildhauer.

Gives Husband's Bonds Away.

Walton was being ruined financially by his attentions to Mrs. Schildhauer, the witness declared, and when he needed money Mrs. Schildhauer gave him two $500 real estate bonds without the knowledge of her husband. These bonds, according to Angelski, have never been returned. Mrs. Schildhauer asked him, Angelski told the police, if in his opinion Mrs. Walton really loved her husband, and appeared disappointed when told she did.

Walton has disappeared, being a fugitive on an embezzlement charge. Capt. Stege learned that after Walton's flight his place in Mrs. Schildhauer's affections was taken by Carl Bradberry, who was a deputy sheriff until last Dec. 1.

Yesterday Mrs. Schildhauer was taken to the federal building for questioning by Melvin Purvis, chief of the United States bureau of investigations, regarding a trip to Memphis, Tenn., with Bradberry. Mr. Purvis would not say whether there would be prosecution under the Mann act, but said he would make a complete report to United States District Attorney Dwight F. Green.

Visits Bandman's Father.

Lieut. Thomas Duffy went to New Holstein, Wis., to interview Herman Schildhauer, father of the slain bandmaster. He reported that he had not obtained information of any consequence. It was his purpose, he said, to show the father the attempts of Mrs. Schildhauer to blacken her husband's character as an excuse for her own misconduct, and then to see what the father's reactions would be. The father, however, knew nothing of the family troubles of his son, nor that the son, whose life was insured [under double indemnity for death by accident or violence] for a total of $38,000, had contemplated a divorce.

The suggestion given Capt. Stege on Tuesday that two neighborhood police characters had been hired to murder Schildhauer proved groundless, Stege said. The two men were questioned and cleared themselves.

Internal Revenue Agent Arrested on Bribery Charge

Boston, Mass., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Arthur J. Noble of Wollaston, fifty years old, an internal revenue agent for the last fourteen years, was arrested today charged with accepting a $700 bribe. He was allegedly trapped by two secret operatives after he was said to have accepted the money from a Boston firm of clothiers.

SEPARATION LAW HELD WEAPON OF ALIMONY RACKET

Abuses by Women and Courts Revealed.

Condemnation of the Illinois separate maintenance law was voiced yesterday by legal authorities who characterized the act as the professional alimony seeker's greatest weapon.

The Illinois law, passed in 1877, provides that married women who, without their fault, live separate from their husbands, may obtain a decree for "reasonable support and maintenance." In determining the amount to be allowed, the court is ordered to consider the manner of living to which the wife has become accustomed in her husband's home.

To obtain a decree of separate maintenance the law specifies that the wife must prove that she has good cause for living apart from her husband and that the separation was caused through no fault of her own.

Judge Calls Law "Whip."

However, so liberal has been the interpretation of this law that a husband's use of profanity to his wife on a single occasion has been ruled sufficient cause for her to quit him and obtain a separate maintenance decree. Under such a decree, of course, the couple are still legally wed, and neither can remarry.

Suits for separate maintenance are almost never filed against husbands of moderate means. It is the man of comparative wealth who is made the target.

"The suit for separate maintenance is the whip which the alimony racketeer holds over her husband's head," said Superior Judge Joseph Sabath, dean of the divorce courts. "Almost always, after a big allowance or a large settlement has been extorted from the husband, the suit is amended to divorce. The husband agrees to such a settlement in fear that he may be paying alimony all his life while deprived of the right to seek another wife and family."

Makes Marriage Profitable.

Some examples of the flagrant uses to which the separate maintenance law has been put were exhumed from court records. In one instance a woman collected $250 a month for twelve years from her husband under a separate maintenance decree. She then found a richer suitor and divorced the first husband. She lived with her second husband only one year, sued him for separate maintenance, and collected $500 a month from him for ten years, until his death.

Another case, completed about a year ago, was that of Mrs. Mabel Skidmore against Fred Skidmore. Mrs. Skidmore filed a suit for separate maintenance in the Circuit court, collected $5,750 on her claim of a share in her husband's business, and $50 a month alimony for nearly three years until the case came to trial. Her attorney then nonsuited the case and went into the Superior court where another separate maintenance suit was filed, and on this suit Mrs. Skidmore collected $50 a month for fifteen months longer, until the trial. At that time, her husband was granted the divorce by Judge Sabath on a cross-bill. The wife in this case had collected $7,200 before the final decree showed the husband's claim for divorce to be upheld.

Proposed Time Limit.

Members of the law firm of Socrates & Davis pointed out that the Illinois law on separate maintenance might be amended to conform to the Kentucky statutes, and thus eliminate some of the abuses which have grown up.

"In Kentucky, after a five year period of separation under a separate maintenance decree or for any other reason, the husband has the right to go into court and obtain a decree of divorce," explained Attorney Nicholas A. Socrates. "The law thus recognizes that a husband should not be deprived of the right to have a family throughout his life, while paying for the support of a wife living apart from him.

"The five year period is perhaps too long. A man and wife who live separately for as long as two years rarely resume marital relations."

Another prominent lawyer, who asked that his name be withheld, declared that temporary alimony granted during the pendency of a divorce suit and without an investigation into the merits of the case, should be abolished.

"Sixty to seventy decisions on petitions for temporary alimony must be made by each divorce judge in the period between 10 o'clock and noon each morning," he declared. "The amounts of money set cannot possibly be equitable in this terrifically fast administration of alleged justice, nor would any court have time to read the petitions, let alone extend any help, advice or kindness to the two people before him who are vitally interested.

One Case in Court 14 Years.

"In these preliminary hearings it is common practice to claim tremendous wealth for a man, twenty to thirty times his actual income, and alimony and attorneys' fees set on this basis make even the preliminary hearings so expensive that it is comparatively easy for the wife's attorneys to force an unfair settlement out of court. When a man refuses to be shaken down, these hearings are prolonged indefinitely, one case recently decided having been on the divorce calendar for fourteen years."

JUDGE HAYES ASKS ALIMONY REDUCTION AS EX-WIFE SUES

On the eve of his appearance in court to answer a petition charging him with contempt of court for failure to pay alimony, Municipal Judge Howard Hayes yesterday filed a bill in the Circuit court seeking to set aside the alimony provision of the divorce decree granted his first wife, Mrs. Grace Houston, 1400 Lake Shore drive. The judge's bill asks that alimony of $225 a month which he was directed to pay her when the decree was signed in 1918 be reduced to $135 a month.

Mrs. Houston will appear today before Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan to prosecute her contempt charge against her former husband. She charges that he has fallen $1,350 in arrears in his alimony payments.

Judge Hayes' bill charges that his former wife now is living in luxury, and has an "automobile, many social club memberships, and does expensive traveling." Since their divorce, the bill charges, he has paid her $34,000, and during the last three years his own salary has been cut from $9,000 a year to $7,500. The bill says that the judge's present wife and two daughters are his to support. It also declares that Mrs. Houston, who was given her first husband's name in the divorce decree, has been receiving $225 a month from her first husband [a Mr. Houston] and sometimes "considerably more." Mrs. Houston has two sons by her first marriage.

15 U. S. AIR LINERS TO BE EQUIPPED WITH WING FLAPS

Wing flaps are to be used on passenger air liners for the first time in the United States. Fifteen Northrup Delta low wing all metal monoplanes [Wright 700 h. p. motors], equipped with wing flaps to increase their speed range, are to be placed in operation on Transcontinental and Western Air Lines on March 1, it was announced yesterday. The new transports will carry eight passengers, mail and express.

The Northrup planes, because of their flap equipment, will be able to cruise at about 187 miles an hour, land at 48 miles an hour and stay in the air for 1,000 miles, Richard W. Robbins, president of the line, announced. The flaps are expected to reduce the gliding angle of the planes from a ratio of about 15 to 1 to about 5 to 1, permitting safe landings in small emergency fields.

The planes' speed will enable the air line to maintain a schedule of 15 hours between Los Angeles and New York, east bound, and 17 hours, west bound, Mr. Robbins said. Transcontinental and Western Air Lines operate from coast to coast via St. Louis, and from New York to Chicago.

18 Reported Dead as Snow Buries Rumanian Villages

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Jan. 11.—Eighteen persons are reported to have frozen to death in snowstorms which have buried many Rumanian cities and villages. At Braila the snow is nine feet deep. Many cities on the Danubian plain in Moldavia and in Bessarabia are completely isolated, with the snow 30 feet deep in some places.

DEPORTATION OF VOLPE UPHELD BY APPEALS COURT

Judges Reverse Own Ruling for Hoodlum.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals yesterday upheld a warrant of the department of labor for the deportation to Italy of Anthony [Mops] Volpe, public enemy and former Capone lieutenant. The court reversed its previous decision in favor of Volpe and sustained an order of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson.

The opinion was written by Judge Evan A. Evans, who was joined by Judge Will M. Sparks. Presiding Judge Samuel Alschuler filed a dissenting opinion. Volpe is now at liberty on bond of $25,000. The bond will continue during an appeal to the United States Supreme court.

Based on Trip to Cuba.

The deportation warrant was based on a three day trip to Cuba which Volpe made in 1929. He reëntered the country via Key West, and told an inspector he was a naturalized citizen. He had previously been convicted on a counterfeiting charge.

Judge Wilkerson sustained the warrant. In an appeal last June the higher court held Volpe was guilty of nothing worse than telling a falsehood about his citizenship at the time of reëntry, and the 30 day sentence for counterfeiting war saving stamps was not ground for deportation. In October Assistant United States Attorney Thomas Dodd Healy obtained leave to reopen the case.

In his argument at the rehearing Prosecutor Healy contended against the reëntry, and that Volpe should be barred because of his previous record. Attorneys for Volpe urged that the action would be too drastic in view of the fact Volpe had lived here 25 years, had an American wife and two children.

In his opinion Judge Evans said: "If he (Volpe) saw fit to flout the laws of the country which gave him shelter to engage in counterfeiting its money or war savings stamps, then his exclusion was the result of his own conduct."

ARREST HUNT, ENEMY 33

Sam Hunt, No. 33 on the list of principal public enemies compiled by Chief of Detectives Schoemaker, was arrested yesterday with Ralph Pierce in a garage at 63 west 14th street by Sergt. James Fitzgerald and his detective bureau squad. Hunt is the first of the 39 hoodlums on the list to be arrested.

Police found two revolvers in a tow truck in the garage near which the two men were seized. The owner of the garage, Oscar Kuehne, said the guns were not his. Police were satisfied they had been flung into the truck by Hunt and Pierce, said to be a gunman, when they saw they were to be arrested. Hunt and Pierce were taken to the detective bureau.

Murray Humphries and William (Three Fingered Jack) White, public enemies Nos. 1 and 2, respectively, on the Schoemaker list, gained a continuance of the gun toting charges against them before Judge Harold P. O'Connell in the jury court. Their cases were set for Jan. 25. Charles Fischetti, cousin of Al Capone, who was arrested with them, was found guilty by a jury last week and sentenced to one year in the Bridewell and fined $300.

Leo Ablin, 25 years old, brother of David (Cock-Eyed Mulligan) Ablin, night life promoter, was discharged by Municipal Judge Leon Edelman on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was arrested when police found his address in the pocket of a man shot in an attempted holdup.

Bert Delaney, 54 years old, Capone gangster, who was arrested in the investigation of the slaying of Ted Newberry, was discharged by Municipal Judge Thomas M. Padden. He was arraigned on a charge of disorderly conduct.

DIES OF HEART ATTACK.

Vaclav Kolar, 68 years old, a retired tailor, fell dead of a heart attack yesterday in front of 2124 South Crawford avenue.

Berwyn Barber, 80 Years Old, Recalls Tooth Pulling Days

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

Daniel Auth, who will be 80 years old today, laid aside his shears between customers yesterday at his shop at 1422 South Oak Park avenue, Berwyn, and recalled the good old days when barbers not only barbered but extracted teeth, made hair switches for ladies, and performed for customers with blackened eyes, the duties of the physician.

Dan is pretty spry for 80 years. His mustache is white, but not his hair. His ruddy face shows the lines of a man who laughs a great deal. When trade isn't so very good he reads works of philosophy and religion. He never had much schooling, because he began barbering at the age of 12 and has kept it up for 68 years. But Dan would say that doesn't matter when one can read.

Selects His Life Work.

Dan's father was a weaver and he made ten cents on every yard, weaving in the family home in Vemend, Hungary, where Dan and his 17 brothers and sisters were born. Dan decided at an early age he didn't want to be a weaver.

"I was five or six years old when I began to take notice of the barber that used to come to the house to shave my father," Dan recalled. "The old man saw me and turned to my father and said: 'I guess the boy will be a barber himself some day.'

"I got my start cutting gypsies' hair free of charge when I was 12. I was an apprentice for four years and then I went to Vienna, where I finally opened up my own shop.

"In those days a barber had to be a kind of a doctor. We 'leeched' black eyes and pulled teeth with a funny sort of instrument that I expect has gone clear out of style. We would draw blood, too, for high blood pressure and rheumatism.

"We made wigs for the young girls to doll themselves up and we would dress up their hair, too, in little tight curls."

Chuckling to himself, Dan recalled his first experience when he was a small boy with the mysterious matches that would light a fire.

Tests Mysterious Matches.

"There were no matches in our home in those days and mother would go out to gather the "sponges" that grew on the oak trees and light them with flint. The first matches sold for a copper cent and a half each. I was sent to the store to buy a box. I was so curious that I opened it and struck a match and blew it out, then another, putting them back in the box. Then I ran home with the box. Father tried one. 'They're no good,' he cried. 'Take them back.' I said, 'O, yes, father, they are good. I tried two of them.'"

Dan has been in this country forty years and in the shop that he owns for twenty years. He has seven children, nine grandchildren, and seven great-grandchildren. On Sundays he takes his two small grandsons, Charles and Daniel Auth, who live at 1314 South Clarence avenue, on long hikes to neighboring towns just for the pleasure of walking.

Today the family will gather in the apartment at the rear of his shop, where he lives with a granddaughter, Mrs. Helen Porter, for a birthday celebration.

POLICE SHOOT 3 HOODLUMS IN W. SIDE CHASE

Three alleged hoodlums were shot by policemen last night during an automobile chase in the Des Plaines street police district.

The three were seized and taken to the Bridewell hospital. They are Thomas Walcott, 16 years old, 718 South Claremont avenue, shot in the head; John De Leo, 23, of 2047 De Kalb street, and Barney Roscino, 22, of 12 South Whipple street. The wounds of De Leo and Roscino were not serious.

A few minutes before the shooting the youths were seen in an unlighted automobile at Fulton and May streets by Policemen Edward Hilgard and Richard Farrell, who were in a squad car. They sped away as the policemen approached. The latter fired several shots and at Washington boulevard and Curtis street forced the fugitive car to the curb. Walcott lay inside, wounded. His companions tried to run away on foot and were shot. In the car was a loaded gun.

HUNT HOODLUMS AFTER SEIZURE OF GUNS IN GARAGE

Police last night were searching for the hoodlums who stored seven loaded shotguns in a two car private garage in the rear of 735 South Loomis street. The hoodlums are probably members of the "42" gang of window smashers, Lieut. Phil Parodi said. Lieut. Parodi is in charge of the stolen automobile detail.

Two days ago Lieut. Parodi sent a squad to the garage. Inside they found two stolen cars and the guns. All the weapons had been sawed off. The stolen cars belong to Fred Pellar, 5564 Jackson boulevard, and J. W. Evory, 4056 North Parkside avenue. The policemen also found a medical kit for emergency use.

FINGOLD MURDER ON MICHIGAN AV. BAFFLES POLICE

Story of Threats Told by New Witness.

The puzzlement of the police deepened last night as they sought a clew to the strange murder of Joseph Fingold, 49 years old, proprietor of Sellet Meyers, Inc., lingerie and linen shop in the Medinah Athletic club, 503 North Michigan avenue. Fingold was found shot to death in his shop on Tuesday night.

At an inquest held yesterday at 1 p. m. in a chapel at 3654 Roosevelt road, his widow, Mrs. Sellet Meyers Fingold, in whose name the shop was incorporated, made an indignant protest at the suspicion voiced by Police Captain Charles McGurn against her youngest son, Milton, 25 years old, a former University of Chicago student. The son, who had been held for questioning, was freed after he testified at the inquest.

Witness Tells Story.

Following the inquest the police found a witness whose story lent some plausibility to the Fingold family's theory that, despite the presence of a doorman, two Lincoln park policemen and scores of guests about the club, Fingold might have been killed by robbers in the few minutes his son was sipping a soda in an adjacent drug store.

The witness, whose name the police withheld, said he was walking north in Michigan avenue at 2 p. m. Tuesday, seven and a half hours before Milton found his father dead at 9:30 p. m., when he marked two shabbily dressed men coming up the stairs from the lower level of the boulevard at Kinzie street. They looked up and down the street, he said, and made straight for the lingerie shop.

Walk Into Dress Shop.

"I was first attracted by their furtive manner," the witness recalled. "I was surprised when I saw the pair, who looked like bums, walk into the dress shop. I paused at the window and saw the middle aged man, whom I took for the proprietor, get up from his desk in surprise. The door was just closing behind them and I heard the callers begin talking to him in what sounded like angry tones."

The witness said he gave the incident no further thought until yesterday morning, when at breakfast his wife remarked on the story of the murder as carried in THE TRIBUNE. Immediately he connected the killing with the incident he had witnessed the previous afternoon, the witness said.

Capt. McGurn, who had hitherto considered a robbery theory untenable, admitted that in view of the new witness' story it was not impossible that a pair of robbers might have killed Fingold in the darkness of the shop after inspecting or "casing" the place in broad daylight.

Widow Near Collapse.

At the inquest the widow, dressed in a black caracul coat and black toque, seemed near collapse, too weak to speak above a whisper under questioning of Deputy Coroner J. A. Schewel. Her son, in contrast, answered the questions suggested by the police officers in a clear, deliberate voice.

The widow explained the details of the business, saying that she, her husband, Milton, and an older son, Benjamin, shared the work and profits of the business. Asked how Milton and the father happend to be alone in the shop at the murder hour, she said that after all four had dined together at the nearby Alexandria hotel Benjamin had driven her to a loop hairdresser's.

With five cameras focused on the widow's chair, behind which spectators jostled for a better view, Deputy Schewel plunged into the subject of the police suspicions against her son.

"Was there ever any quarreling between your husband and your son—did Milton ever own a pistol?" he began.

Ald. Arvey Aids Widow.

The widow buried her face in a handkerchief. She was slumping from her chair when Ald. Jacob Arvey, a distant relative, there to represent the Fingold family, pressed a water tumbler to her lips. Deputy Schewel repeated his question.

"No, no," she wailed. "There was never anything of that kind. We were all one family together—father, mother, and boys. He and Milton may have had little differences, but quarreling—never. He was jolly and good humored at the dinner table, just the same as all the time."

Milton, who is married and lives at 5749 North Spaulding avenue, was brought in by the police, who have held him in custody since the murder was discovered. Instructed as to his constitutional rights, Milton said he desired to testify.

Q.—How was it that, in leaving the shop to get a soda around 9 p. m., you neglected to lock the door after you, since your father was in the workroom upstairs? A.—I had the key in my pocket, but forgot I had it. I told dad I was going out and assumed he would come downstairs.

Asks About Sodas.

Q.—And when you got outside you asked the doorman where you could get a soda. Didn't you know after being in the neighborhood so many months where you could buy a soda? A.—That's not what I asked him. I asked if they served good sodas in the club drug store, and he said he thought they'd fix it any way I liked.

Q.—Then when you got in the drug store you found your watch had stopped and you asked the counterman what time it was. That stopping of your watch was a peculiar coincidence, wasn't it? A.—No, sir, if you examine the watch, you'll find the hands stick.

The doorman, Harry E. Chambers, 4831 North Lincoln street, corroborated the youth's story. On cross-examination Ald. Arvey drew from him a statement that Milton, after discovering the body, rushed outside saying "something terrible has happened," and asked him to get a physician and a policeman.

A continuance of the inquest being asked by Capt. McGurn, Ald. Arvey said he would consent only on condition that the police cease holding Milton as a prisoner and treat him as a witness who desired to give every possible aid in solving the murder. This the police agreed to do and the inquest was continued to Jan. 25.

Maurice Chevalier's Wife Sues

'Maurice Sent Me Away,' Says Mme. Chevalier in Divorce Bill

PARIS, Jan. 11.—(AP)—A hearing today in the double divorce action of Yvonne Valle Chevalier and Maurice Chevalier, screen actor, brought forth a declaration that when Mme. Chevalier went to Hollywood to see her husband he refused to see her and told her to return to France.

This statement was made by counsel for the wife. Chevalier's attorney, Maitre Bizos, replied that his client was a misunderstood husband, the victim of public scenes resulting from the jealousy of his wife.

Hearing Only Five Minutes.

Neither Chevalier nor his wife was present. Counsel required only five minutes for their arguments.

Inasmuch as both parties are asking a divorce, the hearing is of a perfunctory nature, the lawyers presenting brief arguments in an effort to determine who will get the divorce. The court is expected to return its decision in eight days.

Best of Friends, Maurice Says.

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Charges made in the Paris, France, divorce courts by his wife, Yvonne Valle, that he put her out of their home in Hollywood went unanswered here today by Maurice Chevalier.

"I could swear in front of God that I have been an honest man with Yvonne and that it is only incompatibility that made us make the mutual decision to separate," he said.

"In spite of everything, we are the best of friends. Everything has been settled to our entire satisfaction."

EX-MRS. BRUNKER SCORES IN FIGHT OVER CHILDREN

Dodges Injunction; Gets Own Writ Served.

Yesterday's round in the Brunkers' fight for the custody of their children went to the mother. Mrs. Frederick R. Ruppel, former wife of Albert R. Brunker, wealthy reformer and commentator on crime, obtained service on a writ of habeas corpus directing their father to produce the two children in Superior Judge Charles A. Williams' court today.

An injunction obtained by Brunker from Circuit Judge Ralph J. Dady of Lake county on Tuesday restraining Mrs. Ruppel and others from taking steps to get possession of the children was in effect just a scrap of paper, for Mrs. Ruppel went into seclusion in Chicago, carrying on the fight for her offspring in official ignorance of Judge Dady's injunction.

Pleads Children Are Ill.

In spite of the writ of habeas corpus Brunker said last night that he would not produce the children in court. He said he would make an appearance, but that the children were too ill, that they were confined to bed under a doctor's care with temperatures of more than 100.

This conflicted with a statement of Mrs. Sidney Strotz, a friend of Mrs. Ruppel, who accompanied her on a visit to the Brunker home Monday night. She said the children were overwhelmed with joy upon seeing their mother, and that neither of them appeared to be ill.

Ordered to Share Custody.

Mrs. Ruppel, the former Margaret Gaylord, will seek custody of the children—Barbara, 6 years old, and Robert, 4—at the court hearing today on the contention that Brunker violated the provisions of their Reno divorce when he failed to deliver them up on Jan. 1. Under the terms of the decree each was to have custody during alternate six month periods.

The summons for Brunker to bring the children into court was served in his police guarded home at 190 North Ahwanee road, Lake Forest, in a manner that astonished the reformer. All Tuesday afternoon he had ridden around with Deputy Sheriff John Froelich, searching for Mrs. Ruppel to serve notice of the injunction upon her. They parted on friendly terms, and when Deputy Froelich appeared at the Brunker home yesterday he was welcomed.

"Have you been able to get service on her yet?" asked the reformer.

Brings Brunker Surprise.

"No, but here is something for you," said Deputy Froelich. He apologized to Mr. Brunker, but explained that when it comes to serving processes intrusted to him he is no respecter of persons.

A policeman detailed by Chief Frank Tiffany of Lake Forest patrolled the Brunker grounds throughout the day while the two children were said to be playing house within. No other guard was stationed outside. Brunker having put away his gun after a night of patrol duty, but men of a suspecting frame of mind stopped reporters and other callers at the door. They were said to be private detectives.

Service Today Too Late.

Brunker will be able to obtain service on the injunction when his former wife appears in court today, but that will be too late to stop her legal action, for it is already under way. Judge Dady, who granted the injunction on the strength of allegations in a petition that was immediately withdrawn from the records, said Mrs. Ruppel and her lawyers could come in at any time and answer the charges.

He asserted, however, that he would not order the replacement of the petition, which accused Mrs. Ruppel of conduct unbecoming a mother of two children, unless requested to do so by her attorneys.

THREE CONFESS $4,300 BANK ROBBERY.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Three youths, who gave their names as James Hay, 20, and Waide Hay, 21, brothers, of Iron Bridge, Pa., and Frank Detwiler, 25, of Pennsville, Pa., were arrested today as holdup suspects and confessed, police said, they robbed the Pleasant Unity, Pa., National bank of $4,300 on Dec. 10.

INCOME TAX LAW AND DEMANDS ON YOU EXPLAINED

Beginning today THE TRIBUNE will publish a series of ten short and concise articles pertaining to income taxes.

Since the filing of the 1931 returns last March congress has enacted a new income tax law known as the revenue act of 1932.

Income tax returns for 1932 to be filed this next March will be filed under the terms of the new law.

The return forms for 1932 have recently been mailed to all taxpayers by the collector of internal revenue, but the treasury department regulations under the 1932 act are not yet available to taxpayers.

A series of articles citing procedure and changes in the law have been prepared for THE TRIBUNE by Willis D. Nance of the Chicago bar, who has specialized in the law of taxation for a considerable number of years.

BY WILLIS NANCE.

ARTICLE I.

[Persons Required to File Returns.]

Under the revenue act of 1932 an income tax return must be filed by every citizen of the United States, whether residing at home or abroad, and by every person residing in the United States, even though not a citizen, whose gross income for the taxable year 1932 amounted to $5,000 or more, or whose net income amounted to:

1. $1,000 if the taxpayer is single, or if married and not living with husband or wife.
2. $2,500 if the taxpayer is married and living with husband or wife.
3. More than the personal exemption if the status of the taxpayer as regards his or her personal exemption changed during 1932.

The above requirements are different from the provisions of the revenue act of 1928, which governed the filing of income tax returns for the years 1928 to 1931 inclusive, as under that act a single taxpayer whose gross income did not amount to $5,000 or more, or whose net income was not $1,500 or more, and a taxpayer who was married and living with husband or wife, whose gross income did not amount to $5,000, or whose net income did not amount to $3,500, were not required to file returns.

Therefore many persons who have not been required to file returns for the last few years will be required to file a return for 1932.

Any person who has a gross income of $5,000 or more, even though he may be entitled to deductions and losses which bring his net income below his personal exemption, is required to file a return, although he will not be required to pay a tax.

If a husband and wife living together have an aggregate net income of $2,500 or more, or an aggregate gross income of $5,000 or more, they may elect to file separate returns or to include the income of both in a single joint return.

Every person making payments of salaries, wages, interest, rents, commissions, or other fixed or determinable income of $1,000 or more during the calendar year to a single person, a partnership, or a fiduciary, or $2,500 or more to a married person, is required to make a so-called information return, on forms 1096 and 1099, showing the amount of such payments and the name and address of each recipient. It is the duty of the person making any such payment to secure the forms from the collector's office, properly fill them out, and forward them to the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, Sorting Section, Washington, D. C., in time to be received not later than Feb. 15, 1933.

Bakery Accuses Union of Vandalism in Suit

Officials of Paul's Bakery, 4157 West Grand avenue, yesterday accused members of the Bakery and Confectioners' union of throwing acid into bread dough and breaking windows of the bakery. The charges were contained in an injunction suit against the union, filed in Circut court. A strike of the Paul's bakery employés was called last July.

DEATH, HAVOC IN WAKE OF STORM AT LOS ANGELES

Entire City Under Layer of Tons of Sand.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—A storm of gale proportions lashed this section of California all night and most of the day. At least two were dead and 11 sailors from United States navy vessels in San Pedro harbor were missing.

On the coast the gale tore boats from their moorings and scattered them upon the beach. Inland it became a blinding dust storm, doing havoc to buildings and fruit orchards and covering Los Angeles and its suburbs with a layer of dust that in places was inches deep.

At times the wind velocity reached 60 miles an hour. One town east of Los Angeles reported 80 miles an hour.

Sailors Swept to Sea.

An officer aboard the cruiser Raleigh was swept from a gangway and drowned. He was Lieutenant Commander Carl Hupp. A houseboater in the harbor met a like fate. Six men from the cruiser Pensacola, two from the Chicago, and three from the aircraft carrier Saratoga, who had put off from their ships to round up small boats which had been torn from their moorings, were swept away and it is feared that they, too, have been drowned.

Damage was greatest in the oil fields and in the citrus belt. Loss to orchardists was estimated at more than a million dollars. The wind blew over 279 oil derricks. A high tension wire fell across an oil storage tank at Long Beach and an explosion which followed resulted in the destruction of two tanks and their contents by fire. Total damage in the field was placed at more than a million and a half dollars.

The storm put hundreds of telephones out of commission in Long Beach, Ontario, Pomona, Chino, Covina, and other cities. Fallen telephone poles blocked railway tracks in some places.

Yachts Piled Onto Beach.

Ten yachts were blown from their anchorage at San Pedro, where a drifting freight barge wrecked Cabrillo pleasure pier. Two excursion boats went ashore, and the four masted schooner Philippines was saved from wrecking by a navy mine sweeper. The Marin, $10,000 racing cruiser pounded to pieces; the luxurious yacht Talayaha, owned by Lazard Lippmann, sportsman, and the $12,500 admiral's barge of the U. S. battleship West Virginia were blown ashore.

The sand which was whirled into Los Angeles from the Imperial valley, 150 miles away, at times cut visibility so that automobile drivers could not see the road. The entire city was covered with the fine but sharp edged sand, which drifted before the wind like snow.

Assistant City Engineer Ralph Stewart estimated that 1,635,000 tons of dust were deposited within the limits of Los Angeles and that 14,000,000 tons of sand were blown into the county. The sand obscured the moon and clouds by night, and threw a heavy pall of dirty brown over the city and suburbs all day. It was the worst storm of its kind in the city's records.

CHILLY IN CHICAGO

Temperatures near the January average swept into Chicago on a brisk northwest wind yesterday, replacing the springtime weather that had prevailed on Tuesday. At midnight Tuesday the mercury stood at 46, but there was a swift decline that made the reading 19 degrees above zero at 9 a. m. Through the afternoon the mercury clung near the 20 mark.

The official forecaster, W. P. Day, said the minimum early today probably would be between 8 and 14 degrees above zero. Tomorrow will be warmer, with a possibility of rain or snow.

Weather reports from various sections of the country showed wide variations. Near Kennedy, in northwest Minnesota, two small girls, Jennie and Mildred Skjordal, were frozen to death in subzero temperatures while trying to make their way home after a horse, which was pulling their sleigh, ran away.

MOSCOW, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The Tass (Russian) news agency's correspondent at Teheran, Persia, reported today that two Persian warships had been moved from Bushire to Mohammera, a port on the River Karun not far from the site of the Anglo-Persian Oil company concession.

SCHOOL GIRL OF 14 KILLED IN STREET BY STRAY BULLET

Rose Esposito, 14 years old, 2214 West Van Buren street, was killed yesterday afternoon when she was struck by a stray bullet in front of 1104 South Damen avenue.

With the girl, who was a pupil at the Manley Junior High school, was a schoolmate, Frances Napolitano, 17 years old, 732 South Marshfield avenue. Frances told the police that she did not hear a shot and did not know what had happened when Rose fell on the sidewalk.

For several hours the shooting remained a mystery. Last night Detective Frank Dubec of the Marquette station arrested Samuel Casario, 14 years old, of 1107 South Winchester avenue, for the killing. Policeman Dubec said that the boy and several other companions were shooting at a target in the rear of 1103 South Damen avenue and that a bullet fired by Samuel struck the girl. The weapon used was a .22 caliber rifle owned by the boy. He was held at the Juvenile home.

TAX ATTORNEYS TAKE FEE FIGHT BEFORE COURT

The contest between Attorneys Edward M. Winston and Ralph O. Butz for the fees earned under the contract they held with the county board for the collection of delinquent real estate taxes was carried before Superior Judge William J. Lindsay yesterday.

Butz asserted that Winston had failed to pay him fees he earned under a sub-contract to file the tax collection suits. When the contract expired last Nov. 30, Butz filed a lien against $5,700 in fees in the hands of the county treasurer and prevented payment to Winston.

"Well, what's this all about," demanded Judge Lindsay. "This is an unconscionable contract in the first place, and I should think you'd want to keep it out of the public eye instead of bringing it into court. You two get together and quit wasting the time of the court. You can pick your own arbitrator."

WHEN JOE GOES TO SLEEP THE U. S. CAN WAIT

Joseph Bill, 55 years old, 155 Elgin avenue, Forest Park, went to sleep on Monday and didn't awaken in time to appear yesterday before United States Commissioner Walker on a charge of liquor law violation. His arraignment was continued for three hours and a deputy marshal found him in bed. He yawned during his arraignment, then furnished a $2,000 bond and returned to his home and bed. He said he had caught a cold when he appeared in the federal building Monday morning and had been asleep most of the time since then. His story was substantiated by a clerk in an Oak Park hotel who testified he had sent Bill home yesterday morning after he had slept in the hotel for forty hours.

VET PROMISES AID TO U. S. IN WAR RISK QUIZ

Government to Ask Fraud Indictments.

A federal grand jury investigation of the war risk insurance suit brought by Richard Birdwell, a Negro veteran, which Federal Judge John P. Barnes said bore appearances of perjury, was begun yesterday. Meanwhile Birdwell was said to be "ready to talk" and the United States attorney's office was proceeding on the possibility that fraud had been practiced in many of the veterans' suits for $5,000,000 in war risk insurance claims.

Assistant United States Attorney Francis J. Kennedy obtained permission from Judge Barnes to take Birdwell from the county jail, where he is held after being cited for contempt of court, to his home at 5217 South Dearborn street for the purpose of obtaining certain papers which Birdwell promised to produce. The papers, according to Kennedy, will be presented to the grand jury today.

Lawyers May Be Heard.

It had not been determined whether Birdwell's lawyers, Edward H. S. Martin and James J. Barbour, and the physician who testified for him, Dr. Orlando F. Scott, would be called before the jury, but it was understood they would be heard if they appeared voluntarily and signed immunity waivers.

Only one witness was taken before the jury yesterday. He was Joseph Schwartz, merchant tailor of Charleston, W. Va., who testified in the trial that Birdwell worked for him as porter and janitor for 14 months. Birdwell had testified that due to tuberculosis contracted as a result of war service he had been able to work only a few weeks since 1919.

The testimony of Dr. Scott that an X-ray photograph indicated the presence of the disease was not corroborated by six experts called by the government, who said the X-ray plate was "absolutely worthless in diagnosing a lung condition." Judge Barnes thereupon directed a verdict for the government, which Birdwell had sued for $5,000, and ordered a grand jury investigation.

To Seek Indictments.

Indictments charging both perjury and conspiracy to defraud the government, the maximum penalty for which is two years and $10,000 in each case, will be sought, Prosecutor Kennedy said. United States Attorney Dwight H. Green instructed his assistant to prosecute the investigation with diligence, stating that he had never sympathized with "the assumption that just because a man is a world war veteran he is licensed to cheat and swindle the government."

Dr. Scott issued a statement saying he had not made his diagnosis solely on the basis of the photograph and that he had testified Birdwell's condition was not such as to prevent him from doing the work of a porter.

Dr. Scott's Statement.

"Asked whether or not I was able to make a diagnosis of tuberculosis from the examination of my X-ray plates alone," said Dr. Scott's statement, "I testified that I was not, that X-ray plates alone were not diagnostic of tuberculosis.

"Mr. Martin asked me whether or not this man could perform the duties of a porter, as it seemed to me he had been doing that class of work, and I testified that I thought he could."

Attorney Barbour, for many years a state senator from the Evanston district, said he had no active part in the preparation or trying of Birdwell's suit.

HOLDS SCHOOLS SHOULD BE LAST TO TRIM COSTS

"In the reduction of governmental expenditures the school system should be the last to suffer cuts," Henry P. Chandler, president of the Union League club, declared last night at a meeting of teachers in the Princess theater. Mr. Chandler said that public education was more important in a depression than during prosperous times.

"Roads are important to community life," said Mr. Chandler, "but schools are more important. If we must forego some services it would be better to curtail our park activities, for example, than to reduce our educational facilities."

Mr. Chandler asserted that in slashing its budget the board of education should retain high school facilities for children between 14 and 18 years of age because "at this period they are determining their attitude toward life." He said that the superintendent of schools should be given complete authority in framing the budget.

A similar stand was taken by President Robert Maynard Hutchins of the University of Chicago, and Prof. Charles H. Judd, dean of the school of education at the university.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, used for generations for its healing effect on throat membranes. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

W. SCOTT LINN STARTS ACTION FOR A DIVORCE

He Charges Desertion; Wife in Cleveland.

Winfield Scott Linn, 399 Fullerton parkway, yesterday filed suit in the Circuit court for a divorce from Mrs. Elise Rice Linn, society matron. The bill charges desertion, asserting that Mrs. Linn separated from her husband on Jan. 2, 1932. It asks that Mr. Linn be given custody of their daughter, Elise, 8 years old.

The filing of the suit confirms rumors which have been current since last summer when Mrs. Linn left Chicago to reside in Cleveland. Attorneys yesterday said that the daughter was with Mrs. Linn in Cleveland.

Wed in New York in 1923.

Mrs. Linn is the daughter of Mrs. William Lowe Rice of New York city. Her husband is the cousin of Howard Linn and the former Mrs. Cyrus McCormick Jr. The marriage of the Linns on Oct. 22, 1923, in New York City was one of the early events of that winter's social season there. Afterward they came to Chicago to live. Mr. Linn is now vice president of Folds, Buck & Co., investment brokers.

Last June from Cleveland Mrs Linn's counsel announced that she planned to file a divorce bill there after she had been a resident of Ohio for one year. Recently when asked about the separation she refused to discuss the case. Last evening servants at Mr. Linn's home said that he was out of town and would not return for a fortnight.

Former Home in Cleveland.

Mrs. Linn's family formerly resided in Cleveland. It was there in August, 1910, that her father, William Lowe Rice, an attorney, was mysteriously slain a short distance from his home in Cleveland Heights. The murder was never solved.

After the tragedy the family moved to New York City, where Miss Rice's debut took place during the winter of 1914, following her graduation from Miss Spence's school. Her engagement to Mr. Linn was announced by her mother on Sept. 4, 1923, from Paris.

Mr. Linn's divorce bill was assigned to Judge Philip J. Finnegan for hearing. His attorneys are from the law firm of Fisher, Boyden, Bell, Boyd and Marshall.

TARIFF EXPERTS TO MISS THEIR TRIP TO EUROPE

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—A surprise order yesterday spoiled a five months' trip abroad for F. Morton Leonard and Howard F. Barker, tariff commission experts. The two men had sublet their apartments preparatory to sailing last night for a trip to several European countries, including Germany and England, when the cancellation order was issued.

While commission officials declined to give any explanation for the order, it was learned that it was due to advance information reaching tariff commissioners regarding congressional plans. The report is that within the near future a move will be made by Democratic leaders in congress to push through a resolution calling for additional work by the commission in advance of the meeting of the Seventy-third congress. The work, it was said today, will require the services of all the commission's experts.

PARENTS STORM OFFICE TO FIGHT BOGAN PROGRAM

Seek High School Places for Pupils.

A delegation of 100 fathers and mothers of school children in the south shore district stormed the offices of Supt. William J. Bogan yesterday with a demand that their children be allowed to enjoy regular senior high school facilities. The children, who are of high school age, are to receive their instruction in branches installed at grade school buildings under a recent program of the superintendent.

The program was adopted by the board of education on recommendation of Mr. Bogan, who set forth that it would relieve congestion in the senior and junior high schools. The parents protested against sending 9th grade pupils to branches instead of to the Hirsch Junior High school at 7740 South Ingleside avenue.

Referred to Another Official.

After a wait in the superintendent's office Mr. Bogan sent out word that the parents would be heard by Don C. Rogers, director of building survey, who prepared the program. The delegation, headed by Mrs. Ray Gibson of 7719 Colfax avenue, then marched into Mr. Rogers' office.

"We are demanding that our children be given four years of high school instruction," asserted Mrs. Gibson. "This group represents the mothers and fathers of more than 400 pupils in the Mann, Bradwell and Bryn Mawr schools who are being shoved into branches.

"The solution to the problem is the converting of the Hirsch junior into a senior high school and we won't take any compromise. We are not opposed to junior high schools, but these are days of emergencies."

"The schools should be run for the children and not for the use of vacant rooms," said Charles D. Young of 7535 Chappel avenue, another parent.

Utilizes Vacant Rooms.

Besides relieving congestion Mr. Bogan's program utilizes 136 of the hundreds of vacant grade school rooms in the system, it was explained.

"Mr. Bogan is attempting to——" started Rogers.

"Yes, he's been attempting for years," broke in a voice from the crowd.

Mrs. Harvey A. Tyler, president of the Chicago Parents' association, declared that the practice of allowing 7th and 8th grade pupils to go to junior high schools and then sending 9th grade students to branches was wrecking the system. She charged that this was the situation in the south shore district.

After an hour's debate Rogers told the parents he would take up the matter with Supt. Bogan.

The parents had crowded into the board meeting room earlier in the afternoon to speak to the trustees. Since only four trustees appeared yesterday and it requires six for a quorum at a meeting, President Lewis E. Myers recessed the meeting until tomorrow.

REFUGEE LOSES APPEAL; IS SENT BACK TO PRISON

Denver, Col., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Gov Edwin C. Johnson late today informed Glenn Smeeman, escaped prisoner known in Cleveland as Harry Stanley, that he had no power to grant Smeeman's request to return him to Cleveland for 60 or 90 days pending a formal appeal for a pardon. Warden Roy Best will take Smeeman back to the state penitentiary at Canon City tomorrow.

Smeeman and George A. Bronson, his business partner, said an appeal for a pardon would be made within thirty days.

Smeeman asked permission to return to Cleveland to prepare documents for a formal appeal for a pardon. He assured the governor he would return at the end of that time

BARON VON BRINCKEN AND WIFE ROBBED ON A HOLLYWOOD STREET

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Three bandits, one of them a girl with a gun, robbed Baron William von Brincken, motion picture writer, and his wife of $1,425 in cash and gems on crowded Hollywood boulevard last night.

"We know who you are," the bandits told Von Brincken. "We'll drop around to your house some night and return your watch for $200. But if you squawk to police we'll blow your head off."

LAKE COUNTY TAX RAISED 2 TO 94C PER $100 VALUE

But Assessment Cuts Will Lower Bills.

Increases in tax rates ranging from 2 to 94 cents per $100 valuation have been made in the 1932 levy in 27 of 36 tax areas in Lake county cities and villages. The rates, compiled by County Clerk Lew A. Hendee, were made public yesterday at Waukegan.

The increases in rates are blamed on the decreased property values and the boost in the state rate from 39 to 50 cents per $100 valuation. Clerk Hendee said that although the rates are higher in the majority of school districts, the tax bills will be lower than in 1931 because of a cut of 15 per cent in assessed valuations.

How Waukegan Bill Is Cut.

The county clerk pointed to Waukegan, where the tax rate is the highest that it has ever been in the history of the city, to illustrate how tax bills will be lowered. The rate in Waukegan has been boosted from $6.96 in 1931 to $7.20 for 1932. Despite this increase, Clerk Hendee said, the city's tax bill will be $93,917 lower than it was in 1931. The cut of 15 per cent in the assessed valuation of the property has reduced the total tax extension from $1,481,818 in 1931 to $1,387 900 for 1932.

The assessed valuations for Lake county, including railroad property and corporation stock, have been decreased from $114,423,440 for 1931 to $98,413,359 for 1932, a reduction of $16,010,081.

Tabulation of Tax Rates.

Despite the general increase in tax rates, six school districts show decreases. Following is a list of tax rates in Lake county school districts:

CERMAK URGES CONSOLIDATION OF PARK BOARDS

Indorses Merriam Plan for Single Control Body.

Consolidation of the three major park boards, the forest preserve system, and the more than 100 small park and playground boards in the city and county into one municipal corporation, to be governed by an elective board of three commissioners, was advocated yesterday by Mayor Cermak. Such a merger would be in line with the recommendations of Prof. Charles E. Merriam for eliminating the overlapping bodies of Cook county.

"I agree with Prof. Merriam," said the mayor, "that it is easier to consolidate local governments when one political party is in control. At present the Democrats have the power and responsibility, and they have nothing to lose by effecting these needed mergers."

Would Appoint Treasurer.

The mayor further suggested that he should be given power to appoint the city treasurer and city clerk. The city treasurer is prevented by law from succeeding himself in office, Mr. Cermak pointed out, and for that reason there should be no objection to making the office appointive. The city clerk, he said, is merely an agent of the city council and there is no reason why the office should be elective.

For the same reasons he suggested that judges of the Circuit and Superior courts be permitted to appoint their own chief clerks.

In his discussion of the proposed merger of the park boards and forest preserve system, the mayor recognized that in the instance of the south park board a constitutional amendment would be necessary in order to merge this body with the others.

"This should not prevent immediate work on consolidation," he said. "We should do what is legally possible now and start the necessary procedure for the constitutional amendment."

Favors Metropolitan Police.

The mayor's plan includes the organization of a metropolitan police force, composed of the present personnel of the county highway police and the state police assigned to Cook county. Such an organization, he believes, would eliminate much duplication of effort and would provide more efficient police service for the county.

He suggested that the county highway and state police divide the territories they now patrol, and that the patrolmen cover their districts in squad cars equipped with radio. Such a patrol would make it possible for many small villages to reduce expenses by eliminating their own patrols, he said.

SMITHS LEAD IN N. Y. DIRECTORY; COHENS SECOND

New York, Jan. 11.—[Special.]—The Manhattan-Bronx volume of the city's new five borough directory, published by R. L. Polk & Co., and compiled by 800 workers paid by the Emergency Relief committee, will be available to the public tomorrow, it was announced today.

The Smiths occupy by far the most space in the new compendium. Their 94 feet of compact lineage is followed in point of measurement by 84 feet of Cohens and 67 feet of Browns. The Miller family comes next with 57 feet; the Johnsons 48 feet, and the Williamses 37 feet.

The Jones clan trails with a mere 33 feet of names and addresses, set fourteen lines to the inch of type.

1932 FEES RECEIVED BY COUNTY OFFICES DECLINE BY $437,771

Receipts of county fee offices were nearly half a million dollars less in 1932 than during the previous year, it was announced yesterday by County Auditor Lee J. Howard. The percentage of decrease was 5.7. The total for 1932 was $7,190,682, as compared with $7,628,453 received in 1931, a difference of $437,771.

Fees received by the various offices in the two years were:

	1931.	1932.
County treasurer	$4,210,416	$4,111,686
County clerk	867,181	782,342
Clerk County court	147,313	125,555
County recorder	745,131	547,583
Clerk Probate court	259,412	202,165
Clerk Circuit court	438,124	419,395
Clerk Superior court	438,008	459,411
Sheriff	458,636	523,796
State's attorney	114,083	45,810
Clerk Criminal court	1,000	981
Coroner	3,904	2,843
Total	$7,628,453	$7,190,682

The increase in fees received last year over 1931 by the sheriff's office was explained by Mr. Howard as a reflection of the huge increase in foreclosures handled by this office.

JUDGE GENTZEL COMES TO AID OF BONDHOLDERS

Halts Forced Sale of Golf Club.

Superior Judge Robert E. Gentzel yesterday refused to confirm a master in chancery sale for $25,000 of the Twin Orchard Country club, Wolf road and Bryn Mawr avenue. Instead he appoined a bondholders' committee to protect the interests of the club members, who are the bondholders. It was the first time a judge has ever taken such action in a Cook county court.

He pointed out that the bid of $25,000 for the club property would have left only $10,000 for the bondholders after litigation costs of $15,000 were paid, or about 10 cents on the dollar. Two years ago the club defaulted on a $200,000 bond issue, on which $100,000 is still owed. Foreclosure proceedings were brought by the trustee, the Foreman Trust and Savings bank.

The committee appointed by Judge Gentzel to take over the property is composed of Henry W. Zander, real estate expert and a former president of the Chicago Real Estate board; James McFarland, attorney for the American National Bank and Trust company, which was appointed receiver, and I. J. Berkson, attorney and a member of the club.

"In my opinion," said Judge Gentzel, "the bid of $25,000 for this property was made by a small group of bondholders who wanted to acquire the property as a guarantee of their own expenses. I won't let them steal this property, and it is my advice to the other bondholders in future not to deposit bonds with a committee which will only give them from 10 to 20 cents on the dollar. I am going to appoint committees in future when similar situations arise."

18 COUNTIES IN ILLINOIS FIGHT SALES TAX PLAN

Quincy, Ill., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—There will be a united front in the eighteen counties bordering the Mississippi river, all the way from Jo Daviess to Alexander, against the proposed sales tax. Retail merchants' associations, manufacturers' organizations, and chambers of commerce all will oppose such a levy.

It is contended that unless Wisconsin, Indiana, Kentucky and Missouri have similar taxes, Illinois business will suffer if a sales tax is imposed in this state. It is argued that buyers will cross state lines at the borders to avoid a sales tax.

People can't afford to take chances at this time of year. They have to be cautious about outdoor exposure, crowds, and stuffy indoor living.

But these outward precautions do not go far enough. It's also important to keep up resistance!

Good general resistance is one of the most valuable defenses people have against the hazards of exposure.

A new concentrate of cod-liver oil vitamins, Squibb Adex Tablets-10 D, provides an abundance of two important factors which help to maintain resistance and physical stamina—Vitamins A and D.

It was to give people who needed building up the advantage of these factors that physicians, for years, recommended good cod-liver oil.

Now Vitamins A and D are pleasantly, easily obtained with Adex. The tablets are chocolate coated, easy to take.

Start with them now! Used regularly every day, Adex tablets will help keep up good general resistance all through the spring.

All reliable drug stores sell them. Squibb Adex Tablets-10 D.

BOY OR GIRL? IT'S VITAL MATTER TO BULGARIA'S RULE

Church and State May Each Claim Firstborn.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SOFIA, Bulgaria, Jan. 11.—Religious and dynastic questions will flare up in Bulgaria toward the end of this month with the expected arrival at the royal residence in Vrania of a baby prince or princess to join King Boris and Queen Giovanna.

The child will be the first born of the marriage of Boris, son of ex-King Ferdinand, and Princess Giovanna, daughter of King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Elena of Italy. If a boy, he will be the heir to the throne of Bulgaria. If a girl, most attention will be paid to selecting a name conforming to Bulgarian lore.

In either event, the arrival is likely to be the nonparticipant in important questions of state and church. When Boris and Giovanna were married two years ago in October, Pope Pius insisted that the marriage must be performed according to Roman Catholic rites. It was celebrated at Assisi in Italy, but later orthodox ceremonies were held at Sofia.

King Must Be Orthodox.

According to Catholic church regulations all children must be christened as Catholic. But a difference arises here with the Bulgarian constitution which provides that the king must be of orthodox faith.

The marriage of Boris and Giovanna under Catholic rites was, however, accompanied by another contract which is still more or less secret, at least the Bulgarian public is in the dark about it. Under this it is reported that an agreement was made that the first born child would be Catholic and the other children orthodox and Catholic.

The veracity of this report cannot be determined but at any rate it is remembered that shortly after Boris' marriage, the pope thundered from the Vatican a long encyclical on mixed marriage.

Bulgarians Will Insist.

Whatever may be arranged, it is believed here that the Bulgarian people will insist that the first boy be orthodox, if he isn't, he cannot ascend the throne.

Queen Giovannia is now staying at Vrania, twelve miles from Sofia. Her health, according to court gossip, is good. Two Italian doctors and possibly Queen Elena, are expected to arrive shortly in Sofia. The king and queen, because of their democratic ways, are popular with Bulgarian subjects, who hope and pray that the child will be a boy. And King Boris hopes the child will be born on his birthday, Jan. 30.

Preparations are being made for two or three days of pageantry, music, and general festivities.

Natives Talk of Names.

Bulgarians are speculating over suitable names. If a girl she will probably be named Maria or Clementine and christened in the Roman Catholic faith. Maria is a favorite Slav name, and Clementine was the name of a princess a century ago, who played an influential rôle in Bulgarian history.

Natives are partial to three names for a princely heir. The first is Ivan Asen, for a Bulgarian king of the 13th century at the height of Bulgarian prestige and power when the frontiers were more extensive than now. The second one is Simeon, for a king of the tenth century, who ruled as a historical figure. And the third is Boris, after the child's father.

The birth of the child will make Victor Emmanuel of Italy a grandfather for the fourth time. The other grandfather, former King Ferdinand, who was driven from the throne by an enraged populace, now is in exile at Cairo.

CHARGE U.S.COAST GUARD FIRED ON CANADIAN SHIPS

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 11.—(AP)—In a protest filed with the customs department at Ottawa masters of three Canadian vessels today charged that a United States coast guard detail had fired on the Canadian ships, boarded them, and otherwise interfered with their passage.

The masters of the three boats maintained they never were outside Canadian waters, but the report from the coast guard was that any action took place in American waters. The alleged incidents occurred off the coast of Vancouver island during a stormy December night.

The vessels are the Kitnayakwa, the Skeesix, and the Sundown, with Vancouver their home port. The master of the Kitnayakwa reported that an American craft opened fire with a machine gun, ranged alongside and ordered the Canadian ship to stop. The American is said to have told the master that he was acting jointly for Canadian and American customs. He towed the Kitnayakwa toward Victoria, the towline being guarded by a machine gun. Half an hour later, however, the Canadian vessel was allowed to proceed, the captain asserted.

HOOVER PLANS RECORD OF HIS ADMINISTRATION

Washington, D. C., June 11.—[Special.]—President Hoover's preparations for retiring to private life on March 4 have satisfied his friends that he contemplates accepting no immediate new responsibility except a task which he has set up for himself of putting the documents of his administration in order for the benefit of history.

It is understood that he is to return without delay to his home on the west coast and engage in some spring stream fishing in California and some deep sea fishing in the Pacific before undertaking the work of annotating the papers which tell the story of his presidency.

The President is said to have accumulated the largest collection of war documents in existence—a collection which is now on file at Leland Stanford university. Nearly twenty tons of material, it is estimated, are being prepared for shipment across the continent in 82 filing cases recently ordered for the President's personal account.

Friends of Mr. Hoover are satisfied that he has no thought of writing an autobiography or of doing much writing of any kind in the immediate future. Rather they understand that he will prepare a collection of papers which in themselves will trace the course of events with which he has been identified.

DAIRY FARMER RULE AT STAKE IN VOTE TODAY

The Kane county members of the Pure Milk association will hold a second meeting today at St. Charles to elect a district director. The first election, held last Thursday, resulted in a deadlock among the three candidates, Will H. McQueen of Elgin, Joe Lies of Aurora and Arthur Hartman of Hampshire. McQueen is the present director and is also president of the Pure Milk association, composed of 16,587 dairy farmers in the 30 counties which supply Chicago and its suburbs with milk.

Before the first election it was reported that an insurgent element in the Kane county group would make an effort to defeat McQueen, who must be elected a director in order to retain his position as president.

PLEADS GUILTY TO KILLING AND GETS 14 YEARS

Maurice Albertson, 23 years old, formerly of Chicago, pleaded guilty to murder in the Circuit court at Joliet yesterday and was sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Frank L. Hooper.

Albertson had first pleaded not guilty, but changed his plea after a jury to try him had been selected. State's Attorney W. R. McCabe recommended the 14 year penalty.

With two other men, Albertson last July robbed Charles Sanders and after shooting him to death tossed his body into the drainage canal southwest of Joliet. The others implicated in the crime were Lawrence Albertson, brother of Maurice, and Clare Lyngen. They have pleaded guilty and been sentenced to life terms in the penitetiary.

Seizes His Coat

Peter Brown, a watchman, and his police dog captured one of three men who were trying to break into a vacant store at 2846 Milwaukee avenue early yesterday. The prisoner is Stephen Hartman, 21 years old, 1753 North Artesian avenue. He told police that he and his companions had planned to rob a shoe store next door to the vacant building. Brown was walking through the alley behind the store, when his dog rushed at the three men hiding there unseen by Brown. The dog seized Hartman by the coat and held him until Brown completed the capture. Brown lives at 1637 North Campbell avenue.

PROPOSE PLACING OF DEFECTIVES IN OLD PRISON

Abandoned Penitentiary for Women Suggested.

The women's penitentiary at Joliet which is expected to be completely vacated by the transfer of prisoners to the new women's prison at Dwight, was considered yesterday as a possible institution to be used for the incarceration of juvenile delinquents of the type of James [Iggy] Varecha, killer, robber, and rapist, and Sigmond Bukovitz, robber and rapist.

A twenty-five foot wall surrounds the institution, which at present has 100 cells. It was originally planned to remodel the building and increase the cell space to 150 cells, to be used as an overflow prison for the old penitentiary at Joliet. However, it can easily be made an institution for feebleminded and juvenile delinquents with criminal tendencies, Warden Frank D Whipp of the Joliet penitentiary said.

Convict Labor Suggested.

The old prison for women occupies six acres of ground, and it would be easy to build additions, it was pointed out. The warden at Joliet recently said that much of the unrest among prisoners was caused by lack of labor for the convicts, and it was suggested that convict labor might be used in the work on the women's prison.

Dr. Harry Hoffman, head of the Criminal court behavior clinic, and a committee selected by him have agreed to seek legislation so that an institution for the care of the defectives can be established. At present the delinquents are sent to the Dixon State hospital an institution for the feebleminded, which is not equipped to handle criminals. Varecha and Bukovitz walked away from the Dixon hospital several times.

Addresses Medical Society.

Judge Mary Bartelme of the Juvenile court spoke before the Chicago Medical society last night on the subject of the dependent child as it is handled by the Juvenile court. The fact that the county is behind in its payments for the upkeep of these children has created a serious situation, she said. Judge Bartelme did not touch upon juvenile delinquents such as Varecha and Bukovitz.

Libby Reynolds to Battle for Estate for Baby, Self

New York, Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Libby Holman Reynolds will make a fight for the estate of the late Smith Reynolds, heir to the Reynolds tobacco millions, on behalf of herself and the son who was born to her last night in Philadelphia, it was revealed here this afternoon.

The new born son was in an incubator in the Pennsylvania hospital in Philadelphia today, while doctors took every precaution against possible complications due to the infant's slight weight and premature birth.

Although doctors refused direct information, it was reported from one source that the baby weighs three and one-half pounds and from another source between five and six pounds.

Seek Personal Estate.

Arnold J. Brock, who said he had been retained as Mrs. Reynolds' counsel several months ago, revealed that a claim will be made for the personal estate of Smith Reynolds on behalf of his client and her infant son—the accumulation of income young Reynolds received from the 15 million dollar trust fund established for him by his father, W. J. Reynolds, the tobacco king.

This action will be taken, Mr. Brock said, as soon as Smith Reynolds' will is filed for probate here. That will be soon, he believes.

Mr. Brock contends that young Reynolds' will, disposing of a fortune estimated at around 18 million dollars, is inoperative because Reynolds was a minor when he signed the instrument. He said there was sufficient legal ground to claim for the dark haired young widow one-third of the accumulation from the trust fund income and two-thirds for the child. This accumulation, it is said, will amount to about $3,000,000.

Trust Fund Beneficiary.

Young Smith Reynolds, who died from a bullet wound in the head on July 6 last, was to have received the principal of the trust fund when he was 28 years old. He was barely 21 when he died.

Mr. Brock said that the first efforts would be concentruted on Mrs. Reynolds' claim to the accumulated interest from the trust fund. The fight for the 15 million dollars will be undertaken later, he indicated.

The lawyer pointed out that young Reynolds, unable under the North Carolina law to make a will until he was 21, came to New York and made a will here attempting to dispose of his entire estate. The lawyer maintains that because of a similar law in New York state he was incompetent to dispose of the North Carolina properties while still a minor.

In Philadelphia the Reynolds baby was placed in an elaborate apparatus called a "hot bed." In it the temperature is regulated to a point most favorable for the infant. Prematurely born infants usually are kept in it for several days after birth.

Dr. Norris W. Vaux, attending physician, said today the baby was doing "nicely" under the conditions.

Contrary to reports that an elaborate suite was engaged at the well known hospital for the former Broadway entertainer, she had a plain, single room. She did not have even a private nurse, it was said.

WOMAN, 81, HIT BY AUTOMOBILE, DIES OF SHOCK

Mrs. Anna Hoffmann, 81 years old, who was struck by an automobile at North avenue at Orchard street on New Year's eve, died yesterday in her home at 1837 Clybourn avenue. At the time she appeared only bruised and her death is believed to have resulted from shock.

This death and three others yesterday increased the Cook county motor toll for 1933 to 25. The other victims:

Henry Tisk, 9 years old, of 4319 Ellis avenue. Fatally injured last night when he was struck by an automobile in front of his home. He died in Chicago hospital. The driver was William Wolf, 4259 Leland avenue.

Mrs. Alice Gray, 42 years old, 9616 Calumet avenue. Died yesterday at the Jackson Boulevard hospital. She was injured Monday in a collision at 82d street and Champlain avenue.

ROOSEVELT FINDS PICKING CABINET TO BE DIFFICULT

Democratic Big Guns Said to Hang Back.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—The big guns of the Democratic party, according to information circulated in congressional circles today, are shying at the idea of serving in the cabinet of President Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt.

While willing to serve in an advisory capacity when called on, virtually every one of the men first mentioned prominently for cabinet timber after the Democratic victory have let it be known, the reports state, that they have no desire to be drafted for heavy duty at Washington.

This is not to say that all of the big shots have been formally offered cabinet posts. The report is that the attitude of the Democratic financial, industrial, and business leaders has been made known as a result of feelers put out as to their availability for service on the Washington front. In some cases it is known that prospective cabinet members have been asked outright as to whether they would be in a position to accept if called upon.

Reported to Be Unwilling.

Included in the list of those who are reported to have voluntarily made themselves unavailable for cabinet duty are Owen D. Young, New York financier, economist, industrialist, and co-author of the Dawes reparations plan; John W. Davis, Democratic candidate for President in 1924, distinguished lawyer and former ambassador to Great Britain; Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland, noted pioneer wet and potential presidential timber for many years, and James M. Cox, newspaper publisher and Democratic presidential nominee in 1920.

According to the information circulated in congresional circles Newton D. Baker, league of nations advocate and war time secretary of war, also has made it plain that he is unavailable for cabinet duty. The same report said that Melvin Traylor of Chicago, president of the First National bank, would find himself unable to accept a cabinet post if called upon.

Prefer to Remain in Senate.

Another report labeled authentic was that Carter Glass, former secretary of the treasury, and Thomas J. Walsh, two times chairman of Democratic national conventions would decline to quit their comfortable berths in the United States senate if invited formally to accept posts in the Roosevelt official family. Neither senator has put the quietus publicly to rumors that they had been selected for cabinet duty—the former for the treasury and the latter for the attorney generalship.

For several weeks it has been taken for granted in Democratic circles here that Al Smith and Barney M. Baruch, chairman of the war industries board during the war and one of the Roosevelt contact men, would not be in the cabinet.

Several explanations are given for the alleged lack of enthusiasm among Democracy's topnotchers for cabinet duty. One is to the effect that some of those who normally would be glad to accept high posts are not financially able to indulge their politcial ambitions. In some quarters reports are spread that some of the more conservative Democrats are not inclined to participate in an administration that, according to many reports, will swing further to the left than has any previous regime.

P. O. Official Awarded Medal for War Gallantry

Maj. George N. Malstrom, superintendent of mails in the Chicago postoffice, was notified yesterday by the war department that he had been awarded a silver star medal for gallantry in action in the Meuse-Argonne offensive in 1918. Maj. Malstrom was a captain in the 131st infantry during the war. The decoration will be formally presented to him on Feb. 22 at the 131st regiment armory by his war time commander, Lieutenant General of Militia Joseph B. Sanborn, who was colonel of the 131st infantry in the war.

GRAVE TASKS CONFRONT U. S. AS 1933 OPENS

[Article nine of a series presenting the country's cost and revenue.]

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10.—[Special.]—For two decades congress has indulged in an orgy of spending the income tax. The depression withered the fruitfulness of the income tax as the chief source of government revenue, but the spending orgy lingers on with borrowing relied upon to supply the vanished funds.

This new source of revenue was created by the sixteenth amendment to the constitution, which was ratified in 1913. The world war began the next year and war prosperity fattened incomes. We got into the war in 1917 and the income tax was boosted successfully high to furnish funds for military operations. By that time congress had found the income tax a veritable Pandora's box and proceeded accordingly.

From the moment the possibilities of the revenue from the tax on incomes began to be realized a change came over the attitude of the national legislators toward the functions of the central government and was soon reflected in a similar attitude on the part of their constituents and of state governments. With money to burn at their command the statesmen on Capitol Hill perceived new and undreamed of possibilities in the pork barrel.

The original conception of the functions of the central government was thrown overboard. Henceforth Washington was to invade the realm of local self-government with every conceivable paternalistic, subventionary, and regulatory activity. Everywhere the urge was to let Uncle Sam do, particularly if it were going to cost money. Agriculture, the merchant marine, industry and commerce were subsidized. The government went in for an orgy of road building, public building construction, and the improvement of rivers and harbors.

The spenders on Capitol Hill began to picture Uncle Sam as the great uplifter. He must improve the lot of backward groups which the states were doing nothing to improve. The enormously increased expenditures of the department of agriculture were defended on the ground that it had become a great educational institution. The commerce department, now housed in a 17 million dollar palace, became the lavishly endowed handmaiden of business.

By the time the income tax following the war was producing more than two billions of dollars a year for congress to spend on a multitude of what in other days would have been regarded as fantastic projects, the expenditures of the federal government had quintupled. From about 750 millions a year in the pre-income tax decade they rose to about four billions a year. Depression outlays brought them up to five billions in the 1932 fiscal year. Before the income tax was created the cost of the central government was about $7.50 per capita. Now it is about $40.

Part of this tremendous increase in the cost of the federal government is due to the war and to the outlays on the Reconstruction Finance corporation and other depression relief measures. But exclusive of these items the cost of the federal government has trebled. If you deduct the expenditures on public debt service, in veterans, on the R. F. C. and the federal land banks from the 5 billions expended in the last fiscal year you have a remainder of just under 3 billions, which is about $25 per capita or three times the cost before the war.

The orgy of spending the income tax still is going strong. There has been no substantial diminution of the expenditures on the paternalistic, subventionary, and regulatory activities of the federal government. But the income tax as a source of revenue for the new pork barrel has dwindled to a rill. From more than 2 billions in 1930 it has fallen to less than $800,000.

ROOSEVELT GETS BUSINESS PLEA FOR ECONOMIES

U. S. Commerce Chamber Fights New Taxes.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

New York, Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Farm relief and taxpayers' relief, regarded by many as the most important issues now before this country, came under discussion today between President Elect Roosevelt and Henry I. Harriman of Boston, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Harriman, it was learned, presented a forceful plea that the President elect, immediately after March 4, institute a general house cleaning of the bureaucracies at Washington to balance the budget by economy rather than by raising taxes or creating new levies.

To Observe Pledges.

The President elect, it was reported, gave evidence that he has not changed from the views on governmental economy he voiced during his campaign, when he pledged his administration to make a 25 per cent cut in the operating expenses of the government. If he carries out this pledge, nearly a billion dollars will be saved the taxpayers.

On farm relief the views of Mr. Harriman and Mr. Roosevelt were in accord, both having declared during their conversation in favor of the principles of the farm parity bill now before congress.

As a matter of fact, both men, Mr. Harriman as representing the chamber of commerce, and Mr. Roosevelt in forming his farm program, were advised by Prof. Milburn L. Wilson, agricultural expert of the Montana State College of Agriculture. Prof. Wilson generally is credited with conceiving the plan of bringing the agricultural dollar on a parity with the industrial dollar by levying a domestic tax on farm products. The plan was to be tried with wheat and extended if that was successful.

The President elect, however, would not commit himself as favoring the farm bill in its present form. With congress now shoving in as many as a dozen farm commodities in the initial bill the fate of the plan is considered in grave doubt.

Considers Arms Embargoes.

Mr. Roosevelt was asked today if he supported the principles enunciated by President Hoover in his message to congress proposing embargoes on arms against nations engaged in war. The President elect declined to reply directly, but he let it be known that he has long been in favor of the general purposes of arms embargoes, particularly against aggressor nations whose armies are invading foreign territory.

Mr. Roosevelt received leaders in cotton coöperative associations. They came to plead for the government to write off a loss of from 50 to 60 million dollars suffered by the federal farm board's attempt to stabilize the cotton market.

ILLINOIS COURT ACTS TO LESSEN PRESSURE ON MORTGAGED FARMS

Bloomington, Ill., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Judge S. R. Baker in the Circuit court of Livingston county entered a ruling today to lessen the hardships of foreclosures on farm mortgages.

"Courts cannot legally refuse to enter decrees foreclosing mortgages," the judge said, "but I have come to the conclusion that it may be possible for the courts to prevent the practice of mortgagees buying the property at foreclosure sales at prices much less than the amount of the mortgages, and securing larger deficiency decrees which have the effect of judgments against the mortgagors.

"Courts of equity can compel persons seeking equitable relief to do equity, and this court will attempt to accomplish that end in farm mortgage foreclosure causes, during the present economic depression, by granting deficiency decrees only against the rents of the mortgaged premises accruing to the end of the statutory period of redemption.

"This can be done with perfect legality if mortgagees buying at foreclosure sales bid a sum sufficiently near the amount of the decree so that such rents will take care of the small deficiency, or if they will do equity by accepting a deficiency decree to be satisfied only from the rents from the premises.

"If they decline to do equity by either of these methods the court can and will refuse to approve a sale and enter a deficiency decree in cases where mortgagees, buying at the sale, have bid so low a price as to leave a large deficiency, but will instead set aside the sale and order a resale. I believe this course is within the power of the court, and shall act accordingly.

"This plan will not prevent the loss of the land which has been mortgaged for the debt, but it will prevent the loss of other property which the farm owner may be fortunate enough to possess or to acquire hereafter, at least so far as the foreclosure proceeding is concerned."

AIRSHIP STANDS STILL HALF HOUR OVER NEW YORK

New York, Jan. 11.—[Special.]—For a half hour this afternoon thousands in downtown New York watched in wonder an airplane that remained stationary over the Hudson river.

The pilot, John Phillips, an instructor at the Curtiss Wright airport at Valley Stream, and his passenger, James Burke, had no idea that they were creating something of a stir in the crowded streets below. They were watching the S. S. Iroquois swing out into the river preparatory to a start for Miami. On board was a friend of Burke's, George Cassidy, starter at the Jamaica race track, and Burke had chosen this method to see him off.

Phillips had climbed to between 2,000 and 3,000 feet, faced into the wind, and throttled the motor of his Curtiss Fledgling training biplane, whose broad wings were suited to the task. At times he actually flew backward. Again he would gain a few feet on the strong air currents. For the most part he remained almost stationary.

CONGRESS PLANS TO PLACE CURB ON BANKRUPTCY

President Hoover Urges Emergency Changes.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Partial revision of the bankruptcy laws at this session of congress was promised by congressional leaders today.

A special message from President Hoover urging "emergency action" to stave off wholesale forced foreclosures was met on Capitol hill with the almost instant announcement that a bill embodying the broad principles suggested by the President will be taken up by the house judiciary committee before the week is out.

It's an Emergency Effort.

The bill, in accordance with the President's suggestion, will represent an emergency effort to ease the debt situation during the present period of depression. A general revision of the bankruptcy laws has been urged and is now being studied by a joint congressional committee, but leaders on Capitol hill concede the impossibility of enacting such legislation at this session. While general revision will come later, specific action is to be taken soon.

Mr. Hoover urged that the present "destructive" process of forced liquidation through foreclosure and bankruptcy sale of the assets of a debtor be supplanted by a system under which debtors might obtain the protection of the court for readjusting their affairs, without invoking "the stigma of an adjudication in bankruptcy."

"Under such process," he declared, "it should be possible to avoid destructive liquidation through the composition and extension of individual indebtedness, and the reorganization of corporations, with the full protection of the court extended to the rights and interests of creditors and debtors alike."

Conferees Near Agreement.

Agreement as to the terms of the measure was reached today at a conference between members of a joint subcommittee of the house and senate judiciary committees, and Solicitor General Thomas Day Thacher.

Mr. Thacher recently conducted a detailed investigation of the present bankruptcy laws for President Hoover. Attending the meeting were Senator Daniel O. Hastings [Rep. Del.], administration spokesman on the senate judiciary committee, Rep. Tom D. McKeown [Dem. Okla.], chairman of the bankruptcy committee of the house judiciary committee and Rep. F. H. La Guardia [Rad. N. Y.].

According to Mr. McKeown, the bill will enable individuals, corporations, and railroads to secure court protection for a readjustment of their debts. It will also provide that a stipulated percentage of creditors, by amount, will have power to force a readjustment of the debtor's affairs.

JUDGE CANCELS SALE OF HORSES, COWS, ETC., FOR TOTAL OF $1.18

Doylestown, Pa., Jan. 11.—(AP)—A motion was filed and allowed before Judge Hiram H. Keller in Common Pleas court of Bucks county today, asking that a $1.18 sheriff's sale of property on the farm of John Hanzel to satisfy an $1,800 judgment be set aside.

Cows and horses were included in the sale, a committee, acting for the Farmers' Protective association buying the property and returning it to Hanzel.

Counsel for Jacob Laufensweiler, a neighbor who worked for Hanzel and who got the judgment, filed the motion.

The farmer group's agents said they would carry the case to the highest courts, if necessary.

Horses, $1; Hogs, 25 Cents.

Webster City, Ia., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Horses sold for a dollar, hogs for 25 cents, and corn at 2 cents a bushel at a sale on Bascomb Huddlestun's farm here necessitated by foreclosure of a chattel mortgage. Although 500 persons attended, only one man bid on property offered. Net result of the sale was $106.

Evanston Meeting Fights 30 Year Power Franchise

Protests against granting a 30 year franchise by the city of Evanston to the Public Service company of Northern Illinois, were voiced last night at a meeting in the Evanston council chambers. Prof. A. R. Hatton of Northwestern university, argued that the term was too long and that no franchise should be granted unless assurances of lowered rates were obtained.

Safe! Powerful! Goes 3 times as far

Now $1 equals $3 in buying protection against winter colds

PEPSODENT ANTISEPTIC is 3 times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes 3 times as far. And whether you buy the 25c, 50c, or $1 size, you still get 3 times as much for your money.

YOU may be trying to save money. But instead of saving it, you're losing it if you don't know the difference between the two kinds of mouth antiseptics on the market. One kind must be used full strength to be effective—that means "if you add water, it won't kill germs."

Pepsodent CAN be diluted

But the other kind—Pepsodent Antiseptic—is powerful enough to be diluted with 2 parts of water and still kill germs in less than 10 seconds—yet Pepsodent is absolutely safe when used full strength. Pepsodent Antiseptic is at least three times as powerful as other leading mouth antiseptics. Hence it goes three times as far—gives you three times as much for your money—and gives you extra protection against stubborn sore throat colds, unpleasant breath, and all kinds of germ infections.

Be safe—and save money!

When choosing your mouth antiseptic, be sure you choose the one that, even when it is diluted with water, still kills germs! The other kind costs more . . . both in money and in health. Insist on Pepsodent Antiseptic—and be safe!

IMPURE BREATH (Halitosis)

The amazing results of Pepsodent Antiseptic in fighting sore throat colds prove its effectiveness in checking Bad Breath (Halitosis). Remember, Pepsodent is 3 times more powerful in killing germs than other leading mouth antiseptics. Remember, even when diluted with water it still kills germs.

FARMERS' DREAM OF RICHES IN VAIN, EXPERT ASSERTS

Happiness and Security Easily Gained.

BY PAUL POTTER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 11.—[Special.] American farming in the next generation or so must be regarded as offering little encouragements for those solely interested in making money, but rather as a means of developing a wholesome, satisfying life along economically independent but rather simple lines.

This was the conclusion reached by Dr. F. D. Farrell, president of the Kansas State Agricultural college, yesterday in outlining objectives for farmers at the annual Purdue university agricultural conference. He declared that of the two types of farming, the commercial or the social objectives had each been on trial in recent years and that the former had been demonstrated to have "low attainability."

Number of Farmers Increases.

The chief reason for failure of "big business" in farming in the last decade, Farrell said, was the steady increase in the number of farmers during the period when a decrease would have been desired for profitable production. In the ten years ending 1931, he pointed out, 15,244,000 people left towns and cities of the United States and went to farms. This figure does not include an appreciable number who went to suburbs of cities to engage in "subsistence farming" and gardening and in poultry raising.

This migration to the country was well under way even during years of comparative prosperity in the cities, the Kansas educator declared. It is equivalent to a good sized trainload each hour, 24 hours a day, 365 days a year, for ten years, he said. It has been the major force that defeated the big corporations in farming, and the "dollars and cents only" farmers.

Economic Security Goal.

Dr. Farrell's analysis of the farm family of the future is one that seeks economic security by assuming fewer financial risks, largely self-sufficient in producing its needs, seeking physical health, some leisure, spiritual satisfaction and permanence and stability.

Such farmers as depend least upon cash suffer least in adversity. Yet they seek better home life with its modern conveniences instead of more lands. They seek to produce high quality products economically rather than large quantities on an extensive scale. They depend more upon sources of happiness and satisfaction not bought with money.

Dr. Farrell charged that the commercial agriculture, with huge specialization, dependence upon cash income, and "the type of life that resembles the serving of a penitentiary sentence" which have increased in the last 25 years, was responsible for the present predicament of many farmers.

'KILLS WIFE 'FOR NAGGING,' THEN WAITS FOR POLICE

Raffaelo Perillo, 58 years old, a laborer for the Chicago Rapid Transit lines, shot and killed his wife, Josephine, 56 years old, in a quarrel in the kitchen of their home at 738 South Marshfield avenue yesterday morning. Six of the nine Perillo children were asleep in an adjoining room.

RAFFAELO PERILLO.

After the slaying Perillo sat down to await the arrival of police summoned by neighbors. "My wife and I have been quarreling since our marriage," Perillo told police. "She nagged me every day. This morning she kept it up during breakfast. I accused her of trying to poison me three weeks ago and she shouted that I was crazy."

More Than 1,000 Bridge Players Compete in Tournament

Record Entry List

The entire ninth floor of Mandel Brothers' store was filled with 1,120 bridge players participating in a tournament sponsored by the company's "bridge club of the air" last night. Officials said it was the largest bridge tournament ever conducted, the previous attendance having been 325 in New York in 1928.

Entries were limited to contract bridge players who had never won a district or national title. Four silver cups were to be awarded for pair championships and the four high pairs in each of the forty sections were to receive $5 in merchandise.

The tournament, directed by Leon Mandel, general manager of the store, and E. M. Lagron, instructor of the radio club, was held under the auspices of the Western Bridge association and the Chicago Whist association. Announcement of the prize winners will be made over W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE radio station, at 10 p. m. tomorrow night. The radio club is conducted over W-G-N on Sundays at 1:30 p. m. and on Tuesday and Friday nights at 10 o'clock.

FARM AID BILLS OF DEMOCRATS FILED IN SENATE

Seek to Lighten Load of Mortgages.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—With the farm allotment bill on its way through the house, the Roosevelt farm relief program was rounded out today with the introduction in the senate of companion bills designated to lighten the burden of agricultural mortgages through the use of further federal aid and federal money.

As Democratic leader of the upper house, Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas sponsored the measure.

The first of the bills would unify the farm loan sysem through the absorption of joint stock land banks by federal land banks, and would authorize the rewriting of existing mortgages now held by the two bank systems at an interest rate of not more than 4½ per cent.

Guaranteed by Government.

In lieu of their bonds now outstanding, the new unified land banks would issue 3 per cent bonds which would be guaranteed by the government.

Farm mortgages would be amortized over a period of up to 40 years, and a three year moratorium on principal would be allowed. Of the 4½ per cent interest, 3 per cent would be used to pay interest on the bonds, 1 per cent for operating expenses and reserves, and one-half of 1 per cent for a reserve to cover the government guarantee of the bonds.

As a further contribution, the government would be required to subscribe 200 million dollars of additional capital stock.

Could Carry Real Estate.

The second Democratic bill would give to federal and joint stock land banks the privilege of carrying real estate for a period of five years at the amount of the banks' investment, instead of at a recovery or at appraisal value.

It would further give to federal and joint stock land banks the right to put up real estate, purchase mortgages, and contracts to sell real estate as collateral security for bonds outstanding. Under existing law, the registrar is permitted to accept as collateral in place of the first mortgages withdrawn only cash or government bonds.

Meanwhile, the Democratic house leadership, backed by the strong hand of the national farm organizations, seemed to have whipped the membership of the lower body back into line on the domestic allotment farm relief bill. A new spirit of docility and party orderliness prevailed during today's session, in contrast to yesterday's sectional rout of party lines and leadership. Indications tonight were that the bill will pass the house tomorrow or on Thursday.

MARGARET'S JINX FAILS TO WORK ON A TOUGH PATIENT

Margaret Mary Collins, the "kiss of death girl," seven of whose sweethearts have been killed in gang wars, has apparently found an admirer who is stronger than her jinx. He is Sol Feldman, 25 years old, 2125 Pierce avenue, an alleged burglar and until recently a patient at the Mother Cabrini hospital suffering from bullet wounds. Unlike the other seven of Margaret Mary's admirers, Feldman recovered.

This was disclosed yesterday when the burglary charge against Feldman came up for hearing before Judge Donald S. McKinlay. The judge was told that Feldman had been discharged from the hospital and is convalescing at his home. Judge McKinlay continued the case until Jan. 26. Feldman was shot by South Park Policeman Ted J. O'Barr on Nov. 29 after Feldman and a companion were alleged to have smashed and removed two fur coats from the show window of Leschin's, Inc., 318 South Michigan avenue.

Officials at the hospital said that Miss Collins called on Feldman every day. Among the sweethearts for whom she has worn mourning were Dean O'Banion, Eugene [Red] McLaughlin, Irving [Sonny] Schlig, and John [Dandy] Sheehy.

City Slickers Help Farmers; Forgive Rural Grip on Lives

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—The sympathy for the farmer which is now being shown in the cities bespeaks a much more generous and forgiving disposition in the urban population than the rural citizens have shown toward them in the last dozen years.

This is surprising because it is well known that the cities are largely composed of swindlers, gangsters, and slickers, most of whom do not go to bed when right living people ought to and who frequent speakeasies and society debauches in sumptuous houses.

Many of them do not go to church from one year's end to another and they are, on the whole, so thoroughly self-centered and downright ornery that it fairly takes one's breath away to find them admitting that the poor hay kicker has had a very bad break and that the government ought to give him some money.

Evil Doers Are Forgiving.

What I say is, of course, that people who do not go to bed at a decent hour of the night [established by the legislature of the state of Kansas] and who drink cocktails [contrary to the moral principles of the Mississippi legislature] deserve no consideration and ought to be shot and poisoned to the full extent of the law.

But even so, you would expect to find them rather surly and vindictive toward the farmer, who laid down this law for them, and unwilling to approve any measure for the relief of the farmer's troubles until the farmer first agreed to let go prohibition in the cities.

This is not the case, however, and though there have been many hallelujah meetings in the rural districts to insist upon the maintenance of this law in Chicago, New York, Detroit and such Godless congestions, nowhere in the big cities have there been any parades or rallies to remind the farmer that adversity is good for his soul and to insist this spiritual boon be not denied him.

This is the more interesting, because if the farmers are in a generally broke condition and unable to pay even their local taxes the money which they will receive naturally will have to be taken from the city people.

Perhaps It's Wicked Money.

It is even conceivable that the dole or bonus, or whatever it may be called, which some Kansas farmer will receive from the United States government to see him out of his suffering within the next year will consist of the very money paid as income tax by some New York speakeasy proprietor from the proceeds from his sinful doing. But, fortunately, the money is not earmarked, and an honest dry may elect to believe that his particular remittance from Washington was derived from the income tax of some magnate of the five-and-ten trade who sold flasks and shakers over his counters, to be sure, but only with a pious faith that they would be used for malted milk.

Considering the character of city populations, I should have expected some city congressman or senator to insist upon the inclusion of a police clause in any farm relief bill which may be passed. Does the honest farmer attempt to cheat or chisel the government to the extent of a few dollars in the compilation of his return, then be it provided that an agent of the department of agriculture similar in power to the prohibition agent may shoot him through the back.

This would be a harsh way to do him but no more severe than the treatment dealt many offenders of that other law which came from the farm country, and law is law and must be respected. The rural citizen having subscribed to this principle so often, surely would not quarrel with it now.

This capital is a city of amazing contrasts and it might upset you to learn that here in the midst of so many good rural men toiling to raise some government money for the farmers, there exists an evil bureau which would lead the Kansan and the virtuous peasants of Alabama and Mississippi up onto a mountain and offer them the world for their souls.

It is called the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and its statisticians have prepared figures which contend that if the 15 states which were wet in 1919 had been allowed to remain wet, they would now be turning into the national treasury more than a billion dollars a year. The sinister suggestion is plain: Surrender a principle and your troubles are over, Farmer.

Crime Scheduled to Vanish.

But statistics are not reliable. There were statistics in 1919 to show that henceforth, under prohibition, there would be no poverty and only a negligible amount of crime and the dry citizens cannot be blamed if they are a little skeptical of statistics. Must a salesman believe his own arguments?

There seems to be a mutual non-appreciation of problems as between the Kansan and the resident of the large city. There are citizens in New York who have a rather attractive idea of the farmer's existence. When the farmer wants a dozen eggs he goes out into some little shed and bats several girl chickens alongside the head, knocks them squawking off the nests and fumbles around in the hay until he has picked up all the eggs he wants, free.

If he desires some milk he sidles up to a cow which is just standing around looking gloomy and gives a few yanks and, what ho, there is milk. If he craves him a steak he orders a cow to come here a minute, chokes her to death and in a few minutes—well, for goodness' sake—filet mignon.

Tolerance, Speaking Easily.

Of course, this is just a sketchy idea and does not consider the farmer's hidden problems, but no more amiss than the rural conception of New York life, and I have yet to hear any exhorter heave up in a New York meeting to demand that Kansans drink more gin.

It is a compliment to the tolerance of the city population just now that with the wail of the peasants ringing in the papers no city congressman has risen on the floor to tell them, "so you are suffering are you? Well, isn't that too bad?"

Town Marshal to View New Patrons of This Bank

Ivan Kelly, president and cashier, today announced that the doors of the institution would be kept locked at all times. In an acquaintance comes to the door Kelly will press a button unlocking it. If a stranger appears he will telephone the town marshal, who will saunter past the bank to inspect the prospective customer before he is admitted.

WORLD WORKERS DEMAND SHORTER HOURS, SAME PAY

Nations Split on Policy to Reduce Idleness.

GENEVA, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The question of the maintenance of wages at their present level, or of reducing them, arose as a crucial issue at today's discussion of a proposal for a 40 hour working week before the international conference on unemployment.

Leon Jouhaux, general secretary of the French Federation of Labor, declared that working hours must be reduced without any wage cuts.

Sees Civilization in Peril.

Jouhaux told the conference that unless the world situation is relieved civilization may be destroyed. Thirty million men and women—one-sixth of the world's workers—are jobless, he said, and even a revival of industry would not provide a remedy, for technological unemployment would remain a tremendous factor.

Frank Norman, British government delegate, challenged the workers' demand for a forty hour week without pay cuts, calling it merely a move for an increase in the wage scale. The Danish employer delegate, H. C. Oersted, asserted that reduced hours must be accompanied by reduced pay.

Germany Backs Higher Pay.

The German government delegate supporting the proposal, expressed the hope that it might be possible to maintain the present wage level.

In advocating reduction of hours without reduction of wages, Jouhaux, it was understood, spoke for all the workers' delegates attending the conference. It was recalled that the American Federation of Labor supports the same policy.

55 Neighbors Husk Corn for Widow Near Tuscola

Tuscola, Ill., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Fifty-five neighbors with 23 teams husked 40 acres of corn for Mrs. Morris Butler, whose husband died in December. By 1:30 p. m. the job was done, and the widow and her daughter, Beulah, provided the neighbors a dinner served by the Ladies Aid at Mt. Gilead rural church. The corn averaged 50 bushels to the acre.

How to Guard against the FLU

Every Tribune reader is urged to heed these precautions

The flu epidemic has reached this community. The health authorities are doing their part, but every individual must be on guard.

Keep your medicine chest supplied with the sensible aids to health; any sickness weakens the system and lowers your resistance to germs.

Every household should have at least one hot water bag, in good condition, or an electric pad; and a fever thermometer. Sleep in airy rooms, with ample covering. Avoid an overheated house during the day; dress warmly when you go out. Beware of overcrowded cars, poorly ventilated public meeting places, stuffy telephone booths. Flu is contagious! Breathe through the nose. Keep the system alkaline, the bowels in good order; Phillips' Milk of Magnesia will help you do both. If you have any symptom of a cold, take Bayer Aspirin according to directions. Don't lose even five minutes! Genuine Bayer Aspirin can't harm you, but a common cold is dangerous at a time like this.

Eat plain foods, get enough rest, and don't over-do. Take these extra precautions to keep in sound physical condition, so your system will have normal resistance against germs.

At any sign of actual flu, call a doctor at once. Do not try to treat yourself for influenza!

ANNUAL U.S. LOSS ON CANAL ZONE SHIP LINE GROWS

Government Goes in the Red for $297,079.

BY GERALD MARTIN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BALBOA HEIGHTS, C. Z., Jan. 11.—Uncle Sam's steamship line, operated by the government owned Panama Railroad company, would show a considerable profit if the various government departments had been charged the regular rates for freight and transportation instead of receiving reductions of from 25 to 80 per cent, according to figures revealed here today.

Each year of late has shown an increased deficit in operation. The report of the directors for the last fiscal year shows, however, that a loss of $297,079 on the operation of the ships would have been turned into a profit of $178,278 had rates been charged in a line with those of competing companies.

Losses Increase.

Built in the '50s of the last century to take care of Americans going from the east to California for gold, the Panama Railroad company has usually paid good dividends. Today the operation of the actual trans-continental road and the many commercial adjuncts of the Panama canal, such as the coaling stations, commissaries, and real estate interests in Colon and Panama, is showing a fair profit, but the steamship line is going ever deeper into the red.

During the fiscal year of 1931 the loss on the ships amounted to $244,696, which was $52,283 less than the loss in the last year.

"Freight for the account of the Panama canal, the war, navy, and other departments of the government was carried at a reduction of 25 per cent from tariff rates," the report states. "Passenger traffic for account of those departments, including employés of the canal and their families, was carried at reductions from tariff rates that ranged from 25 to 80 per cent. These reductions in freight and passenger charges amounted to $477,357. Had regular rates been paid a profit of $178,278 would have been shown.

Revenue Slumps.

"The revenue from freight, passengers and mail was $1,231,241, a decrease of $287,242 from the previous fiscal year.

"The operating expenses, which include depreciation charges amounting to $126,843, were $1,528,322, a decrease of $234,858 from last year.

"The tonnage carried was 140,429, a decrease of 23,035 from last year.

"The number of passengers carried for account of the government was 6,977, a decrease of 897 from 1931."

An effort is again being made in steamship circles to have the government sell these ships, but Panama canal authorities are against it. The latter contend that it is essential to the operation of the canal that the governor, who is president of the Panama Railroad company, have control over the line, and that the American employés of the canal be entitled to the reduced rate in transportation to and from the United States in accordance with their original contracts of service.

Canal employés pay $30 between New York and Panama, unless they are old employés of construction days, in which case the rate is $20. These charges apply also to members of their families or dependents. The regular rate to nonemployés is $100.

PRESS INQUIRY ON ORDER TO EXPEL TRIBUNE WRITER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Jan. 11.—The Anglo-American Press association at its meeting today discussed the French police authorities' expulsion order against Alex Small, staff writer on the European edition of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE—an order which was lifted later. It was decided that the president of the press association should see Police Prefect Chiappe and try to learn whether the quashed order against Small was based on anything written by Small—information thus far impossible to obtain. The police of France are not required to give any reason for expulsion orders.

German Schoolgirl Film Banned by Italian Censor

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The Italian government today banned the showing in Rome of the German girls' school film "Maedchen in Uniform." The action was taken after the Vatican organ Osservatore Romano had declared the picture should be suppressed. Commenting on the ban the newspapers said that "perhaps censorship over censorship would be the most practical fact under the circumstances." This statement was prompted by the fact that the picture already had been shown without interference in other Italian cities. The ban was ordered on the ground that the film was immoral.

Mrs. Alma Newton Anderson.

The trial of the $500,000 suit brought against Ernest R. Graham, noted Chicago architect, by Mrs. Alma Newton Anderson, novelist, will open today with the selection of a jury in the court of Superior Judge Paul McWilliams. Details of the action will be revealed for the first time when attorneys make their opening statements.

In her declaration Mrs. Anderson charged Graham and Thomas McGuire, a private detective, conspired to harass her in an attempt to ruin her career and health in 1929. She said she and Mr. Graham had been friends, but quarreled in 1928. Shortly after their quarrel Mr. Graham married Mrs. Ruby Leffingwell.

Mr. Graham has said he knows of no reason for the action. McGuire has said he never heard of Mrs. Anderson and that he knows Mr. Graham only slightly. Mrs. Anderson is the author of "An Old Fashioned Romance," a novel published in 1924. She is preparing a volume of political essays for publication.

SENATE MOVES TO STRENGTHEN HOUSE BEER BILL

Plans Changes to Meet Court Test.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—The senate judiciary subcommittee headed by Chairman John J. Blaine [Rad., Wis.], will begin redrafting the Collier 3.2 per cent beer bill tomorrow. The aim is so to rewrite the measure as to increase the possibility that it will be approved by the President and left undisturbed by the United States Supreme court.

The judiciary subcommittee at a meeting this morning agreed that the Collier measure must be revised and laid tentative plans for its revision. In its new form the bill is expected to so amend the Volstead act as to provide no penalties for the manufacture and sale of beer of 3.2 per cent alcoholic content or less.

Strengthens Bill with Court.

The sponsors of this pogram say the Supreme court would then be forced either to accept the beer law or to declare the whole Volstead act unconstitutional. This would leave the eighteenth amendment with no federal regulatory statute.

Although the decision to revise the Collier bill is certain to retard its passage through the senate, wet leaders of both houses seemed in agreement that the subcommittee had taken the wisest course. Senator Millard E. Tydings [Dem., Md.], one of the most influential of the senate wets, said thta he thought the move to revise the bill was a step in the right direction.

Rainey Approves Change.

"I am in agreement that the Collier bill should be revised," said Majority Leader Henry T. Rainey [Rep., Ill.], of the house. "As it now stands it would not permit brewers to advertise their products. The bill should be so redrawn as to permit the makers of beer to advertise it so that sales will be increased and revenues boosted. I think that the house will approve a revised bill so long as the alcoholic content is not reduced and the country is given real beer."

An amendment to the Collier bill permitting the nation-wide advertising of beer was proposed in the house today by Representative E. F. Erk [Rep., Pa.], at the request of the Pennsylvania Newspaper association.

Several Proposals Offered.

Senator Blaine said today that several proposals for altering the Collier bill have been offered. He said that these were being whipped into shape for consideration by the whole committee tomorrow.

One plan put forward calls for changing the figures one-half of one per cent, as written into the Volstead act, to 3.2 per cent. There would thus be no penalties for the sale and manufacture of beer of 3.2 per cent content of alcohol or less by weight.

Weds to Get Job Paying $2 a Day for Two Days Month

New Liberty, Okla., Jan. 11.—(AP)—As he waited in a line of job seekers, Sam Rittenhouse, 30, single, was told only married men were being accepted. Other applicants took up a collection for a marriage license. Rittenhouse departed and came back with Mrs. Rittenhouse, nee Miss Elsie Marritt, 20. But he still lacks a job. If he gets the one he is seeking it will mean two days of work monthly at $2 a day.

INDIANA STATE BEER CONTROL BILL READY; HERE ARE THE DETAILS

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Confident of modification or repal of the volstead act by the national congress, leaders of the Indiana legislature have prepared a state beer control bill which will set up machinery for regulating breweries and sale of their products.

The measure provides:

That the governor name a director of excise to control sale of beer.

That 15 breweries only may operate in the state.

Limitation of jobbers to one in each county.

Limitation of dealers to one for each 20,000 population. No drinking on premises of dealers, who may deliver to homes.

Serving of one quart to a person at restaurants and eating places in clubs, hotels, trains, and boats, and setting up certain minimum serving capacities.

All beer must be sold in bottles.

Home brewing prohibited, violators to be fined $10 to $1,000.

The control bill is expected to produce a revenue of $7,000,000 annually in Indian together with features for manufacture and distribution of alcoholic beverages and medicinal liquors.

OFFERS MEASURE TO SLASH IOWA TAXES ONE-THIRD

State Would Be Forced to Cut Operating Cost.

Des Moines, Ia., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—State Senator O. P. Bennett [Rep.] of Mapleton today proposed that this year's tax collections be cut one-third and those of the next two years by 40 per cent.

He introduced three bills. In addition to two on tax reduction, he offered one to reduce penalties for nonpayment of taxes.

"What the taxpayer requires is immediate action," Bennett declared. "The house is on fire and the relief is needed without delay."

The bill for a 1933 reduction would provide that the county treasurer should reduce all general taxes on real and personal property except moneys and credits, by one-third.

Huge Cut in Revenue.

This would mean a reduction for the state as a whole from about 90 million dollars to about 60 million.

The county treasurer would refund a third to persons who already have paid their taxes.

The state and local governments would be forced to operate on the reduced income.

"Experience has shown that compulsory tax reduction is the only really effective method," Bennett said.

In relation to taxes to be collected in 1934 and 1935, one of the bills would provide that levies could not exceed 60 per cent of those made in 1932 for 1933 collection. This would limit taxes for those years for the state as a whole to about 54 million dollars. Special assessments would not be affected.

Reduces Interest Rates.

The third bill would reduce the rate of interest and penalties on delinquent real and personal taxes from 1 per cent a month to one-half of 1 per cent, but would retain the 5 per cent penalty on personal taxes delinquent Dec. 1.

The bill strikes out on tax sales the 8 per cent penalty and also the 8 per cent penalty where subsequent taxes are paid under the tax sale. These changes will avoid unjust penalties and will prevent many foreclosures, since mortgagees will not regard a tax lien with only 8 per cent interest as dangerous, Bennett believes.

Taking economy as a keynote, the house committee on committees today submitted to the chamber a list of 63 committee clerks for ratification instead of the customary 96. If the salaries are set at $3.50 per day instead of the $4 paid in former sessions, the saving will amount to $17,000.

CITY GETS RIGHT TO USE OLD CANAL AS REFUSE DUMP

The city yesterday was given permission to use the old Illinois and Michigan canal between Western and Damen avenues as a free dumping site and three other free sites were opened for use. As a result it was expected that there would be no reason for a recurrence of the strike of city dump workers, which temporarily halted garbage and ash removal last Tuesday.

The dump workers, employed at sites for the use of which the city pays a fee, went on strike on orders from Michael Carrozzo, head of several unions of city laborers.

Mayor Cermak, however, asserted that the strike was for the purpose of forcing the city to pay higher fees for sites.

FIND SCHOOLBOY PATROLS SAVING LIVES OF YOUNG

There were 22 per cent fewer children killed in automobile accidents in Chicago during 1932 than in 1931, it was announced yesterday by the Chicago Motor club. Figures compiled by the accident prevention department of the club show 124 children killed in 1932, as compared with 159 in 1931.

Charles M. Hayes, president of the club, said much of the credit for the reduction in automobile fatalities among children should be given to the accident prevention education, now a part of the activities in public schools.

"One of the most powerful influences operating in behalf of the safety of children is the schoolboy patrol," he said. "These boys, who stand at street corners and conduct the younger children across streets, actually are saving lives."

AUDIT OF CHARITY COAL IS READY FOR PROSECUTOR

Joint Relief Board Will Meet Today.

A completed audit of all the charity coal delivered by F. Bieschke & Sons, whose contract was voided by the Illinois Emergency Relief commission when deliveries of a cheaper grade than specified were detected, will be turned over to Assistant State's Attorney William A. Rittenhouse by the commission today, according to the chairman, Edward L. Ryerson Jr.

The audit will reveal that the Bieschke company delivered virtually no fuel of the grade specified, it was learned. Audits of the deliveries of six other former contractors have been started by the commission, Mr. Ryerson said. These six companies are still delivering charity coal, pending the award of new contracts.

Dealers Under Investigation.

The six former contractors now being investigated by the commission's auditors are the Reiner Coal company, Murray Coal company, Michael F. Hughes Coal company, Reading Coal company, Capitol Coal and Coke company, and the Wisconsin Lime and Cement company. Their contracts were canceled when they admitted delivering cheaper fuel than they were being paid for.

Mr. Ryerson also announced four appointments to a joint committee composed of members of the commission and the Cook county board which will have final authority in matters pertaining to relief administration in the county. The commission's members on the joint committee will be Mr. Ryerson, Joseph M. Cudahy, Victor A. Olander, and Wilfred S. Reynolds. The county board members are Commissioners Peter M. Kelly, Maurice F. Kavanagh, William Busse, Amelia Sears, and Marie Plumb.

Committee Meets Today.

The joint committee will meet this morning for the first time, Commissioner Kelly announced. It will consider the plan of County Commissioner Walter la Buy for the elimination of waste in relief, and a request by Commissioner la Buy that the Sargent committee on public expenditures be asked to study the mounting cost of relief.

Bids on the new charity coal contracts, opened by the county board on Tuesday, have been tabulated by Frank H. Chambers, county supervisor of public service, and will be considered by the joint committee. The relief commission has opposed the bids, considering them too high because of the strict specifications under which they were obtained, and its members on the joint committee are expected to demand that the bids be thrown out.

JUDGE HELPS TO CONVICT YOUNG CHURCH THIEVES

CRIMINAL COURT.

Hugo Achino, larceny, sentenced to 1 year in the Bridewell; Joseph Rukavina, confidence game, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; John L. Carroll and Bernard Andrews, larceny, sentenced to 1 to 10 years each in the penitentiary; William Welch, confidence game, sentenced to 1 to 10 years in the penitentiary; Frank Garcia, murder, sentenced to 14 years in the penitentiary by Judge Michael Feinberg.

Judge J. William Brooks, formerly assigned to the Boys' court, returned to that court yesterday as a prosecuting witness against two youths accused of robbing an offering receptacle in St. Andrews Catholic church, 3546 North Paulina street. The defendants, Michael Zellmer, 20 years old, 2850 North Racine avenue, and Henry Bruecriman, 19 years old, 2736 Southport avenue, were given sentences of 60 days each in the house of correction.

Judge Brooks told the presiding jurist, Harold P. O'Connell, that he was addressing 400 members of the Holy Name society on the subject, "Delinquency of Boys," in a hall adjoining the church at the time of the robbery. His speech was interrupted by a cry for help from a woman in the church. Judge Brooks ran to the church with the Rev Msgr. W. R. Griffin and they seized the boys.

The Rev. Msgr. Griffin was also in court yesterday. He asked Judge O'Connell to be lenient with the defendants.

AURORA POLICE KILLER SUSPECT ESCAPES JAIL

Gastonia, N. C., Jan. 12 [Thursday]. —(AP)—Frank Williams, wanted in Aurora, Ill., for slaying a policeman, and George Martin, one of his confederates in the recent Merchants and Farmers bank robbery at Stanly, were among eight prisoners who escaped from the county jail here early today.

Federal authorities here said Williams was known in Aurora and other cities where he has criminal records as William Von Gundy.

Martin is said to be wanted in Los Angeles.

The men and six prisoners held for lesser crimes sawed their way out through the roof of their cell block while officers were several miles away at the scene of an automobile theft, which resulted in a chase and a wreck which proved fatal to Reid Davis, the thief.

KING OF SWEDEN URGES REFLATION; BOOSTS BUDGET

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 11.—King Gustav opened the new riksdag today with a speech advocating reflation to turn the tide of the depression. He also submitted the highest budget Sweden has known since the post-war boom years.

The king announced his government intended to relieve the idle by a comprehensive scheme of public works and also by considering a system of unemployment insurance. The speech showed that the government had accepted the advice of the younger school of expansionist economist, who contend that the depression has now reached the point where only state stimulation can set the wheels of the economic machinery revolving again.

The proposed budget totals 1,029,000,000 kroner [$188,409,900 at the current exchange], as compared with 896,000,000 kroner [$164,000,000] last year. It provides many increases in taxation, including a 20 per cent increase in the income tax rate, a heavy increase in estate duties, and higher taxes on liquor and tobacco. A total of 240,000,000 kroner [$44,000,000] is to be borrowed for public works and relief of the idle.

J. S. Presses Greece to Open Insull Case Again

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

ATHENS, Greece, Jan. 11. — Although the ministry of foreign affairs, as well as the American legation, maintains silence, it is credibly learned that American authorities are exerting pressure upon the Greek foreign office to reopen the Samuel Insull extradition case. The pressure, however, will probably remain in abeyance until the return of Leland B. Morris, American chargé d'affaires, from a trip to Salonica.

HITLER DISBANDS ONE DIVISION OF STORM TROOPERS

Nazi Movement Said to Be Heavily in Debt.

NUREMBERG, Germany, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The Franconian division of 12,000 National Socialist storm troops was temporarily dissolved today by Adolf Hitler, the party chief, as the result of a factional dispute in the local party headquarters.

Willy Stegmann, a member of the reichstag, was dismissed as provincial commander for refusal to execute Hitler's orders.

Needs $1,000,000 at Once.

BERLIN, Jan. 11.—(AP)—One million dollars and the problem of how to lay hands upon them, a man excellently connected with German industrial circles disclosed today, explains Adolf Hitler's sudden trip to Berlin after his Cologne confab with formed Chancellor Franz von Papen.

Hitler's National Socialist movement was generally reported heavily in debt, estimated obligations ranging from two to three million dollars. Most pressing were said to be obligations totaling about $1,000,000.

Hitler's financial backers, who are industrialists of the Rhineland and the Ruhr valley, agreed, through Baron von Papen, to help Hitler out of his difficulties to the extent of 4,000,000 marks [nearly equivalent to $1,000,000] on condition that the country would not be thrown into new turmoil of reichstag elections.

Would Postpone Reichstag.

Hitler therefore came to Berlin, it was explained, to confere with President Herman Goering of the reichstag, also a Nazi leader, with a view of finding ways and means of postponing reassembly of the reichstag, scheduled for Jan. 24, at least until March. This would give the Nazis opportunity of sidestepping any projected nonconfidence votes against the Von Schleicher cabinet. Meanwhile Chancellor von Schleicher will attempt to get Nazis to join the cabinet under him.

Junkers Are Rebuked.

BERLIN, Jan. 11. — (AP) — The government today rebuked powerful junkers represented in the Landbund [National Agrarian league], announcing its intention no longer to receive officers of this organization. The Landbund has been urging an extreme protectionist policy.

A government communique said a delegation issued an abusive press statement declaring the government's agrarian policy goes even beyond Marxism and "pillages agriculture for money bag interests," shortly before an audience with President von Hindenburg, Chancellor Kurt von Schleicher, and two cabinet ministers this afternoon, without the latter's knowledge.

Calling the agrarianists disloyal, the government said in its communique it would not let the breach interfere with its efforts in behalf of agriculture.

SERBIAN LEADERS UNITE IN DEMAND TO OUST DICTATOR

Report King to Leave for Rumania Today.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Jan. 11. —(AP)—Demanding a "new form of the state based on the free will of all citizens and all parties," Ljuba Davidovich and Jonan Jobanovich, leaders of the Serbian Democratic and Serbian Peasant parties, respectively, tonight issued a manifesto in the name of their parties. The manifesto assails the dictatorship and supports the recent demands of Croat and Slovene leaders for equal treatment for all peoples of Jugo-Slavia.

The manifesto, significantly, was issued a few hours after the government press had vehemently attacked a "back to 1918" manifesto of the Slovene leader, former Premier Anton Koroshetz, as treasonable, and in the midst of rumors that King Alexander and Queen Marie were departing for Rumania tomorrow to confer with King Carol.

Hint King Is Fleeing.

A Rumanian visit in January already had been announced as a purely family visit, but in view of the rapidity of developments in Jugo-Slavia recently there was a widespread inclination to attach more than customary importance to it.

Davidovich and Jobanovich accuse the dictatorship of having "destroyed the fundamental idea on which the union of the Serbs, Croats, and Slovenes was founded."

"We demand a new order in Jugo-Slavia," they said, "so that equilibrium shall be established between the different domains and so that the most honest and capable men can enter into the government and the guidance of the people.

Assail Supremacy of Groups.

"To have the free good will of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes, their particular interests must be respected, and the general interest must be guarded to preclude the possibility of one party seizing supremacy over the others or any group of parties being able to overpower a single or small group. Only thus can the progress of the whole country and the moral and material life of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes be assured."

In the first and second points of the four point manifesto the "rights of man" are proclaimed, and it is emphasized that the peasants are in the vast majority in Jugo-Slavia and are the bearers of Jugo-Slav national economic life and morality, and therefore they should be considered as the basis of all national life.

The recent manifesto issued by the Slovene party said that Slovenes in Jugo-Slavia must work for the unification of a Slovene nation and must act as the center of attraction for their colleagues in Italy, Austria and Hungary.

90 Year Old Physician Free of Slaying Charge

Wood, 90 year old physician and surgeon here for over 60 years in connection with an alleged illegal operation resulting in the death of Mrs. Ruth H. Elsesser, 32, of Lansing, was dismissed in Municipal court by Justice S. S. Hughes at Lansing today. Wood was a veteran of the civil war.

ROBBED BY HITCH HIKERS.

Plymouth, Ind., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Floyd West of Morley, Mich., today reported to Sheriff Charles Keller that he had been forced by two hitch hikers at the point of guns to drive his automobile 240 miles from Morley to Plymouth and had been robbed of $25.

SENATE REOPENS STOCK QUIZ WITH KREUGER CRASH

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—"Let the buyer beware" was again held up as the investment banker's motto as the senate banking and currency committee today renewed its stock exchange inquiry with a probe into the tortuous ramifications of the Kreuger & Toll smashup.

Donald Durant, partner in Lee, Higginson & Co., and sole American director of Kreuger & Toll, was the chief witness.

The senators inquired closely into the substitution of "bad" for "good" securities among the foreign government bonds put up to secure $26,500,000 of debentures sold in America as part of the 113 million dollars of Kreuger & Toll issues handled by Lee, Higginson.

They charged an "extreme laxity" in the methods used to protect the investor.

Another path of inquiry disclosed a secret telegram sent from Paris on March 12, 1932, the day of Kreuger's suicide, by Durant to his partners. Durant denied any duty to make the news of Kreuger's death public, though it was brought out that on that day orders from Paris resulted in the unloading of 148,000 Kreuger & Toll shares in this country.

Stock Taking Time

At the beginning of the year men should take stock of their wardrobes just as business houses always make an inventory of merchandise to determine their present worth. Those who have adhered to the better qualities will find that they have made a sound investment in distinctiveness, in durability and also in maintenance of personal appearance. Although during times of reduced incomes it may be necessary for one to limit variety, quality merchandise unquestionably is economy.

Men who can afford the best will find us well prepared to fulfil their most exacting requirements in Shirts to Measure and Haberdashery of superior character. These better qualities, like the best securities, are always found to be an asset when taking stock. One cannot consider lowering the character of his apparel any more than he can afford reducing his credit rating for they are correlative elements in business today.

The Facts About COLDS!

What a Cold is and What is Required for Relief

Clearing Up a Subject on Which Much Misinformation Has Been Promulgated!

EVERY YEAR colds take a heavy toll in health, time and money. This year the toll has been terrific. Colds have been rampant and influenza epidemic.

As a result of the prevalence of colds, much misinformation on the subject of colds has been spread about. There are so many "cures" for colds now that one wonders if there is anything good for anything else.

All kinds of self-appointed experts tell you what to do for a cold. Some tell you to soak your feet. Others tell you to fill your head with vapors. Still others tell you to wash your mouth and gargle. Still others advise chest rubs. Between them all you would be doing everything but painting yourself.

The joke of it—or rather the tragedy of it—is that these measures for the most part are like trying to cure dandruff by clipping the hair. They just don't reach the seat of the trouble.

An Internal Infection That May End in Flu!

It is well to remember what a cold is. A cold is an infection produced within the system by a germ, a germ so small that it will pass through the finest filter and hence it is easily spread. A cold, in other words, is an internal infection that may pave the way for flu.

A cold, therefore, plainly calls for internal treatment. External treatments are only surface treatments and obviously futile.

A cold also is something of a definite condition. Relief calls for certain definite effects. How, then, can a preparation that's good for half a dozen things besides colds be equally effective for colds? Yet medicines that are good for neuritis, toothaches, halitosis, dandruff, etc., seven months of the year suddenly blossom out as cold remedies during the winter months! If there is anything that common sense dictates, it is a cold remedy for a cold.

Remember, a cold is nothing to trifle with nor to be superficial about. Be sensible in treating a cold. Do the common sense things.

To get rid of a cold you must kill the infection within the system and drive out the poisonous matter it has created.

That calls for a remedy that will do certain definite things.

The remedy called for is Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine because it does the four things necessary to thoroughly rout a cold.

First, it opens the bowels, gently but thoroughly, the first step in knocking a cold.

Second, it kills the cold germs and fever in the system.

Third, it relieves the headache and grippy feeling.

Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

For more than forty years Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine has been the standard cold and grippe tablet of the world, the formula always keeping pace with Modern Medicine. It is distinctly and expressly a cold remedy. Your own physician will frankly admit that he couldn't write a better prescription for a cold if he wanted to.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine contains nothing harmful and may be safely taken by young and old. It does not require you to stay indoors.

As a Measure of Safety

Get a package of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine today at any drug store and keep it handy all winter. At the first sign of a cold take a couple of the tablets and you will usually stop the cold right there. When colds are about, make it a practice to take a tablet or two every morning and night. This will do much to keep you safe from infection.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine now comes in two sizes—30c and 50c. Any dealer who tries to sell you a substitute is simply more interested in making a larger profit than he is in your welfare. Insist on getting what you ask for!

"MOIST THROAT" FOUND SECRET OF COUGH RELIEF

Your throat and bronchia tubes are lined with millions of pores like tiny bottles continually supplying moisture to the delicate tissues . . . until you "catch cold."

Then these "bottles" get plugged up, phlegm accumulates, affording dangerous germs a breeding place. Your throat feels hot and dry. Tickling, irritation and coughing set in.

Your cough will be cured only when the flow of the natural fluid is increased, loosening the phlegm so that it can be expelled. Many cough "remedies" contain numbing drugs which merely deaden the nerves . . . but don't get at the root of the trouble.

PERTUSSIN, a scientific remedy, which doctors have prescribed for many years, is the extract of a famous herb which opens the tiny glands, stimulates the flow of the throat's natural moisture and brings quick relief. It helps nature heal that cough from the inside out.

When you feel that warning dryness take a few spoons of PERTUSSIN. It's absolutely safe. Sold at all drugstores, 60¢.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

WHY FEDERAL SPENDING IS EXTRAVAGANT.

One of the gravest aspects of government in the United States is the discrepancy of power between the states which receive most of the federal money and those which are taxed to provide it.

James M. Beck reminds us in "Our Wonderland of Bureaucracy" that 12 states in the fiscal year of 1931 contributed to the federal treasury in income taxes 6½ per cent of the total income tax receipts, while they received back 51½ per cent of their contribution. On the other hand, five states received approximately 5½ per cent of their contribution. Three states pay in more than one-half of the income tax receipts and receive back a very small percentage. Eliminating large and important contributions and including only direct subsidies from the federal treasury for non-federal purposes, there are 6 states which draw out $2 for every dollar they pay in. Two states receive more than $3 for every $1 they pay in, while New York, which contributes nearly a third of the revenue, receives less than 1 cent for every dollar it pays in.

It should be obvious that a distribution of power to tax and spend out of all proportion to contribution must, as it does, result in inordinate taxation and irresponsible expenditure. There can be no efficient restraint upon federal extravagance while this discrepancy exists, unless it be by the influence of a sense of justice and common interest in public economy among the states profiting, and this has not yet appeared.

One of the sources of this serious weakness is the fact that a state having 86 thousand inhabitants has the same voting strength in the senate as a state having over 12 million inhabitants. Seventeen states having collectively fewer inhabitants than New York have 34 votes in the senate. New York has two. Twenty-five states have a majority of the senate but only one-quarter of the population of the Union.

Before the sixteenth amendment authorizing the income tax, federal taxation was apportioned according to population and, making due allowance for the extraordinary expenditures of the war, federal taxes have increased at a staggering rate. In 1913 the total expenditures of the federal government were $724,000,000 in round numbers. They are now $4,700,000,000, an increase of 600 per cent.

But, it will be asked, why is this discrepancy of power in the senate not checked in the house of representatives, where appropriation bills must originate? It might be to a great extent if the representatives of the more populous states were conscious of the consequences of government extravagance. But the system of trading favors, logrolling, is stronger than the demands of economy or the sense of justice in taxation. The influence of committees is a controlling factor in action in the house. Citing one instance, Mr. Beck remarks that "it is a great wrong that 75 members of the house out of a total membership of 435 should pass upon appropriation bills, for the subsequent ratification of the committee of the whole house itself is generally perfunctory."

We cannot repeal equal representation in the senate. It is the one provision in the constitution which cannot be repealed, unless it were by unanimous consent of all the states or by revolution. But the house of representatives can reduce the evil of exorbitant taxation and ruinous expenditure if it wake up to their fatal consequences and use its powers of control. With federal bankruptcy staring us in the face perhaps this enlightenment will appear. That will depend upon the organization of a militant demand for drastic economy in the nation. It also calls for aggressive leadership for economy in congress. There are senators and representatives already aware that our present course promises disunity and disaster and are speaking out. It is significant that among these the best informed and most effectively outspoken is a member of the house, Representative Beck of Pennsylvania, whose influence we hope and expect to see increase rapidly as public opinion throughout the nation realizes that immediate drastic retrenchment of federal expenditures is of vital concern to all our people and to the perpetuity of our common welfare.

THE LAW'S DELAY.

Frank J. Loesch, president of the crime commission, adds to his long record of public service by his protest against the delays in the proceeding of trial and appeal in the sanitary trustees and Bain banks prosecutions. "The idea of punishment," says Mr. Loesch, "is to deter others who might commit similar crimes. At the rate the sanitary case is progressing it will be three years from the time of conviction before the judgment of the court is carried out. In the event, of course, the prosecution can uphold the conviction. In the space of three years citizens and public officials will have forgotten the sanitary district case and the effect of the hard earned conviction will be lost."

Furthermore, if the conviction is reversed, a second trial may fail because of the scattering of witnesses and for other reasons to which Mr. Loesch does not allude. The longer the delay the greater the opportunity for improper pressure, loss of definite memory, etc.

The Bain banks proceeding is also slow and unfortunately both cases are not peculiar examples of the law's delay. The courts and prosecuting agencies, coöperating, could correct this serious defect in the administration of justice in Cook county. Lawyers tend to procrastinate because of press of business even when they are zealous and conscientious. When time favors their clients they are likely to assist or create delays. Courts are altogether too complaisant and grant postponements too readily. It is an unfortunate manifestation of the fraternity of the law and of the desire of elected judges not to offend. Whatever the reasons, the result of delayed justice is largely to defeat itself. The community has a right to more efficient and expeditious administration.

IMPROVIDENT RELIEF.

A spokesman for Chicago relief agencies testified before a congressional committee the other day to the effect that 92 million dollars will not be enough to provide care for the idle in Illinois this year. Ninety-two million was the figure which had been set by some of his colleagues. He raised the ante to 120 million and wasn't sure that even that sum would cover the requirements.

The improvidence of the professional distributors of other people's money, as there illustrated, is a fair match for the improvidence of the idle. With that kind of thinking going on around us, it behooves the citizens of Chicago to take a more active hand in determining the appropriations for relief and in fixing the principles of distribution lest the relief of the idle engulf every one else in ruin. This community cannot afford to give away anything like 92 million dollars—much less 120 million—in 1933 over and above the ordinary charitable contributions. The absurdity of the proposal is suggested by the fact that the total collection to date of 1930 taxes in Cook county has been only 127 million dollars. Ninety-two million dollars is about six times the annual appropriation for the police department of Chicago, and Chicago has not been able to find the money to pay its policemen for months of faithful service. The national government, which is advancing these funds to the counties, is in turn borrowing it from the banks and is operating under a growing mountain of debt.

We are rapidly drifting into acceptance of the dole as an American political and social institution. Our dole has all the evils inherent in any scheme for state support of the idle in idleness. It encourages men to think that the world owes them a living, which is bad, and it encourages them, in addition, to think that the world can afford to support them in idleness, which is, perhaps, worse. Our dole is the more vicious in that it is not even masked in the guise of unemployment insurance to which the man now in idleness has contributed. It is simon-pure largess by the state and it must lead, as all such schemes have ever led, to the degradation of the recipient and the destruction of free government and institutions.

There is no attempt here to overlook or to minimize the difficulties under which thousands of families in Chicago today are laboring. Employment is scarce and industrial and commercial dislocations have been severe and protracted. But the fact cannot be overlooked that ever increasing taxation for relief funds can only make matters worse by throwing more men and women out of employment and closing more factories.

Two matters deserve the attention of those in charge of relief administration. One is that the declining price level of commodities justifies a careful restudy of the amount of money required to support the idle. If $25 was enough a year ago, $15 may be sufficient now.

The other, and more important, matter is to put an end as speedily as possible to the distribution of relief funds without any return in service from the recipients. At first blush the made-work programs appear to offer a way out, but on examination they are not so satisfactory. The men employed on these jobs are obviously aware of the futility of much that they are doing and conduct themselves accordingly. As Mr. Frank D. Loomis pointed out in a cogent letter published a few days ago in the Voice of the People, "New means of self-support is the only way out of the present morass." It is to finding those means rather than to fabricating fantastic estimates of relief fund requirements that the friends of the unfortunate will devote their attention.

Editorial of the Day

[Bloomington, Ill., Pantagraph.]

It is said that when Judge Henry Horner, governor elect of Illinois, returned to his home in Chicago Saturday after his southern sojourn he found 125,000 applications for state appointments waiting for his consideration. This is even more than had been estimated a month ago, and at least four times as many as applied for jobs when Louis L. Emmerson, the retiring Republican governor, came into office in 1929.

Judge Horner and his party advisers have a long way yet to go before issuing their first slate of appointments. Only a few places are at all determined, one of them being, according to authentic information, that of head of the state tax commission. Scott Lucas of Havana has been slated for the place and unless he refuses it to resume private law practice he can have it without asking. A number of other names are concerned in the gossip as to the new appointments, but as yet this is only gossip.

The year 1933 is sure to prove a year of bitter disappointments to thousands of good Illinois Democrats. A summary of the number of names on state pay rolls taken several months ago showed the total to be 26,013, or about one in five of the number of applications. And of this total there were a large number of temporary appointments. It is said that only 16,000 persons are receiving regular salaries from the state. And of this number about 75 per cent are under civil service rules, making them subject to dismissal only on proved charges. This would leave only 4,000 positions in which Democrats may reasonably expect to displace Republicans. If Gov. Horner eliminates all unnecessary jobs, as he has promised to do, the 4,000 available places will be still more constricted.

Naturally not all the changes that are to be made can be brought about at once. They must come a few at a time. Consequently those awaiting offices are due for a considerable period of waiting and at the end the realization that there is nothing doing for the great majority of them.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

A MEMORY OF CHINGWANGTAO.

Chingwangtao is now finding its way onto the front page, thanks to the Japs (or no thanks to the Japs, just as you feel about it). It's a quaint little Chinese village close up to the Great Wall of China; in fact, it was probably there long before the Great Wall. It's a sleepy, quiet, old fashioned place, and about all that we remember of our stay there during the Russo-Japanese war was a little interview between a young British officer and a Japanese captain on which we were privileged to listen in.

The British officer, the adjutant of the Sikh battalion quartered at Chingwangtao, told us he was expecting a visit from a Japanese officer to protest against the killing of several Japanese soldiers, who the Japs claimed had been put to death by the Sikhs. A week or so before a Sikh had been found dead from knife thrusts in a remote quarter of the town. The Sikh was buried with full military honors. The next day two fresh graves were found by the side of the Sikh's grave, one on each side and each one containing a dead Jap.

Several days passed and two more Sikhs were found dead from knife wounds. They were duly buried, and the next morning each grave had on either hand a fresh grave—and in each grave a dead Japanese soldier. As the adjutant finished his recital the Japanese captain was announced.

"This thing is perfectly outrageous!" exclaimed the Japanese captain. He had been educated at Harvard and spoke very good English.

"Oh, quite," said the British adjutant.

"Every time one of your men," went on the Japanese captain, "is found dead, why, the next morning two of our soldiers are likewise found dead and buried by the grave of the Sikh."

"A most remarkable coincidence," said the adjutant as he lit a fresh cigaret.

"Just because one of your Indian troopers is killed," went on the Japanese captain with great indignation, "is no proof that soldiers of the Japanese company station here killed him."

"Oh, none whatever," observed the adjutant, "nor is the fact that there are two Japanese invariably found buried by the side of the murdered Sikh any real proof that Sikhs killed and buried them."

"Another remarkable coincidence," said the Japanese captain, sarcastically.

"Oh, quite!" agreed the adjutant.

"Let me ask you," said the captain, "haven't these Sikhs a belief that if one dies by violence two of the people suspected of the killing must be buried by his side to accompany him to paradise?"

"That would be Mohammedans," purred the adjutant. "The Sikhs are not Mohammedans—anything but. And the last thing a Sikh would want when he entered heaven would be a couple of Japs trailing him around all over the place. My word! I couldn't stand it myself."

"When is this thing going to stop?" demanded the Japanese captain.

"I fancy," said the adjutant, blowing smoke wreaths in the air, "it will cease as soon as dead Sikhs are no longer found scattered carelessly here and there around the village of a morning. By the way, captain, how many Japanese are stationed here?"

"Three hundred," replied the captain, stiffly. "Why?"

"Oh, nothing, answered the adjutant, "but whoever is doing this silly avenging angel thing seems to have some sort of a silly rule about it—two deceased Japanese for one departed Sikh."

"Well, what of it?" demanded the Japanese captain.

"I was only thinking," continued the British adjutant, "that we have two hundred Sikhs here and you have only three hundred Japs. You need, say, a hundred more——"

The Japanese captain slammed the door so hard when he left that it sounded like a cannon. But there were no more dead Sikh soldiers found lying carelessly here and there around Chingwangtao of a morning.

TO FUTILITY.

Hearing the little footsteps up the stairs,
I wonder, after all the hell I've had,
If life consists entirely of tares,
If all of it is utterly so bad?

Around me I have built a cynic's wall,
Cohesive, strong, inviolate it seems,
But when at meal-time two small voices call,
Life can be lived, do you not know . . . in dreams!

E. LESLIE SPAULDING.

THEY'RE INSISTING, some of the college papers there, that Greek letter fraternities be given the air down at Columbia university. But think of all the bulldog mascots that would be thrown out of work. And what else does a frat do besides teach the bulldog to sit in the front window with a pipe in its mouth? Oh, yes, they play mandolins. Well, then, think of how the mandolin manufacturers and teachers would suffer. Things are getting more complicated every minute.

SUNRISE.

The brown earth smells of crushed geranium leaves.
A branch of blooming kumquat sways gently in the breeze;
Dew drips from the tiny bell-shaped blossoms.
A cow moos in the distance below the purple hill.
The stars turn their faces to the blue wall of the sky
The round blade of the sun cuts through the horizon
Swarms of sparrows are seized by the craze of gossip

Inside of a gray hut, in the squatters' settlement,
A woman stares out of a window at the sunrise.

OYSTERS A GOOD FOOD.

SINCE the installation of measures for control demanded primarily by Illinois, a consumer state, there has been no report of any large epidemic caused by oysters. Two epidemics of typhoid fever spread by oysters occurred in that state, one on the heels of another. Instead of grumbling loudly and doing nothing, the authorities of Illinois, quite unsupported even by other consumer states, and some of their local authorities began a movement to force better methods in oyster sanitation. The result was beyond expectations. The national government, the producer states, and the industry took the matter in hand. Oysters are now so safe that the health people are willing to promote their use just as they promoted the use of milk when it was made safe a number of years before.

Oysters have certain peculiar values as food. They are very rich in minerals. According to prevailing opinions iodine ranks at the head of this list. The sea is about to get a corner on all the iodine in the world and unless man can find an adequate method of robbing the sea of its accumulation not only his own health but that of every animal he owns is liable to suffer.

Seaweed stands at the head of the list of sources of iodine. The time will come when man will be eating this weed, feeding it to his stock, and using it on his land possibly.

Next in line come lobsters, clams, and oysters. Various sea fish rank high, though not in the class with oysters. The meat of fresh water fish should contain more iodine than that of land animals. No vegetables from any land source compare with either seaweed or oysters in iodine content.

In addition to being rich in iodine, oysters are rich in iron, copper, and manganese. The value of manganese as an ingredient of human food is not determined, but we fully appreciate need of both iron and copper for health. All oysters contain copper, but the amount in oysters of a greenish hue is apt to be large. There is more than one reason for the green in many oysters, but in the main copper is the explanation of the hue.

The Welsh people have always known that eating oysters was a pretty good cure for the milder forms of anemia. Now that more is known of their mineral content, oysters are finding larger use as an aid in the cure of anemias. It is even proposed to use them as an alternative for liver in the treatment of pernicious anemia, because of certain other peculiarities of their composition. However, that point needs more investigation before it can be given serious consideration. Whether there are other values to be had from the mineral content of the bivalves remains to be seen.

Besides these sources of value there are the qualities of oysters as sources of vitamins and of calory elements that are the basis of commendation.

HONEY FOR SUGAR.

M. L. S. writes:

1. When one has diabetes is it safe to eat honey instead of sugar?
2. Is it safe to eat and drink cream and milk?
3. Do you think oranges, lemons, and grapefruit are all right?
4. What kinds of bread are best in this case?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Yes.
3. Yes.
4. Gluten bread, casein bread, soy bean bread.

You are going at this matter in the wrong way. In the treatment of diabetes dieting is all important. You have a serious disease. Treat it so. Living with diabetes is a man's size job. Unless you are willing to work intelligently and seriously at that job you will make a botch of it. The penalty you will pay for a poor job you can guess. Get one or more books on dieting in diabetes, and otherwise taking care of oneself. Study them. Put yourself in good medical hands. Get detailed advice suitable to your case. Carry it out intelligently and faithfully. Learn your job and make a success of it.

SECONDARY ANEMIA.

Miss E. T. writes: What is secondary anemia?

REPLY.

In secondary anemia the blood coloring matter is more deficient than are the blood cells. It is secondary to something else and usually something that is demonstrable. Among the bad habits that may cause it are: Eating too little iron foods (that is the reason many babies have it); constipation, staying indoors too much, wearing tight clothing. Among the diseases that cause it are tuberculosis and malaria. Some of the poisons cause it.

The obese are rather prone to secondary anemia. That may be from the diet they live on and their lack of exercise.

PROBABLY NOT HARMFUL.

Mrs. W. W. writes: Is it harmful to eat cereal which has been kept after cooking in an aluminum double boiler for 12 hours?

REPLY.

I don't think so, but why do it?

UNLAWFUL ENTRY.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—[Friend of the People.]—Is a man who entered this country illegally at the age of 19 in the year 1923 elegible for American citizenship? Would he be deported if this matter became known to the authorities? If said man is married or became married to an American born girl would this change the situation? Would his social affiliations and established record as an upright and honest person be of any help?

C. G.

You are advised that an alien who entered the United States unlawfully in 1923 and has since reminded here may not be deported at this late date on account of illegal entry because of the statute of limitations. His entry cannot be legalized under existing law and he is, therefore, not eligible for naturalization.

The marriage of a male alien to a citizen of the United States will give a nonquota to the alien if the marriage occurred prior to July 1, 1932, and preference within the quota if the marriage occurred on or after that date.

Social affiliations and record of good behavior subsequent to entry do no change the situation in the case of such alien so far as the immigration requirements are concerned.

K. I. ZIMMERMAN,
Assistant District Director of Immigration.

CONTRACT OR NOT?

Chicago, Jan. 5.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—A is the owner of a melon patch. He puts up a sign reading as follows: 1. "Whoever wishes to do so may take a melon from this patch upon promising to pay me 50c at the end of the month for each melon taken. I shall regard the taking of each melon as amounting to a promise to pay for it at the terms specified." A's neighbor, B, sees the sign and takes a melon on each of three successive days. A, who dislikes B, sends this message to B: 2: "Hereafter, if you take melons from my patch I shall regard your act as a promise to pay me $5.00 for each melon taken." B, after getting this notice, takes another melon, but tells A he will not pay more than the market value, or 40 cents. At the end of the month B refuses to pay A an thing. Can A recover, and if so, how much?

T. P. G.

1. It is a fundamental principle that there can be no contract without the element of agreement or mutual consent [13 C. J. 263]. We would say that the 50c offer by the seller was close enough to the 40c market price so that the facts stated would tend to imply an acceptance of the offer, but even here we would say that surrounding circumstances, such, for example, as that the melons were taken at night, might rebut the presumption of acceptance by showing an intended theft.

2. In view of the discrepancy between the seller's price of $5.00 and the market price of 40c, we would say that A is not in a position to prove that B has manifested an intent to accept his offer. B is liable in tort, or for the misdemeanor, but not on a contract. Your case is similar to the often discussed cases where the offer or attempts to provide that mere silence by the offeree shall constitute acceptance. See 13 C. J. 276.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

JANUARY 12, 1917.

WASHINGTON.—The reply of the entente allies to President Wilson's appeal is believed by the majority of administration officials to close the door to peace in Europe for another year at least. While disclaiming any intention of exterminating the Teutonic peoples, the allies state terms of peace which would result in the humbling of Germany and Austria-Hungary and the expulsion of Turkey from Europe. "It goes without saying," concludes the note, "that if the allies wish to liberate Europe from the brutal covetousness of Prussian militarism it never has been their design, as has been alleged, to encompass the extermination of the German peoples and their political disappearance. That which they desire above all is to insure a peace upon the principles of liberty and justice, upon the inviolable fidelity to international obligation with which the government of the United States has never ceased to be inspired. United in the pursuits of this supreme object, the allies are determined, individually and collectively, to act with all their power and to consent to all sacrifices to bring to a victorious close a conflict upon which they are convinced not only their own safety and prosperity depend but also the future of civilization itself." Belgium, in addition to joining with her allies in the reply, sent an individual note in which the conquered kingdom makes a stirring appeal for American sympathy in its purpose to fight on till it wins freedom with reparation.

WASHINGTON.—The entente peace terms enumerated in the reply to the President are: Restoration of Belgium, Serbia, and Montenegro, with the payment of indemnities to each by Germany. Evacuation of northern France, southeastern Russia, and southern Rumania, with reparation to each by Germany. Reorganization of Europe "guaranteed by a stable regime and founded as much upon respect of nationalities and full security and liberty of economic development, which all nations, great or small, possess, as upon territorial conventions and international agreements suitable to guarantee territorial and maritime frontiers against unjustified attacks." Restoration to France of Alsace and Lorraine by Germany and to Italy of the former northern provinces by Austria. Liberation of Italians, Slavs, Rumanians, and Tcheco Slovaques (Czecho-slavs) from domination by the central powers, which would mean the cession of several outlying portions of Austria-Hungary to Russia, Rumania, Serbia, and Italy. Enfranchisement of the Armenians and other "populations subject to the bloody tyranny of the Turks." Expulsion of the Turkish empire from Europe, thus giving Constantinople to Russia. The allies promise that in the event of peace on these terms Russia will carry out her announced intention of conferring autonomy upon Poland.

WAR SUMMARY. — Berlin reports the capture of strongly fortified positions north of Oituz road in Rumania, after hand to hand fighting. Petrograd admits its troops were forced to retreat in this sector. London reports the capture of German trenches three-fourths of a mile long northeast of Beaumont Hamel; also the entry into enemy positions south of the Ancre. Berlin reports the repulse of the British north of Ypres. Petrograd reports the capture of villages in the region of Lake Babit, on the eastern front. German attacks on this front were beaten back. Berlin says Russian efforts to advance in this sector were repulsed. London reports the capture of six lines of entrenchments from the Turks covering Rafa, thirty miles from El Arish. A relief force of Moslems, seeking to aid the Turks, was destroyed.

NEW YORK.—The plant of the Canadian Car and Foundry company at Kingsland, N. J., a little town five miles beyond the Hudson to the northwest of the city, in which were stored several hundred thousand loaded three-inch shells awaiting shipment to Russia, was destroyed by fire and a series of explosions which continued for several hours. So far as could be learned no one was killed or injured, although it was said seventeen workmen were missing. No estimate of the loss was obtainable, but it was said it might reach $4,000,000. While it was estimated that nearly 500,000 shells exploded, primary fuses or caps had not been attached to them, and consequently their detonation did not cause the havoc that follows their explosion when used on European battle fronts. The roar of the shells, which sounded like a cannonade from heavy guns, was heard for miles.

RELIEVING THE FARMER OF TAXES.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—As I read your editorial suggesting the elimination of taxes on land allowed to lie fallow for the season I was very much pleased. I felt then and the more I think of it the more I conclude that you have a basic idea around which farm legislation of a practical nature is possible.

At the time I was president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association in 1921 farmers and manufacturers were having many meetings. After hundreds of hours of my time devoted to these conferences I was convinced that the permanent solution of the farm problem of surplus was devising some means by which farmers would voluntarily curtail their crops the year succeeding a surplus crop and that such automatic action on the part of the farmers should be accomplished without the creation of a large government bureaucracy.

National associations of farmers cannot exercise disciplinary measures on their members for the simple reason that the farmer has not any money up which he would sacrifice by disobedience.

Your suggestion of relieving the farmer of taxes on fallow land is the nearest approach to an automatic plan that will secure a large percentage of coöperation. I realize full well that great pressure would be brought by manufacturers who have plants completely shut down that such factories be relieved of taxes during the shutdown period, and that there are other analogous situations—in shipping, idle freight cars, etc.

I believe that such manufacturing and transportation interests could forego claim to tax elimination and that they would get quid pro quo through the stabilized purchasing power of the American farmer.

It would delight me to see THE TRIBUNE carry on an aggressive editorial warfare for your idea, getting the governors to meet for a conference and get somewhere.

THE SCHOOL BUDGET.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—In the same issue of THE TRIBUNE which contains the request for more money for the schools of Chicago [without a clear statement of what the plans are for spending this larger amount] also appears a report of the statement made by the president of Columbia university, from which the following is an extract:

"Before the university can do much more than it is now doing the elementary and secondary schools must bestir themselves really to educate the great mass of the populations and to leave off their dabbling in the muddy waters of the anti-philosophies and the pseudo-psychologies in which too many of these, in this land at least, are just now immersed."

Perhaps there are other items as well which are being dabbled in, to the muddying of more simple and useful studies.

T. C. POWELL.

INSULL.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 28.—Here is one view of the Insull matter. Because the view is not at all original is no reason why it should not be taken to heart.

Chicago owes much to Mr. Samuel Insull for the fact that it is recognized in the best civilized sense as a world city. To treat him bloodhound fashion cannot be termed gratitude.

The assertion that he should come back to face the music and if innocent of wrongdoing prove himself so is beside the point. He is timorous, so would any one be, over the prospect of the politically ambitious making a Roman holiday of him. The whole proceeding is perhaps correct in the letter, but the spirit is not pretty.

JULIUS B. COHN.

LOANS, NOT GIFTS.

Chicago, Dec. 29.—My suggestion is that all the money given the unemployed be loaned to them instead of given to them outright.

JAMES LAGOMARSINO.

AN ANALOGY FOR INFLATIONISTS.

Chicago, Jan. 6. — After reading so much about the idea of devaluating the dollar so as to have a larger quantity of money, I am tempted to offer another means of raising prices or costs. And my proposition is every bit as simple [meaning easy or foolish—you have your choice] as that of lessening the value of the dollar. I suggest that we cut our weights and measures in half, having, for instance, bushels of wheat, barley, etc., half as big as at present, and in their sale getting twice as much money as before. [Ahem, if the purchasers will stand for it.]

By such a plan the raiser of beef and swine could calculate on putting a doubled number of pounds of meat on the market to be sold at the present or the former "prosperity" prices. Our clothing would take twice as much yardage of material and consequently have a doubled price. And when good old beer at last is ready ye barkeeper will put half size glasses of it on the bar before the thirsty and get the same money he used to get for erstttime glasses of the cheering beverage.

Wouldn't all this be just glorious? Yes, if you could only hypnotize the consumer into believing it was all right. I hesitate to blow very strongly for my plan, as I am afraid of the hitches that might interfere with its being put over just as I fear the hitches that may [or will] develop if the devaluated dollar would come to stare us in the face. For one thing, every one would immediately ask, demand, or strike for materially higher wages and salaries commensurate with the altered measures of values. Perhaps 'tis better to bear the ills we have than to fly to others we know naught of.

A grain of gold is a grain of gold, no matter from which angle you look at it, and the old laws of supply and demand in respect to other things will ever continue. Had one the space one could preach a sermon about the dishonesty inherent in any attempt, successful or not, to change the value of any money unit — be it dollar, pound, franc, mark, or lira.

N. J. WERNER.

A PLAN FOR THE UNEMPLOYED.

Evanston, Ill., Jan. 5.—A peace time army might be immediately inaugurated consisting of all unemployed able-bodied single men to be transported to four or five camps in the United States, placed in uniforms, officered by regular army officers and army engineers, and then put at work to construct their own buildings, etc., after which, the spring planting of crops and other food preparations made so that they would be practically self-sustaining at the end of 1933.

Should the American factories reopen later on it would be a simple matter to transport these unemployed men to the new jobs at each individual factory.

A small bond issue [for the purchase of the land, say, for instance, 6,400 acres of farm land in the state of Iowa and the necessary lumber and materials] would put this plan over and would shortly relieve each state from providing relief for the single unemployed men in each state, and, incidentally, make better citizens; and the unemployed men would keep their self-respect.

PEGLER IN WASHINGTON.

Gary, Ind., Jan. 3.—Please let us have more from Pegler. Don't keep him on sports. Washington is his game preserve, and how he can bring down the high hats and swivel chair warmers. Sic him on to the bureaucrats and show them up and spare not one. With his ready pen [or typewriter] he knows how to tell of what he sees when lifting a board and looks for the bugs skipping for some dark places. More power to him in holding up to ridicule all officers, high and low and in between, who fail to walk the chalk mark. O for the recall system! It keeps officials in check.

Clotilde Patterns Are Designed By Experts for Tribune Readers

New Blouses Go Places in Fashion World

Clever Designers Present Many Types.

BY RUTH SEEGER.

If you don't decide that the most versatile of designers have had ten or more nimble fingers busy in the blouse collections of this new year, it will be because you have been too busy buying the clever new numbers to think such appreciative thoughts. But this is true! Every single new creation is a find, from the simple deceptively demure affairs with a twisted sidewise scarf collar to the elaborate sheer models that are going to make us all deliciously feminine and fragile for a change.

Be sure and save a few shekels for these ravishingly beautiful thin things . . . drag out your most effective lingerie, slip one of these wisps of either white or flesh toned sheer blouses over your head and watch the effect.

It's such a relief to find these flattering blouses . . . you'll see them made with short discreetly puffed sleeves that tie themselves in place, with rows of lace edged tucks that radiate in a wide circle up to the coquettishly tied high neckline. Wear them to soften the severity of a swanky blue, black or dark brown suit. And how everybody is going to like them.

Tweed prints are new and most effective with suits for immediate wear . . . . look for the new brown and white combinations, the silk itself is thick and wrinkled with fashionable care, the wriggly smart tweed patterns look even more tweed than wool. White pique collars are twisted and interlaced between slits in the throat sections and absurdly small cuffs of white pique accent both short and long sleeves.

Blouses are obligingly equal to any skirt you may own. You may wear the new models over, under, half out, or practically any way you choose. Necklines are as varied as the weather, you can find stern affairs that button skimpily though fashionably high around your collar bone . . . you can find shallow oval effects . . . . dizzy cut-out designs . . . intricate in-and-out-again mazes and of course the good old V necklines that never leave us.

A new dusty pink crinkled crêpe that looks like over-wrinkled crêpe tissue paper has long sleeves that are of the kimono beginning, but that end slim and slender from the elbow to the wrist. The neckline is high and snooty with two turn-over tabs that look like pink ears flopping over the frontline and then you are stunned with the four covered silk buttons that march down the back instead of the front. Other knockout colors are yours for a distinctly agreeable sum and the gray numbers will win your last savings.

Some slightly dizzy wag has dubbed the new zig-zag striped wool mock blouses the "surplice-settes," and despite the funny name they ought to be spectacularly successful. They are gay, cheerful and amazingly practical. They are sleeveless . . . two triangular pieces of striped wool are so assembled that the gal who buys a model slips it over her curls, crosses the thing over her chest, winds the sash around her middle and the result, a good looking surplice closing sweater blouse that keeps the anatomy warm and fashionable under the tight fitting suit coat. Not bad at all for the chilled though extra layer hating female!

Shoulder Trick from Paris Adds to Smartness of This Frock

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

This new way of widening the shoulders has come to us from Paris. It is a narrow circular flounce placed to simulate a cape. The leg-o'-mutton sleeves are smart. A mouse gray shade in rabbit's hair woolen made the original dress, and fuschia red buttons and suede belt give a bright color note.

The pattern, No. 3266, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36 and 38 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Moderns Win Dispute Over Art Awards

Carry Off Prizes in Show of City's Artists.

BY ELEANOR JEWETT.

The thirty-seventh annual exhibition by artists of Chicago and vicinity opens this afternoon in the east wing galleries of the Art institute. It is a curious show. There is a mingling of modern and conservative work sufficient to make one's head whirl. The two kinds of painting are so diametrically opposed that one wonders who can find satisfaction in both. Yet, as we all known, a modern painting can be a gorgeous piece of work. Perhaps the modernism illustrated here is at fault; much of it, obviously is slipshod and careless painting.

The prize awards were announced last night at a dinner held at the Art institute for the exhibiting artists. There will be much criticism of the awards, all of which with the exception of one given by the Municipal Art league, were bestowed upon modern pictures, disregarding for the moment the one or two sculpture prizes.

The criticism will be based upon the failure of the two jury system, which functioned well in choosing canvases for the exhibit, representative of their respective schools, the conservative and the modern, but collapsed when combined to award the prizes. The result was a deadlock, the three conservatives opposing the three modernists on each award.

The sculpture jury was called in to cast the deciding votes, but a majority of its three members apparently allowed their modern leaning to overawe their sense of fairness and threw their support to their confrères. Last Sunday we told of this situation as a rumor; last night it became an unfortunate reality.

We repeat that to shower honors where they are not due lessens their significance. If the two jury system is to be retained in the future for the selection of hangings, it is quite obvious that an impartial deciding vote must be included if the same juries are to award the prizes.

The Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan medal and purchase prize of $750 went to "Pink House" by Francis Chapin. This award was made by the committee on painting and sculpture of the Art institute, consisting of Charles H. Worcester, Cyrus McCormick Jr., Chauncey McCormick, Arthur T. Aldis, Percy B. Eckhart, John A. Holabird, Frederic C. Bartlett and Max Epstein. It is doubtful whether their taste in pictures will be backed by general public approval.

The Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan prize of $500 was awarded to "Long Haired Cactus" by Laura van Pappelendam. The Mr. and Mrs. Jule F. Brower prize of $300 went to "Winter with Flowers" by Jean Crawford Adams. The W. R. Hearst prize of $300 was given to "Portrait" by Olga Chassaing. The William and Bertha Clusmann prize of $200 went to Jan Fabion for "Crucifixion." The Joseph N. Eisendrath prize of $200 was given to Boris Gilbertson for "Philosopher."

The Harry A. Frank prize of $150 was awarded to Constantine Pougialis for "Two Girls." The Clyde M. Carr prize of $100 for a meritorious work in landscape went to Aaron Bohrod for "Street." The Chicago Woman's Aid prize of $100 was given to "Stone Figure" by Louis Pain. The Chicago Woman's club prize of $100 went to Rifka Angel for "Circus Scene." The Municipal Art league prize of $100 for portraiture was given to Karl A. Buehr for "Portrait of Arthur Cummings Jr." The Robert Rice Jenkins Memorial prize of $50 was given to "Portrait of a Young Girl" by Robert Joy Wolff.

The Municipal Art league prize of $200 is yet to be awarded as is the important gold medal of the Association of Chicago Painters and Sculptors. The exhibition will continue to March 5.

Music Trades Pledge Support to Temple Plan

Hear of Programs for Fair at Dinner.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

Ungrudging support to Frederick Stock, the Friends of Music, and the new Temple of Music was pledged by the Chicago Piano and Organ association through its president, Louis C. Wagner, at its thirty-fourth annual dinner at the Auditorium hotel last night. The organization, representing the music trades of Chicago, was addressed by Mr. Stock in an appeal for aid in the movement for the music temple and by Dr. Allen D. Albert, who explained the musical plans of A Century of Progress.

"If we make a success of the Temple of Music, and we will," said Mr. Stock, "we will rehabilitate the whole cause of music. It is an effort to coordinate all musical activities and thereby benefit the entire profession. We will be able to present greater music for Chicago and better music than Chicago has ever had. We must get music out of the doldrums."

"Everything that is being planned for the Century of Progress exposition," said Dr. Albert, "has one point in view—its survival value to the world quite as much as its present accomplishment. In music we wish to demonstrate that America, by teaching music, can sweep up to a new musical renaissance.

"We must deal with things of beauty as well as material things. Our trouble has been that out of fourteen great expositions in recent years not one has given serious thought to music. But we propose three great things—the first, a series of concerts by commercial groups; the second, a series by organized choirs and national groups which shall include folk dancing, and, third, a series of concerts by those who are studying—high school choruses, orchestras, bands, and similar undertakings."

President Wagner announced that an executive committee meeting of the association would be held in a day or two and that at that time a campaign committee would be appointed to engage in the sale of subscriptions for the Temple of Music.

The Philharmonic String quartet, all members of the Chicago Symphony orchestra, gave a concert in the foyer of Orchestra hall last evening. It is an extremely able body and one growing in popularity, as a well filled hall gave witness. Two numbers were played—the first, Beethoven's Quartet in E flat, opus 74; the second, a quartet new to Chicago, Dohnanyi's in A minor, opus 33. It is well written, warm, and melodious, perhaps not Dohnanyi at his peak of inspiration, but a good second choice. It was superbly played.

Old Virtues Continue to Be Chief Qualities for Marriage Success

BY DORIS BLAKE.

What are the most important qualities in married life?

Honesty and loyalty on the part of both; domestic efficiency on the part of the wife, and intelligence as a highly appreciated asset on the part of the man! This is the voluntary testimony of former students of the University of Omaha and veterans of twenty years of marriage, and couples that have worked out their married life on the terms just named.

Well, no one is in a better position to name the required virtues than those who've weathered twenty years of marriage successfully, unless it be pairs that have celebrated their silver wedding and more.

In certain young married groups among us honesty, as a desirable trait, is discounted. In fact, there has grown up a school of "keep them guessing" encouraged, for the most part, by men and women who haven't made a go of their own marriages. A known divorced mother gave her daughter this advice on her wedding eve: "Don't tell him everything. Don't let him know everything you are doing. Be a bit mysterious with him and he'll like you better.

Well, maybe that might serve for the pre-courtship days and possibly a year of marriage. But for the long, steady pull there must be a dependability, a sureness of the other one's honesty. You can't keep them guessing for long, for the mate becomes bored with the process. For the going kind of marriage isn't an act you play at. It's something that calls for man and woman getting right down to serious business and all the trust you can muster thrown in.

Loyalty is another trait that has suffered of recent days. There's too much exposing of each other's faults in public. Whether the desire is to be humorous or martyrish or one of sheer orneriness, the reaction is bad. And the lack of loyalty seen in the foolish flirtations of wives [and husbands, too] is regrettable. It's all part of the modern school of "keeping them guessing," not letting the mate be too sure of you. A false philosophy and one whose divorce record already should show it up as a failure.

The world moves on—but the sound, old virtues seem to be the only ones even today that carry the guarantee of a successful marriage with them. Isn't it the truth?

A Job a Day

Every little improvement we give our home right now helps us—and the other fellow, too

Sometimes a dining room just misses giving perfect satisfaction because it is too small and a little too scantily provided with sunlight. Adding a bay window may make a lot of difference and go a long way towards making the room really satisfying. It is a pleasant substitute for a sun porch, gives more daylight to the room, and affords a cheery place to sit in.

Fort Dearborn Alumnae Will Meet Tuesday

Many Prominent Families Represented.

BY JUDITH CASS.

THE 52d annual luncheon of the Fort Dearborn Alumnæ association, which assumes more historical importance as the years go by, is to be held next Tuesday at the Drake hotel. Mrs. Charles Spencer Williamson, who has been corresponding secretary of the association for 32 years, has sent out about 225 invitations for the affair, and there is no doubt that nothing but illness or absence from Chicago will prevent the attendance of any of the members.

The annual business meeting will be held at 11 o'clock in the morning, with the luncheon and program to follow. Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw will read a paper entitled "Her Picture," which she wrote in 1889, when she was graduated from the seminary, and Mrs. Margaret Grover Tag-Mose, whose grandfather, Zuinglius Grover, was the school's first principal, will give a program of songs. A more modern note will be introduced by Mrs. Martin Kent Northam's illustrated talk on A Century of Progress.

These annual luncheons are always pleasant reunions for the former pupils of the girls' preparatory seminary, which, from the middle of the last century until it was closed in 1908, numbered the children of Chicago's most prominent families on the list of its classes. The present Fort Dearborn alumnæ membership is made up of women as well known in Chicago today as were their pioneer ancestors in the early days of the seminary.

Mrs. R. S. Peyton Is President.

Mrs. Richard S. Peyton is president of the association; Mrs. Lucius Hoyne, Mrs. Charles Ford, and Mrs. Louis Herrick, vice presidents; Miss Carrie Blair Neely, treasurer, and Miss Edith Moss, recording secretary. Mrs. G. McDonald is chairman of the executive committee.

Among the women who attend the luncheons each year are Mrs. Charles T. Atkinson, the sister of Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw; Mrs. Henry A. Blair, Mrs. Charles Counselman, Miss Jennie Adsit, Mrs. Nicolas de Teresa, Miss Helen Drake, Mrs. Charles H. ReQua, Mrs. Edwin L. Lobdell, Mrs. Ferdinand W. Peck, Mrs. Bronson Peck, Mrs. George Ives Haight, Mrs. Russell D. Hill, Mrs. John de Koven, Mrs. Charles L. Hutchinson, Mrs. Ernst Freund, Mrs. Asa J. Caldwell, Mrs. John E. Jenkins, Mrs. Walter E. Faithorn, and Mrs. William A. Havemeyer.

Mrs. Lorenzo Johnson will be missing from this year's reunion, as she departed last week for California.

The Kinsolving Thursday musicals will be resumed this morning in the Gold room of the Congress hotel, where they were held for two years before moving to the Blackstone hotel Crystal ballroom 17 years ago. Heinrich Schlusnus, baritone of the Berlin State opera, will give this morning's recital at 11 o'clock.

Lecture on Russia Today.

Samuel N. Harper of the University of Chicago, whose friends are welcoming him back from a 5 months' stay in Russia, will speak today on the findings of his third trip to the soviet country at a luncheon to be given by the Chicago Council of Foreign Relations at 12:30 o'clock at the Palmer house.

Graham Aldis will preside and at the speakers' table with him and Mr. Harper will be Mrs. Aldis, Mr. and Mrs. C. Frederick Childs (Mr. Childs visited Russia twice during the last two years), Mr. and Mrs. Morris L. Johnston, Mrs. Emmons Blaine, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Ramney, Col. and Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mrs. Waller Borden, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Dill Scott, and Mr. and Mrs. Donald McPherson.

Among those who have made reservations are Mrs. Melvin A. Traylor, Mrs. John F. Hagey, Mrs. Louis K. Boysen, Mrs. James R. Offield, Mrs. Ira J. Couch, Mrs. George R. Nichols Jr., Mrs. Howard Van Doren Shaw, Mrs. Silas H. Strawn, Mrs. Huntington B. Henry, Mrs. Mitchell D. Follansbee, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald P. Boardman, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bentley, Russell Titus, Robert Hall McCormick, William A. F. Pullman, Charles L. Strobel, Stuart H. Otis, Titus Zbyszewski, Polish consul, and Rene Weiller, French consul.

All of the tickets have been sold for the concert which Rudolph Reuter is to give on Sunday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank. The concert was arranged by Mrs. Fairbank, assited by a committee of eight women.

Tea for Supper Dance Committee.

Mrs. Walter J. Cummings is to be hostess at a tea on Friday afternoon at the Drake hotel for the junior committee for the supper dance to be held on Feb. 4 at the Congress hotel in celebration of the 100th anniversary of the founding of St. Mary's church at 911 South Wabash avenue and the 75th anniversary of the Paulist Fathers in Chicago.

Among the junior members who will sell cigarettes and flowers at the dance are Miss Alice Bremner, Mrs. Albert Dongan, Miss Grace Fitzmorris, Miss Jane Ripley, Miss Marion and Miss Isabel Gordon, Miss Jane Fortune, Miss Dorothy and Miss Barbara Senn, Miss Virginia and Miss Margaret Ambert, Miss Josephine Bremner, Mrs. Cushman Bissell, and Mrs. Donald Scott. MINUTE MYSTERY
CAN YOU SOLVE IT?
BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright, 1933, by The Chicago Tribune.]

Dr Fordney is professor of criminology at a famous university. His advice is often sought by the police of many cities when confronted with particularly baffling cases. This problem has been taken from his case book covering hundreds of criminal investigations.

Try your wits on it! It takes but ONE MINUTE to read! Every fact and every clew necessary to its solution are in the story itself—and there is only one answer. How good a detective are you?

SERGT. REYNOLDS IS SKEPTICAL.

Other than Fordney's and Reynolds', the only footprints in the snow on the spacious grounds were two sets, both leading away from the back door of the house to the road fifty yards distant.

Inside on the floor of the living room lay the body of Ralph Turner, clad in bright yellow pajamas—a bullet through his heart.

Joe Turner, the dead man's brother, acted as spokesman for the four other occupants of the house, all relatives.

His story was that the entire family had been listening to an international broadcast until 3 o'clock, after which they retired. Half an hour later, just as he was getting into bed, he heard a shot, dashed to the living room and found his brother. Before reaching the body he heard the back door slam and when he reached it saw a man walking rapidly down the path. When he reached the road the man ran to a car, jumped in and drove off.

To his entire satisfaction the professor ascertained that no one had left the house after 10 that night and that there had been no visitors. But Sergt. Reynolds was skeptical.

"Looks like an inside job to me," he growled. There were TWO killers here—you can see that for yourself, professor. They bumped off Turner and calmly walked out. Turner even admits the man he saw was WALKING."

"He had an excellent reason for doing so," Fordney replied. "No, sergeant, this isn't an inside job and only ONE man was here. He did employ a clever ruse, though."

WHAT WAS IT?

[See solution on page 17.]

Agent Says Actress Is at Home in East.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Jan. 11.—Either those Hollywood acquaintances of Ann Harding's who subscribed to the belief she intended to remarry Harry Bannister are wrong, or else Ann's manager, Harry Edington here, is wrong. Edington, who recently returned to Hollywood from his own honeymoon with Barbara Kent, confesses more than ordinary interest in romance at just this time, yet he insists "there is nothing farther from the truth than those reports of Miss Harding's intended remarriage."

Edington does admit his client slipped out of town last week, after taking pains that nobody would be supposed to recognize her, and that she went to New York, where Bannister is at present. Edington says the actress is now at an eastern home she keeps at Hedgerow, near Philadelphia, and he says she will be back here in a couple of weeks to play in "Declasse" for Radio-RKO. The Harding-Bannister baby, 4 year old Jane, is here with nurses and a guard.

The Fox studio has been saving what they think to be a prize winning title for years until the proper moment in American public life would come to fit a picture into the title. The title is "Five Cents a Glass." Frank Craven will direct the film, which will start as soon as Sam Mintz, who wrote the "Skippy" successes for Paramount, wrotes the story to fit the title.

The foremost kicker in Hollywood about suggestive advertising of motion pictures is hard headed Uncle Sam Goldwyn. "It burns me up," Sam says. "Every time I see a billboard or an advertisement in a newspaper or a double meaning smart crack in a trade journal about a motion picture, it cuts me deeply. I say, and say, and say to the other producers that this kind of advertising hurts us all by offending mothers and fathers of families, and brings a determination not to go to see any films, but some of the producers won't listen." Goldwyn says it is possible to have girls with beautiful figures appear in films, and possible to insinuate the idea into advertising that there are girls with beautiful figures in the Goldwyn films, "but the way I do it is art; what is keeping a great many people out of movie houses at this time is not the depression, but the vulgarity."

Goldwyn has a pile of clippings in his office, chosen from the ordinary daily routine of advertising as it appears in Los Angeles newspapers and trade papers. "Every one of those clippings is likely to keep more people out of motion picture theaters than it will bring in," Goldwyn says. "Somebody should do something drastic about it. I am going to kick to Will Hays."

Harry Edington, who is manager both for Greta Garbo and Ann Harding, is leaving with his bride, Barbara Kent, shortly to keep an appointment with Greta abroad. Edington says he will know then, and not until then, just when the Silent Swede will slip softly back to these shores.

The three reel musical novelty, "So This Is Harris," which pleased Radio Pictures executives with its unexpected box office vitality, has brought plans to produce a full length musical special called "Maiden Voyage" at this studio. Mark Sandrich will direct it and it will adhere somewhat to the Phil Harris three reeler, "Pattern."

The jinx that has pursued Mae Clarke's film career through successive starts caught up with her again at Columbia studio. In a scene for "Parole Girl" she was supposed to put out a fire that started in a bale of cloth cuttings in a women's prison. When she tried to do it her left arm, holding the fire extinguisher, was burned. Dr. Charles Colisanni treated the injury and she will be back at work by the end of the week.

Diane Wynyard, the English actress, brought a complete staff of servants with her, in the person of one girl, Daisy. Daisy acts as cook, maid, chauffeur, and companion.

Instead of "The Lady" MGM has fastened the title "The Secret of Madam Blanche" on the film which Irene Dunne and Phillips Holmes has just finished.

BARTER AND SAIL

By HENRY C. ROWLAND

SYNOPSIS.

Capt Hiram White sails his four master ship, the Abigail White, in search of a ship filled with pearl oysters, sunk by a French captain before the world war in a lagoon in a South Sea island. Arlette Mordecai, the French captain's granddaughter, has brought him complete instructions for finding the ship. Arlette is accompanied by an English woman of title, known as Ladybird. In his crew are Adam Eden, an unemployed engineer, an unemployed French chauffeur named Raoul, Roberta Millbank, and Peter Cavan. Roberta's father died after his bank failed and Peter was his trusted employe. Benny, a cook, hires up for his keep. Ladybird, who is a naval officer's daughter, is made mate. Hemery Shepard, backer of the venture, fills the boat with a cargo of his own choosing and makes profitable trades at ports en route to the island, where the sunken treasure craft is located. Capt. Hiram, Adam and Peter take turns diving for the oysters. They have them all aboard when they are beset by a ruffianly crew of a strange yacht, headed by Capt. Derring, who turns out to be Ladybird's husband and aware of the sunken treasure. He demands the oysters and the diving rig. Peter, knowing the oysters contain no pearls and that the girls must be protected, advises giving them up, which Roberta interprets as yellowness. Capt. Hiram agrees with Peter. Derring boards the four master and orders his yacht to tow it out to sea, where the shell is transferred. Then Derring starts trouble and is thrown overboard. Before he can reach his boat he is attacked and killed by a shark. The crew again study Mordecai's directions and discover a secret code and that the pearls taken from the oysters are hidden in a cookstove on the sunken boat. But now they have no diving rig. They return to the lagoon and manage to raise the treasure ship's bow where the cook house is located. There is danger of the cookstove breaking loose. Diving seems their only chance.

INSTALLMENT XLVI.

THE PEARL DIVER.

The idea of an octupus struck a chill through them all. Roberta had not heard. She walked to where they were gathered at the rail of the Abigail's bows that were not perceptibly lower to the water from the weight suspended. It was this surprising lack of submersion that had led the captain to believe the ponderosity could not be very great.

"Well, young lady," said the captain. "What do you think you're going to do?"

"O, I'm just sunbathing," Roberta told him. "I may not look it, but in my room at home in Milbank there was a long shelf filled from end to end with bright shiny cups I'd won doing jacknives and scissors and swallows and things, from twice this height and a spring board which is trickier."

"It's a sporty gesture, my girl," said Ladybird, "but it won't do."

Roberta did not answer. She did not show any intention of making an attempt until the means of doing so had been discussed and some sort of argument overcome. She merely walked to the rail and leaned over, staring down. It was nearly noon and as they were almost on the equator and the sun nearing its vernal equinox it blazed straight down through the crystal clear water.

"What's the depth?" she asked. "The stove looks to be right under the surface."

"A little over 12 feet."

"I've brought up half dollars deeper than that."

"Not in shark waters."

"Don't see any. They didn't bother you when you were down."

"Armor's different."

Before anybody could anticipate her intention she leaned forward a little more. Her two strong small hands were on the huge flat gunwale. She did not mount upon it but with a quick muscular effort drew herself up and over.

Down she went, straightening in the air her lissom body so that she met the water and made her entry cleanly as a lance.

There was a gasp of dismay, of shock, and almost of horror. All of the men were courageous, but if they had been as much at home in the water as Roberta, it is doubtful if one of them would have dared make her attempt, after the horror of several days before.

Perhaps Roberta had felt her own nerve weakening. Or perhaps she knew that she would have been prevented by force. One of the boats was lying at the foot of the sea ladder that had been thrown over just beneath They would have expected the girl, if permitted to dive at all, to dive from the boat. Instead she had decided suddenly to take advantage of the height to carry her straight down to her objective.

The splash prevented them from seeing her immediately. Before it had subsided and the agitated surface smooth. Peter was down the ladder and in the boat and had snatched up the long boat hook that was not of the blunted yacht sort but more like the tool used when ice is being cut on a pond.

They saw then the flashing of Roberta's long round legs as they gyrated in the rectangle of the small cookhouse that was no more than a box of light stuff bolted down to the deck planking.

At the same moment there came a dreadful tremor that seemed to rise from under the feet of the watchers. It was a terrifying sensation. They stared at each other aghast, more than startled, struck through with a nameless dread that afflicts all living creatures at the first rumble of a seismic disturbance. An earthquake or avalanche.

But it was not an earthquake. Adam, who for hours had been subconsciously awaiting some such shattering warning, accounted for it instantly.

"God in heaven," he cried. "The lighter's letting go. She's slipping out—going to bottom——"

All realized immediately what was happening. They scarcely had time to appreciate that it was in course of happening when the calamity occurred.

The suspended steel car track that had been dropped through the hatch way to serve as toggle by which to lift the lighter had been jammed in a forward corner of the orifice.

One end of it was under the forward thrwartship deck beam, and that would hold. But the other end was under the deck where it did not bear upon a beam carried all the way across but a shortened one, while knees into a frame at its inboard end merely secured to the low trunk of the hatchway.

It was this end that was tearing things away. As may happen where a construction is not strong enough to take a continued strain it had required some time for the integrity of the joiner work to become fatigued and gradually let go. The worm had done its work. But once started it was tearing out with a grinding and ripping that was all the more appalling because the water muffled the sound which was communicated to the listeners by the taut steel hawser.

Roberta, twelve feet down, would have heard it even louder and be aware no doubt of what was happening. But she did not rise. Her legs kicked more frantically and they could see her hands fumbling. She thrust one arm into the round orifice where the stovepipe had rotted out. Her body occulted her efforts so that the watchers could not see just what she was about.

Then as they waited breathlessly the whole mass began to settle. There was a deep thrumming sound and the car rail liberated turned slowly in the water. The mass of the lighter's forward part sank rapidly, its form becoming more dim and then vanishing in a roll of fine sand and bottom sediment. The bright gleam of Roberta's writhing body disappeared.

A hollow strangling howl burst from Peter. He thought that Roberta's groping hand was jammed and that she was being dragged down inexorably.

Then he saw her rising and the gleam of her legs as she kicked vigorously propelling herself to the surface. Actually she had been under water less than a minute. But even fifty seconds is a long time when one holds the watch as the second hand moves slowly and jerkily.

Up she came. Her flaming bandanna broke the surface close to the small boat. She kicked herself alongside it, both hands clasping something that gleamed against her bosom.

BY MARY MEADE.

Economical tips for week-end food shoppers—a new Saturday morning radio feature—will be presented weekly by Miss Meade over station W-G-N. Tune in at 9:45 a. m. next Saturday for Miss Meade's first market chat.

If some scoffing mortal informs you that the day of miracles is past, here is the wherewithal to make him blush with contrition and admit at least in your kitchen miracles are still events of every day occurrence.

First invite him to luncheon. See that he gets there half an hour before the serving up time. When he arrives, take him mournfully to the kitchen and from the back of the refrigerator produce a pan of leftover mashed potatoes—cold, hard, and unappealing as only leftover potatoes can be. Inform him that there lies his luncheon. Watch the great sadness come over his face. Then tell him to leave the kitchen, and half an hour later place before him such a creation as never before tempted the palate of man. Let it be billowy, puffy, and golden. Let it smile joyously under a blanket of yellow cheese sprinkled or twinkle beneath minced green cress or paprika. Let it appear in one casserole and come forth to garnish a meat platter with ridges, rosebuds, wreaths, and curlicues.

To give you a preview, I have big thoughts on patties, fritters, croquettes, souffles, rosettes, borders, pies, casseroles, puffs and other delightful combinations—all thanking our old friend, mashed potatoes, for their initial goodness.

First for patties and croquettes. As a rule the mixtures are much the same. Both should be as soft as they can possibly be handled, as this will insure fluffiness in the finale. If cold potatoes are to be used, bring them up to the creamy stage by quickly steaming, and then beating until fluffy with the addition of hot milk and butter or savory drippings. Then proceed as with hot, creamy, freshly cooked potatoes.

If you wish, patties and croquettes may be plain. Form creamy seasoned mashed potatoes into fat patties two inches across and one inch thick. Dust with flour and fry in savory drippings till brown on both sides. Serve with a garnish of parsley or cress. For croquettes, form the mixture into cones, balls or cylinders, dip in fine crumbs, then in egg and again in crumbs, and lower in a basket into hot fat [380 degrees F.] to fry till golden brown. Drain on unglazed paper and serve with a tomato, cheese or meat sauce.

But variations are always more fun, don't you think? A delectable cheese patty or croquette mixture comes from one beaten egg, three cups of hot mashed potatoes whipped together with one tablespoon melted butter, one tablespoon minced parsley or chopped green and red peppers, one-fourth teaspoon celery salt, and two-thirds cup grated American cheese, and additional salt and pepper to taste. Form and fry as directed above.

Or to the plain croquette and patty mixture of mashed potato, beaten egg, and seasoning, try adding half a cup of chopped nut meats, or three tablespoons of peanut butter. These are delicious with a nut gravy. Or to the basic recipe, add three-fourths of a cup of cooked corn, peas, chopped cooked carrots, baked beans [to this last add a dash of chili sauce], and form and fry as usual. Or to make a more substantial main dish, add the same amount of flaked fish or leftover pieces of sausage, ham, ground pork, cooked bacon, or other meat. Vary your seasonings with parsley, poultry seasoning, celery salt, curry, peppers, paprika, and onion juice.

Any of these mixtures will also be tantalizingly nippy if it is not fried but piled into cup forms, browned delicately in the oven and served with a poached egg.

Then there are still more things to do with mashed potatoes. Use a fluffy blanket of them to cover up the savoriness of a meat and vegetable pie or stew. Make a casserole of creamed leftover vegetables, alternating layers of a cheese-mashed potato mixture with layers of vegetables.

Press fluffy hot mashed potatoes through a pastry tube into rosettes, rings, etc., on to a greased baking sheet. Brush them with grated cheese and milk and brown in the oven. Slip them off and use to garnish the meat platter.

And finally here is a dainty surprise of a croquette with mashed potatoes as the cause for its fluffiness.

CROQUETTE SURPRISES.

2 cups hot mashed potatoes.
¼ cup thick white sauce.
1 cup cooked peas.
1 egg for dipping.
2 tablespoons water.
Dried bread crumbs.

Whip the potatoes until very fluffy but not too soft. Season to taste and form into cup shapes in the palm of the hand. Minced chicken is a delicious addition to the potato mixture. Now combine the cream sauce and the peas, season to taste, and place a spoonful of the mixture in each potato cup. Press the top of the cup together, adding a dab of potato to round over the top. Roll in crumbs, then in the beaten egg and water and again in crumbs. Fry in a basket until golden brown in hot fat [380 degrees F.]. Serve with celery cream sauce or, if chicken has been used, a hot pineapple sauce is a pleasant surprise.

China Exhibit Tells Story of Table Manners

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

When Mrs. Justus L. Johnson was a little girl there was only one paradise for her and that was the long, narrow alley back of the high board fence that surrounded her play yard. She was strictly forbidden to venture beyond this fence but there were times she could slip away from her nurse and revel in the china and glass collections that awaited the junk man.

Bits of blue glass and green glass, half a dinner plate or perhaps three-quarters, the stoppers out of vinegar jugs and perfume bottles—these were some of the things she stowed away in her pockets and carried home. Cheap, dirty trifles, every one—but treasures to her when they were washed and polished and placed in her big dollhouse.

"And that is the reason I have all of this glassware today," Mrs. Johnson explained the other afternoon when I met her unexpectedly at the Art institute. The last several weeks 250 pieces of her collection of some 3,000 pieces of early American pressed glass which she keeps at her home in Aurora have been on exhibit at the institute.

"There never has been another alley like that one I knew as a child. It had all the wonder and romance of an Arabian Night's story," Mrs. Johnson continued. "The first real pieces of glass I ever owned were the thumb print sugar bowl and spoon holder my mother gave me when I was 10 because they were too heavy for every day use. They had come down through two or three generations of Johnsons."

The sugar bowl and spoon holder are on exhibit at the institute and so are several of the dozen goblets Mrs. Johnson bought with her first 50 pennies, a present on her 12th birthday. They are decorated with the frosted stork pattern which dates them about 1870 or 1880 and, interesting enough, each one of them, sold for little more than four cents 40 years ago, is appraised at $10 today.

Few persons exclaim over early American pressed glass for it is heavy, oftentimes clumsy in appearance. Yet as linen becomes time stained and metal becomes tarnished, old glass takes on a certain mellowness with years that gives it charm. Then, too, it becomes valuable for its associations, and a collection like Mrs. Johnson's is particularly valuable because it presents a permanent record of 100 years of American design free from European influence.

There is nothing, perhaps, in this collection or in any other assortment of old glass that attracts more attention than the cup plates. They afford such smug satisfaction in the progress made, or supposedly made, in table manners.

It was back in the early 1800s that our ancestors began to drink out of their saucers rather than their cups, and the custom was rapidly adopted both in this country and in England. Once the pressing machines started to make cup plates they were turned out by the thousands. So it has never been difficult to find examples though the earlier and finer patterns are comparatively rare.

After the graceless custom gave way to our more delicate method of consuming beverages, cup plates were put to use as individual butter dishes Frequently they are confused now with honey plates, toddy plates, or tea plates. The honey dish hasn't the flat bottomed surface found in the cup plate, the toddy plate is larger—four and a quarter to four and three-quarters inches in diameter—and the tea plate still larger, frequently six or seven inches across.

"Antiquing is like a sickness," Mrs. Johnson continued as she showed me one of her prize cup plates. "You do it when the fever takes you, and from then on, I assure you, it's more exciting than horse racing."

'Fifi' Widener and A. C. P. Wichfield Are Married in Nevada

Reno, Nev., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Aksel C. P. Wichfeld, former attache of the Danish legation in Washington, D. C., obtained a divorce this afternoon at Carson City from Mabelle F. Wichfeld on grounds of cruelty. He immediately thereafter married Josephine "Fifi" Widener, daughter of Joseph F. Widener of Philadelphia.

The wedding took place at 5 o'clock at the home of William Woodburn, Wichfeld's attorney. Judge Clark J. Guild, who granted the divorce decree, performed the ceremony.

Wichfeld's wife did not appear at the divorce hearing, the decree going by default. She is the former Mabelle F. Swift, daughter of a member of the Swift packing family—one who lived in Boston. Her first husband was the late Clinton Moore.

Wichfeld established a divorce residence here last fall, and he and Miss Widener were together constantly Miss Widener only a few weeks previously had divorced Milton W. Holden of Philadelphia. Her first marriage was to Carter R. Leidy when she was 17.

The divorce case today was heard behind closed doors and testimony sealed.

Appeal for Cook Stove.

"My husband has been out of work for more than a year and since our gas has been shut off and we cannot buy a coal stove we have no way to cook our meals. Our baby is a year old and needs warm food which makes it very hard for us. Do you think you could get us a kitchen coal stove? We would be so grateful for it. MRS. W. G."

This family is confronted by a real problem which has no solution except in the much needed stove. Can you supply it?

Lithe Step Is Essential to the Slenderized Figure

Hold one foot up and hop around lightly. Then hop on the other foot. This exercise gives a lighter walk and a leaner ankle and leg.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

As is preached from all corners of the fashion earth, a gown is no smarter than the manner in which it is carried. No woman is younger than her feet. The silhouette may be down to a hair trigger line, and yet the movement of body may be old as the hills. You never see a middle aged woman noted for her smartness who is not a light footed individual.

It's all poppycock to say you are too old to start doing this or doing that. You may not be in good physical condition for certain activities of muscle. But if you're well you're not too old to get snap back into those feet of yours again.

It is hardly necessary to warn women who've had operations or suffer some constitutional disorder to exercise only under medical sanction. Some may not be fit for any exercise. Others may be fit for mild exercise only. But let your doctor tell you what you should and should not do if you are ill. The leg exercises I am going to give you today, tomorrow, and the next day would not be advised for women with heart trouble or any serious constitutional disorder.

But for the average girl or woman whose need is to train down or build up or prevent ageing signs there is nothing hard nor dangerous about these movements. They are primarily exercises for leg, ankle, and thigh redietion, but they'll also put that "gingery lightness" into the step that we'd like to see in every pump, oxford, or boudoir slipper.

Let's see how old or young you are on the feet! Can you take hold of one foot and hop around on the other without threatening the family in the apartment below? You might run a hop race with the kids. They're smart on this trick, light as a breeze. It's not merely being able to hop around on one foot we want, but hopping lightly.

Pull your body up and "feel" light, then hop on one foot, then on the other. Hop on the toes, not on the whole foot. The model shown in the picture is just getting ready for the hop. Your leg muscles will tell you whether they're getting any benefit. You'll feel them as you haven't for a long time.

Y., and with her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Grenville Howard of New York City. She plans to attend the eightieth birthday celebration of her cousin, Robert Underwood Johnson of New York, former ambassador to Italy.

Miss Susan Badgerow, daughter of the Harve G. Badgerows of Winnetka, is another debutante who has joined the ranks of the working girls. She has taken a job with a travel bureau and, in order to keep office hours, rises at 6:45 o'clock and commutes regularly on the 8:06 train from Winnetka to the loop every day.

Miss Badgerow, who made an informal debut this winter, returned last summer from a year of study in France and Switzerland.

Reception to Open Miami Bath Club.

Fred A. Poor of Lake Forest, founder president of the Bath club at Miami Beach, Fla., and Mrs. Poor will head the receiving line at the formal opening of the club next Sunday. A reception from 3 to 7 o'clock will be preceded by a buffet luncheon at which Mr. and Mrs. Henry Faurot of Riverside will be hosts. The buffet at the Bath club is really a cafeteria and has been called the "million dollar bread line of Miami."

Although the club will not be officially opened until Sunday, members and guests are being served luncheon from gayly canopied carts in the cabanas. Among the Poors' recent guests were Robert F. Carr, who is at Miami with Coach Zuppke of the University of Illinois; Commander Fogg-Elliott of the British man of war Doane, and Senator and Mrs. James Hamilton Lewis.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen Jr. of Lake Forest will depart today for their anual winter stay at their ranch at Phoeniz, Ariz. Their daughter, Miss Gwendolyn Bowen, will visit them during the Easter vacation from Miss Porter's school at Farmington.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mead Montgomery, who have been residing in Evanston since their marriage a year ago, have taken an apartment at 7634 North Marshfield avenue. Mrs. Montgomery is the former Margaretta Patterson of Philadelphia.

Miss Tremain and the faculty of Ferry Hall in Lake Forest have sent out invitations to a dance to be held at the school on Saturday evening.

The Junior Friends of Art, who've been having a series of international programs featuring art and music of foreign countries, announce a Finnish program for their meeting next Tuesday afternoon at the Belden-Stratford hotel. Elmer A. Forsberg, consul of Finland, will talk on "The Art and Music of Finland," and the program will include a violin recital by Lennart von Zweygberg and songs by Aarre Merikanto.

Mrs. Frank Granger Logan will play the rôle of the Grand Duchess Amalia in the Goethe lecture and pageant to be presented by Mme. Minna Schmidt at 2 o'clock this afternoon at a meeting of the Chicago branch of the National League of American Pen Women at Mme. Schmidt's studio at 112 Locust street.

White Broadcloth Coat for Winter Wear in Paris Choice of Princess

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The Parisienne wears black all summer, and this winter a few smart women are reversing the process and wearing white coats in the winter. The Princess Collorado Mansfield had Worth make for her a white broadcloth coat, with lots of silver fox scattered around on it, and this started the white-coat style in that choice group of elegant women who make Paris styles a continually exciting show.

One reason for the success of white coats in midwinter, when Paris is unquestionably one of the three smokiest cities in the world, is the fragility of the wrap. It stands in no danger of that great corrupter of style—too much popularity.

The coat worn by the Princess Collorado Mansfield is shown in our sketch today. It is made, as I mentioned before, of pure white broadcloth. Its three-quarter length sleeves are bordered with silver fox, and there is a hem of the same fur, which is wider than any single skin could be, and which rises in a point half-way up the closing.

There is no fur at the neck of this coat. It is replaced by a scarf collar of black velvet, which is trimmed with bands made of plaited velvet. The end of the scarf has a tiny plaited velvet ruffle. The coat is lined with black velvet and is worn over a black velvet frock.

Mothers Tell Wish to Help Their Children

It's Ideal Attitude, Says Mrs. Bevans.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

Here are extracts from two recent letters:

". . . I clipped one of your articles about children and up to this time I have neglected sending for the booklets which will help me with my little son. He is my first baby and I want to learn how to help him."

"My child is still a baby, but I want to be educated in child training so that I may help him."

Here are two mothers after my own heart. They do not say, "I want to bring up my child right," "I want to train my child to be a perfect gentleman" or, "little lady" or "I want to discipline my child," but "I want to learn how to help him."

And that is all a mother should try to do, to help him—to self-control, to self-knowledge, to self-development. Not imposing her conceptions of living on him, but helping him to develop his own conceptions of living so that he may fulfill himself and learn to live with others.

Of course, this is the hardest thing to do—it is much easier to be "cut and dried." But it is so worth while and so repaying. We can surround the child, like other growing things, with nourishing essentials—with sunlight and proper food and right home and some guidance. But what the forces within him, feeding on the environment we give him, will make of him is beyond our ken.

Doesn't it seem to you that in the old days when children were brought up so differently that often either they were made or marred by the treatment they received? Not all—some had much too much iron or hardihood or ruthlessness in them for that. The old military obedience for instance, the overbearing discipline often made them if they were strong, run away, and if they were not, weak, dispirited or inhibited creatures.

As a woman writes: "Aren't you thankful that children these days are getting more of understanding and a square deal than they used to under the old discipline? The new psychology is all to the good, I think."

And I do, too!

"THE PLAY'S THE THING"

SPAIN TO PLACE 12,000 FAMILIES ON SEIZED LANDS

Republic Breaks Up Huge Estates of Grandees.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Jan. 11.—Land reform plans to break up large estates and settle peasants on the property are being pushed speedily forward. The settlement of 12,000 families on 100,000 acres of land early this year is the first step.

Expropriation of the property of grandees, decreed after the uprising last August, should provide at least 1,200,000 acres without cost to the state. The total probably will be much greater, since a large part of northern Spain has not been officially surveyed and no figures are yet available. The duke of Medinaceli, of ancient lineage, is the heaviest contributor, with land valued at $6,000,000. A further 50,000 acres is available of lands confiscated from conspirators in the August uprising who were not grandees.

Form Credit Banks.

A vast work of organization is now being pushed forward by the government. Administrative organizations are being formed, workers' coöperatives prepared, and a credit bank is being established. The great task of installing peasants, mostly illiterate, either on their own holdings or, more difficult still, on big coöperative holdings is being organized as swiftly as possible under Marcelino Domingo, former schoolmaster and now minister of agriculture.

The difficulty of keeping the peasants from seizing by force land which is to be expropriated is no light one, but no flagrant cases have been reported.

Bomb Valencia Newspaper.

MADRID, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Official reports tonight told of a few new outbursts in connection with the anarchist-syndicalist uprising, which government authorities say has been quelled.

In Valencia a bomb exploded, damaging the offices of La Voz, a newspaper, and killing a news vender. There was a gun fight in the town of Casa Vieja, in Cadiz province, in which two civil guards were wounded. Dispatches from Tarrasa said that an Extremist wounded in Sunday's disorders had died.

Rush Troops from Morocco.

GIBRALTAR, Jan. 11.—(AP)—All civil guards quartered at La Linea, San Roque and Algeciras were ordered to Jerez today when serious disturbances were reported there. Troops have taken over the duties of the civil guard in neighboring towns and reinforcement were due this afternoon from Morocco.

SOVIETS BOW TO PEASANTS; WILL QUIT GRAIN GRAB

MOSCOW, Jan. 11.—(AP)—A long expected concession to the peasantry in the effort to extract from that class enough agricultural produce to feed the country assumed definite form tonight in the publication of a speech by Vyacheslaff Molotoff, the president of the union council of the people's commissars.

Molotoff announced that the government probably would abolish "collections" of grain and substitute therefor a grain "tax" in kind. Under this proposal, which is similar to the system in effect ten years ago, peasants would be assessed a definite grain tax in advance of sowing instead of being subject to levies of grain deliveries on the basis of possibilities, as is the case now.

A peasant, under the current plan, has never known beforehand the amount of grain expected of him. Consequently grain production has suffered because producers knew that the more they raised the more the government would take. The present method of "collections" was adopted in 1928 at the beginning of the first five year plan, succeeding a monetary tax system under which the peasants were compelled to pay money on a tax based on the amount of grain they raised.

Marriage Revealed

BERNICE ARGAST.

Announcement of the marriage of Miss Bernice Argast, 21 years old, acting president of the Artists and Models union, to Henry Pointer, 24 years old, was made yesterday at headquarters of the union. Mr. and Mrs. Julius Argast, 4119 North Kenneth avenue, parents of the bride, said yesterday that the couple eloped to Milwaukee on Oct. 1. Pointer, who was graduated from the University of Southern California, is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. James Pointer. The Rev. Mr. Pointer is a missionary in Portuguese East Africa.

the slanderer to produce his proof or make public reparation.

Regrets Lack of Whip.

"The laws of the state prevent me from taking into my own hands the punishment of the offender. I cannot properly horsewhip a senator, however much I may desire to, and however much the senator may deserve it.

"But the senate has disciplinary authority and power. The course which is demanded of you by the good name of the commonwealth should be clear before you. I bid you good day."

As the governor, with the same escort, stepped from the rostrum, Senator Reed, seemingly unconcerned, lit a cigar. There was an immediate scurrying about of Republican organization leaders, however, and a recess was declared. During that time Reed and several colleagues retired to an anteroom.

Reed Offers Apology.

Upon resumption of the session Mr Reed arose to a "question of personal privilege." "As far as my remarks relating to Mrs. Pinchot in my address on Monday are concerned," he stated, "I regret they were made and tender the senate my apologies.

"I further state that my remarks were made upon my individual responsibility and without consulting any member of the senate or any one active in the Republican party."

There was no further comment from the governor, and the senators concluded that the incident had been closed.

Four Russians Sentenced to Die for Stealing Jam

MOSCOW, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Four men were sentenced to death today and three others to ten years in prison for stealing jam from a government warehouse. The manager of the warehouse and three employés are to be shot, three other employés will go to a prison camp in the most remote section of the country, and two others must spend three years in jail for the crime, which was characterized as "causing great harm to the workers' supply."

HUNGRY PUPILS BENEFIT FROM A DAY OF GIFTS

Donations of $25 and $50 Swell Lunch Fund.

An indorsement of the Hungry School Children's fund by the employés of the Chicago Tuberculosis institute came yesterday in the form of a $25 contribution.

"We are pleased to be able to contribute $25 to this worthy cause," wrote Mrs. Theodore Sachs, superintendent. "We dispensed with the exchange of Christmas cards among ourselves, and instead we contributed the amount we would have spent in this way to the Hungry School Children's fund."

Parent-Teacher Group Sends $50.

A $50 gift came from the Bryn Mawr Parent-Teacher association through Mrs. W. D. McFall, president. A generous check from this group was sent the fund last year. Another gift yesterday came from "a household arts teacher and her mother." They explained that they saved the money by giving up an anticipated pleasure during the Christmas vacation.

Jane Goldsmith, 10 years old, and Minna Sachs, 9, sent in their gift to the fund. It was $2.70 earned by selling candy and towels. They embroidered the towels themselves.

THREAT TO KILL SELF AS WOOING ARGUMENT FAILS

Charles Weckerle, 27 years old, of Milwaukee was arrested in Waukegan last night after he allegedly threatened to kill himself in the presence of Miss Lorraine Hoppe, 18, also of Milwaukee, unless she agreed to marry him. He is a medical student at Madison.

Capt. Thomas Booth of the Waukegan police made the arrest when a passerby reported he had heard a man threatening to shoot himself in front of 106 North Genesee street. Weckerle and Miss Hoppe were in their car in front of that address.

Police found a pistol in Weckerle's pocket and charged him with carrying concealed weapons. The girl was turned over to her father. She told Capt. Booth that she had accompanied Weckerle to Waukegan because of his threat to commit suicide. When they reached Waukegan, she said, he made the same threat unless she promised to marry him. Weckerle and the girl have been friends for a year.

LEGION DIRECTS SIMPLE RITES FOR NEWBERRY

Ted Newberry, slain north side gangster, was buried with military honors, just before sundown yesterday, in the Irving Park Boulevard cemetery. The place of interment had been kept secret in an effort to thwart the curious.

As an echo of "taps" from the buglers of the Yarmo-De Vere post of the American Legion, of which Newberry was a member, came back to 200 or more gathered at the grave, there was little of the splendor that accompanied Dion O'Banion and "Nails" Morton to gangsters' graves.

At the undertaking parlor at 704 South Crawford avenue nearly 3,000 persons milled in the street. Others watched from nearby roof tops, which for more than two hours a steady line filled past the casket.

The position taken by the American Legion in conducting a gangsters' funeral was explained during the service by Joseph R. Dorfman, past commander of the post, and a former deputy coroner.

"The American Legions honors the departed comrade, Teddy Newberry," said Dorfman, "who enlisted in the United States military forces, and who served his country honorably and was honorably discharged."

FOUR WOODSTOCK BOYS INDICTED FOR BURGLARIES

Nineteen indictments charging four Woodstock high school boys with burglary and larceny were returned yesterday by the McHenry county grand jury at Woodstock.

The defendants are John Stafford, John Bokemeier, Benjamin Stedman, and Charles Fay. The jury also is reported to have voted a true bill against a fifth boy, M. Tucker, in the same series of cases. According to State's Attorney V. S. Lumley the indictments are based on fifteen burglaries.

The grand jury also acted against two other boys, August Hirth, 16 years old, and Joseph White, 17, according to reports. Hirth is reported named in a true bill charging arson. He was arrested last week while setting fire to the property of his employer, George Boal, a farmer near Woodstock. Hirth is described as a "graduate" of the Chicago Juvenile court. Young White is reported named in a true bill charging extortion. He is alleged to have sent three letters demanding $5,000 to Mrs. Rose Kellogg, a widow, of Crystal Lake.

CONDITION IS WHAT MAKES A SKATING CHAMP

Jaffee Tells How to Attain It.

This is the second of a series of articles on ice skating by Irving Jaffee, holder of three Olympic championships and the world's professional title, designed to aid all entrants in The Tribune's Silver Skates Derbies, to be held at Garfield park Jan. 21 and 22. Jaffee won the New York Daily News' senior Silver Skates in 1926, the Olympic 5,000 meters title in 1928, the Olympic 5,000 and 10,000 meter races in 1932, and the world's professional championship two weeks ago. He also holds the world's amateur record for the mile. Readers wishing to obtain any information on ice skating should send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Irvin Jaffee, Chicago Tribune Sports Department, Tribune Tower.

BY IRVING JAFFEE.

Methods of training for important skating events are various. As a member of the American Olympic skating team in 1928 at St. Moritz, Switzerland, my objectives were the longer races from a mile up, so that I had to train for endurance and power to build up energy and reserve force, as well as speed. That reserve power should be the fundamental aim of every boy and girl who plans to take part in THE TRIBUNE'S Silver Skates Derbies at Garfield park on Jan. 21 and 22, for each entrant will need more than speed to pass the elimination tests in the great fields of skaters annually entered for the Silver Skates.

At St. Moritz I would arise at 7:30 each morning and after putting on some warm, loose fitting clothes, I would take a brisk walk, usually a little more than a mile, before breakfast. This would limber me up and help my appetite. After breakfast I would rest an hour or so and then sharpen my skates for a morning workout when ice was available.

Keep Skates Sharp.

I have always made it a practice, almost a religion, even when training, to always have a sharp pair of skates, for you never know when you might pull a tendon from slipping or missing your stride on the turns of the track. I would block my skates with a carborundum stone. I never grind speed skates, since this method softens the blades.

I would then have a morning spin, always, when possible, on the same track where we were to race. I would divide my skating practice into periods, splitting a little more than an hour into two parts with a ten minute rest to relax my legs, which are always bound to stiffen and not be so supple if you skate for more than a half hour without any relief. Later on I would finish the last half of my practice with a good, hard skate at a mile distance or the half mile, whichever events I was entered in.

The half mile distance usually helped my sprinting and made me stronger for the finishes of the shorter races, whereas the mile distance built me up for the middle distances and endurance grinds. When you train at these two standard distances, it consumes almost as much energy as most races up to a half mile and in the mile and other distance events.

Takes Shower, Walks.

After my skating, I took a luke warm shower and whenever possible a little rubdown, if not, I would rub a little alcohol over my body to close the pores and avoid a cold from exposure. Later on a hearty lunch, then a two hour rest. That afternoon I took a nice brisk walk for five or six miles to develop my wind and to stay out in the open air as much as possible.

In the evening a good hearty meal, eaten slowly to digest properly, and, after a little rest another short walk and then to sleep, about ten o'clock for a good nights rest which is always important for an ice skater whose nerves and body should always be in the best of condition.

Naturally, I realize that a boy or girl, living in a crowded city with its lack of facilities and little time afforded what with having to attend to school or duties at business, finds it nearly impossible to train as I did at that time. In the Alps, of course, we had plenty of ice.

Will Follow Weather.

From day to day I will endeavor to keep up with the daily weather conditions in Chicago and surrounding territories and give my ideas from experiences I have met in drilling for such an event as the Silver Skates.

One important point should always be kept in mind by all Silver Skaters, to quote what Bill Taylor, coach of the 1932 Olympic skaters, always insisted on with his team: "Try to accomplish something towards your goal every day. When skating is not available, do some other exercise and training. Never let a day get by without adding to your resources to help you reach the best of condition."

TEAM ENTRIES POUR IN

Steve Strocchia, instructor at Clarke playground, yesterday submitted the names of 28 boys who will compete in four of the seven Silver Skates Derbies at Garfield park, Jan. 21 and 22. The list of competitors from Clarke playground are divided among the men's, senior, boys' intermediate,

NOT A PITCHER AROUND TO WORRY BABE HERMAN

The home Babe Herman will leave when he is called to the Cubs' training camp at Avalon, Catalina island. Herman is right proud of his residence and considers it as good as any in Glendale, Cal.

Herman hopes his son, Donald, 2½ years old, will be as great a batter as himself. Chicago fans do, too, Babe, if you have him sign with the Cubs. Rover, the family pet, thought it a good idea to be photographed, too. [Acme Photo.]

Babe swings a mean trowel, too. The new Cub outfielder will try anything once, even laying brick when the necessity arises around the old homestead.

"I can golf pretty well," Herman explains as he exhibits his best hole in one windup.

HAWKS BATTLE CANADIENS IN CANADA TONIGHT

The Blackhawks are in Montreal this morning trying to figure out a way to beat the tallend Canadiens in a hockey contest tonight. They defeated the former Flying Frenchmen in two games in Chicago but lost in the one game played with the Canadiens in Montreal.

So far the Hawks have not been able to win more than two games on enemy rinks, the pair being against the Montreal Maroons and the Toronto Maple Leafs. These two victories were sandwiched between two defeats in their second eastern road trip.

After the game tonight the Hawks will come home to prepare for their Sunday night battle with the New York Rangers at the Stadium.

STAGG LEAVES TOMORROW FOR CHICAGO HOME

In the WAKE of the NEWS

BABE RUTH'S SALARY.

BABE RUTH'S salary for 1933 is current news. This exploitation is good publicity for the New York Yankees and it is good reading for the fans interested in all that pertains to the greatest baseball showman of all time.

Naturally, Babe is worth all he can get. Under the law of supply and demand his salary would reach fabulous figures, for there is only one Babe Ruth. Under baseball law, however, Babe must reach terms with only one club. No one else will get a chance at him until his legs or eyes pay the toll of advancing years, as years of an athlete go. In baseball, eyes usually last longer than legs.

How much, then, should Ruth receive? For two seasons he was paid $80,000 per annum, according to report. In 1932 it was $75,000, so we're told. For 1933, sums varying from $50,000 to $60,000 have been mentioned. The suggested cut is not so much because Babe is not worth what he has been getting as for the reason that a cut in his salary would be a moral influence in bringing about lower salaries for other players, a step which club owners seem to think necessary in these days of depression and lessened attendance.

It is The Wake's guess that Babe's salary will not be materially reduced, no matter what figures are offered for perusal of other players—at least not until after he has had a poor season or has been unable to take part in nearly all games of some season.

Let's take paper and pencil. If Babe plays in 150 games at a salary of $75,000, that is $500 per game. Since gate receipts are divided (with a preponderance to the home team) that makes a daily average of $1,000 necessary for the Yankees to get their money back. From that point one estimates just what Ruth means to the team standing and consequent drawing power, and how many extra persons attend games solely to see Babe Ruth.

Leave out club standing and just figure extra attendance. Admissions in most big cities average $1 or more per game per spectator. To pay Ruth a salary of $75,000 then would require 1,000 extra persons per game with their admission money divided between the home and visiting clubs. Most fans will agree, we think, that Babe draws more than that average through the turnstiles primarily to see the Sultan of Swat.

Gauged by salaries paid screen stars or other celebrities on the basis of drawing power, Ruth's salary at $75,000 is reasonable. In the past it probably has been conservative. In a depression year it does not seem greatly out of line if our basis of computation is sound.

Simple Desire.

If I could wander down a lane
And hang my troubles on a tree
Like little Christmas ornaments—
How very happy I would be!

Then every time the breezes blew
A trouble would come falling down
And smash itself to tiny bits—
Then smiles would chase away my frown.

I think nobody else can know
How very happy I shall be
When I can wander down a lane
And hang my troubles on a tree!

Canadian Olympic Boxer Wins 1st Pro Bout by K. O.

MONTREAL, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Johnny Keller, captain of Canada's 1932 Olympic boxing team, made his professional debut tonight by knocking out Frankie Belanger, Detroit lightweight, in the seventh round of their ten round bout. The ex-Olympian outclassed his rival, who went down for three counts of nine in the sixth round before taking the full count in the seventh.

MILLER RESTS AS PAUL BOXES, SO BOYS SHIFT ODDS

Challenger Is Favorite to Win Title.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The betting indicates that the world's featherweight boxing championship may change hands out at the Chicago Stadium tomorrow night.

Tommy Paul, the crown wearer, has ruled as the favorite at 8 to 5 and at times 2 to 1 since the match was made. Last night the situation changed. Everybody every place where wagers are made seemed to be wanting to back the challenger, Freddie Miller of Cincinnati.

The result was even money, take your choice of the boxers, and some speculators predicted Miller might be a 4 to 5 favorite at the ringside.

Dope Favors Miller.

A strange situation indeed for a champion to suddenly become the underdog. But the dope shows that in three previous scraps Miller has whipped Paul on two occasions and lost one decision. Perhaps the boys are playing the dope or maybe they know something.

The heavy support for Miller was supposed to be coming from his public down in Cincinnati. Just the same there were a lot of fellows from Chicago who had fists filled with money they desired to wager on Miller.

Miller, within a half pound of the featherweight limit and scaling 126½ pounds, didn't engage in any boxing yesterday. The champion went six rounds with two southpaws, however, and some of the confidence that has prevailed in his camp seemed to be missing.

Freddie Must Be Right.

At the same time the fans thought "if Miller needed no additional boxing he must be in shape." That might have been the cause of the sudden change in the betting situation. Anyway, something caused a sudden switch from Paul to Miller among most of the speculators.

If Miller fights the way the wagering indicates he will, he will be one of the few left handers able to ever climb all the way up the championship ladder. The only southpaws the record books reveal as champions were Tiger Flowers, the middleweight; Lou Brouillard, the welterweight, and George Nichols, who took the light heavyweight championship at the end of an elimination tournament in Chicago about this time last year.

Even though the featherweight championship is at stake—a division which is richer in fistic lore than most any other—not nearly all the 19,000 big red seats had been sold last night, and a good guess would be that a gathering of 12,000 will surprise almost everybody connected with the fight.

13th Row All Gone.

One thing is certain, and that is that 13 seats in the 13th row will be occupied for this fight, which takes place on the night of Friday 13th.

The Anti-Superstition club, of which Sidney N. Strotz, president of the Chicago Stadium is the head man, bought these thirteen seats yesterday. You may not believe it but Mr. Strotz came right up with the money out of a left pocket and paid for them. Of course, if the featherweights pull out a crowd he will put most of it back in the pocket on the right side late Friday night or early Saturday morning.

Every fighter on the card had checked in with Matchmaker Nate Lewis yesterday. They all looked fit and ready. Mr. Lewis hopes they will fight that way.

Martin Levandowski of Grand Rapids surely has lots of folks around town thinking he is a new edition of his old time fellow townsman, Stanley Ketchell. Martin, despite his youth, was a 1 to 2 choice to beat the tough old war horse, James J. Braddock. Some of his backers would wager even money that he wins by a knockout.

Crane Junior College Five Hands Aurora 28-22 Defeat

Crane Junior college, led by Reckzeh, who scored five field goals and two free throws, defeated Aurora, 28 to 22, for its seventh consecutive victory at Crane's gymnasium yesterday. Crane led at the half, 12 to 9.

RAY MANGRUM IS 3 UNDER PAR FOR 1ST ROUND

Horton Smith Ties for 3d with 71.

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 11.—(AP)—It was an ill wind, for the favorites, that swept the long course here today, but it blew Ray Mangrum, 22 year old Texan, into a first day lead in the $7,500 Agua Caliente open golf tournament.

Mangrum shot a remarkable 35—34—69, with the wind aiding his naturally long driving game, to take a one stroke lead over the field, three on par, and six on Fred Morrison of Pasadena, defending champion, and Craig Wood of Deal, N. J. Wood has won the three big money tournaments of the western winter golfing circuit.

The tournament will continue through Sunday with 18 hole rounds each day.

Wind Near Gale.

The obstinate wind almost reached gale proportions in the middle of the morning, blowing from the east while the stars were firing in that direction on the out nine, and reversing itself when they started on the westerly incoming nine.

But it was a great day for the youngsters and comparatively unknown players, who started late enough to take advantage of the change in the wind.

Archie Hambrick, young pro from Zanesville, O., was in second place with 35—35—70. Horton Smith of Oak Park, Ill., and John Rogers, pro from Denver, tied for third with cards of 71.

The best score made by one of the veteran guard was an even par 72 turned in by Al Espinosa of Akron, O., which put him in fifth place. Al had a chance to go into second place, but blew it on the 18th green, which he 3 putted, once missing at 6 inches.

Sets Course Record.

Mangrum's score established a record on the course. This year, for the first time, the 133 contestants were not allowed to improve their lies on the fairway. Under previous conditions Gene Sarazen, British and American open champion, once shot 18 holes in 68.

Mangrum and Espinosa each made eagle threes on par five holes, between them accomplishing the feat on the longest holes on the course. Mangrum did it on the 550 yard eighth hole, driving 300 yards, making 250 with a spoon, with the wind, and holing a 30 foot putt. Espinosa picked out the 554 yard 17th to conquer. His drive was more than 300 yards, and he put his second shot 12 feet from the cup.

Mangrum's putter was working to advantage, except on the first hole, where he took three and went one over par. He played directly into the wind only on the tenth, and there again he dropped a stroke to par, taking three to reach the green. He sank a 10 foot putt for a birdie on the par five 12th, an 8 footer for another on the 14th and a six footer for his third on the long 17th.

Loos Ties for Sixth.

Willie Goggin of San Francisco and Eddie Loos, Chicago veteran, were in sixth place with 73s. Charles Sheppard, young northern California champion of San Francisco; Paul Runyon of White Plains, N. Y.; Harry Cooper of Chicago, and Lester Bolstad of Minneapolis, the leading amateur, tied at 74.

George Von Elm, Tony Manero, Olin Dutra, Charles Guest, and Macdonald Smith were other veterans who were tied with Wood in the 75 bracket.

The course was in the best condition of its history, despite the fact that the greens, due to cold weather, were not particularly fast. As a result of the fine condition of the fairways the ruling that the second shot could not be made from an improved lie was not expected to boost scores much the last three days of the tournament.

WESTERN STATE TESTS DE PAUL FIVE TOMORROW

Conquerors of Michigan Come to Chicago.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

De Paul university's basketball team, undefeated in six games, will find out just how good it is tomorrow night when it meets the Western State Teachers of Kalamazoo, Mich., at the De Paul gymnasium. Western State whipped the University of Michigan twice this season in what the western conference regards as practice games.

Basketball, being the kind of game it is—limited to five players and with a field of thousands of talented boys to draw from—has become an ideal form of intercollegiate competition for colleges of small enrollment or restricted funds.

Emphasis in the sports pages quite naturally has been placed on conference teams, first because of the championship race and because of the size of the student and alumni bodies. Judged solely by ability, however, De Paul and Loyola university, not to mention other colleges in the Chicago territory, frequently have basketball teams equal to the average in the Big Ten.

De Paul's Record Good.

It will be a long time before Loyola's team, on which Charlie [Feed] Murphy was the outstanding player, will be forgotten. Loyola was beaten by one point by Purdue at Lafayette that winter and for that reason, more than any other, Loyola has not been able to schedule Big Ten teams until this year, when Wisconsin arranged to meet Loyola at Madison.

This is the fourth year that De Paul basketball teams have been coached by James Kelly, who also is the athletic director. Up to this time De Paul has won 38 games and lost 14. In 1930 De Paul won 15 and lost 5. That year De Paul made its trip to the Pacific coast. In 1931 the record was 17 games won and 3 lost, including the two game series with Loyola [on Loyola's floor], which was divided. Last year De Paul won 10 games and lost 6.

Teachers Lose One Game.

De Paul's record to date for this season follows:

De Paul, 30; Elmhurst, 14.
De Paul, 30; University of Western Ontario, 21.
De Paul, 36; University of Western Ontario, 20.
De Paul, 29; St. Viator, 21.
De Paul, 42; Beloit, 22.
De Paul, 38; St. Thomas [St. Paul, Minn.], 28.

Western State has lost one game this year. Butler defeated it by three points, although that licking is attributed to an injury of the Teachers' center, William Perigo, which forced him from the game at a time his team was leading by nine points. Besides Perigo, Donald Hanna, a forward, is rated an excellent performer. Western State uses a fast break on offense, specializes in a five man shooting attack and employs a man to man shifting defense.

De Paul Banks on Speed.

De Paul probably will start with a line-up composed of its fastest players to cope with State's speed. Jim Gorsky and either Phil Krause or Bill Shay will be the forwards; Ellsworth Weston, the center, and Tony Lauritis and Jim Doody the guards. Pete Barskis, center, and Francis Linsky, a guard, may also see service. Shay and Krause are the only regulars who are sophomores.

Another comparison which demonstrates De Paul's strength is its 42 to 22 defeat of Beloit. Beloit whipped Chicago 30 to 26. Tomorrow night's game will start at 8:30. On Saturday night Western State Teachers will play Loyola university at Loyola.

YALE FOOTBALL STAR WHO WED QUITS CLASSES

New Haven, Conn., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Walter B. Levering, Yale full back, whose marriage last June was revealed yesterday, expressed his intention of immediately withdrawing from his classes in a letter received today at the office of Dean Clarence W. Mendell.

Levering's marriage to Miss Betty Gerard of New York was announced by the bride's parents. Yale rules forbid undergraduate marriages unless permission has been granted five days before the ceremony.

The football star, who would have been graduated next June, returned to New Haven Thursday when classes resumed after the Christmas holidays. He remained only a few hours and left. He has not been back.

Nelson Macy of Greenwich, his roommate and fellow townsman, said yesterday Levering was "in New York with his wife."

ST. VIATOR WINS FROM BRADLEY QUINTET, 27 TO 21

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Bradley's Little Nineteen conference hopes were jolted tonight when it lost a 27 to 21 game to St. Viator. Bradley was off to an early lead and had a 15 to 12 advantage at the half, but St. Viator tied the score at 17 all early in the last half. Bradley's defense cracked in the last four minutes and Baker and Laffey bore in for several close shots which they made good.

Luther J. Squier, Former Trap Shooter, Is Dead at 60

Cincinnati, O., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Luther J. Squier, 60, at one time one of the foremost trapshooters in the country, died today. He originated the Squier money back system in operating the cashier's sheet at trapshooting tournaments. Squier retired in 1931, after 41 years with an ammunition company.

MOON MULLINS—MAKING THAT CLEAR

17 Prep Teams Enter U. of C. Swim Meet

Seventeen teams had entered the University of Chicago interscholastic swimming meet, scheduled for this week-end, yesterday, and five more are expected today. The total will exceed the high mark of fifteen entries established in the eighth annual meet last year.

The schools entered are Crane, Harrison, Hyde Park, Lake View, Lane, Morgan Park, Roosevelt, Senn, Tilden, Evanston, Thornton, Thorton Fractional, Rockford, Morton, Englewood, University High, and Maine Township. Entries from Shurz, Lindblom, Calumet, Bowen, and Austin are expected.

Entry of Tilden brings in Hickey, one of the outstanding prep swimmers in the country, who last year set a new meet record of 2:25.2 in the 220 yard free style.

Ricke of Schurz is regarded as the class of the local back stroke swimmers. In the fancy diving the strongest city performers are Staufer of Hyde Park, Sutcliffe of Roosevelt, and Appel of Englewood.

Preliminaries in the fancy diving will begin at 4 p. m. tomorrow. First heats in the 220 will take place at 5 o'clock and all other trials in the evening beginning at 7:30. Finals start at 2:30 p. m. Saturday.

ATTEMPT WILL BE MADE TO KEEP CREW AT CORNELL

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 11.—(AP)—H. W. Weed of Poughkeepsie, former president of the Cornell Varsity Crew association, said tonight that "undoubtedly something will be done toward financing a continuation of rowing at Cornell and sending the crew to Poughkeepsie."

Weed, who was stroke on the 1909 Cornell crew, said he was surprised to hear that the athletic council had voted to suspend intercollegiate crew competition, along with competition in all other sports except basketball for the remainder of this year.

"Alumni crew men would be up in the air if Cornell was not represented at Poughkeepsie this year," he said.

Weed said he did not know yet just what would be done toward financing a crew. The Varsity Crew association, of which he was president for several years, no longer exists.

ENGAGEMENT OF BILLY SULLIVAN IS ANNOUNCED

Notre Dame, Ind., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—The engagement of Billy Sullivan, leading White Sox hitter last season, and a senior law student at the University of Notre Dame, to Louise Barthman of South Bend and St. Mary's college, Notre Dame, Ind., was announced today by Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Barthman of South Bend.

Sullivan will complete his law course at Notre Dame in June. He announced recently that he plans to take his bar examinations before rejoining the White Sox, with whom he has played during the last two summers between terms at Notre Dame.

Sullivan said the wedding will probably be in August.

ROWLAND WILL CONTINUE AS ALBANY MANAGER

New York, Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Until a purchaser can be found Clarence Rowland will continue to operate the Albany International league baseball club, Chicago Cubs' farm. Rowland, who managed the club for the Cubs for the last two years, recently turned it back to the National league champions.

William Veeck, president of the Cubs, spent two days in New York seeking suitable terms for the club, but when he failed to find a buyer he asked Rowland to continue.

PONZI REDUCES RUDOLPH'S LEAD TO NINE POINTS

New York, Jan. 11.—(AP)—Andrew Ponzi, Philadelphia pocket billiard star, reduced Erwin Rudolph's lead to nine points in their exhibition match today by winning both blocks. Rudolph now has a total of 750 points and Ponzi, 741.

Ponzi took the afternoon block 173 to 125 in 15 innings, with a high run of 54 to Rudolph's 42. Tonight, aided by a high run of 70, Ponzi won 150 to 125 in ten innings. Rudolph's best run was 53.

J. Plummer Suspended by Commission

Johnny Plummer, Central City, Ia., heavyweight wrestler, was suspended yesterday by the state athletic commission, pending his appearance before the board. Plummer had been ordered to appear before the commission due to violation of the rules in a bout with Joe Savoldi at the Rainbo Fronton on Dec. 28.

Billy Petrolle, Duluth, Minn., fighter, will arrive today en route to New York, where he boxes Bep Van Klaveren, European junior welterweight, Jan. 20. He is to drill at Kid Howard's gymnasium. Petrolle has turned down an offer to meet Barney Ross of Chicago at the Stadium on Jan. 27.

Joe Mendoza, south side light heavyweight, will face Ray Tramble of Rockford, Ill., in a six round bout at the Cicero stadium on Jan. 20. Charlie Cerminaro, who boxes Kid Irish of St. Louis in another six rounder on the card, will spar with Harry Dublinsky this afternoon. Collectors Fight Sun and Fever to Get Tropical Fish

BY BOB BECKER.

Fish fanciers who in recent years have been popularizing the keeping of tropical fish in small aquariums doubtless would be a lot keener about their hobby if they could hear from time to time the stories of the hardships suffered by collectors who scour tropical rivers and pools to obtain new species.

Most of the hobbyists who want new fish for a small home aquarium can order a species or even step into a shop in Chicago, pick it out and take the gorgeously tinted specimen home. This is easy. But behind the life history of some of these beautiful species are many stories of hot suns, tropical fevers, hardships and large expenditures of money to get the tropical fish home. Frequently the collectors, once they have found the specimens, are met by failure to keep them alive.

We once spent considerable time hunting and trapping small mammals and shooting birds along the Amazon river in Brazil for a museum collection. Thus it has been easy for us to reconstruct some of the experiences which the fellow who goes after the beautiful angelfish of Brazil, is having during his collecting trips.

If there is any one species of tropical fish which might make a person take up the home aquarium hobby it is this exquisite species from the Amazon river. Pterophyllum scalare, the angelfish of Brazil, tells you in just one glance that it is the South American tropics where colors both in birds and fish run riot. It is not surprising that this fish is called the "queen of aquarium fishes," so rich in color and so aristocratic is its appearance.

The Amazon river where scalare live has a heavy rainfall. We experienced one of its rainy seasons while hunting near its town of Itacoatiera. To have dry clothing next your skin for an hour or two during the day was nothing short of a miracle. Back from the river itself the jungle was flooded for miles, making vast areas more aquatic than terrestrial. As one would expect, the heavy rainfall along the Amazon naturally creates innumerable ponds which are rich in aquatic life.

Although we never have collected tropical fish along the Amazon, we have a hunch these ponds and pools are producing some of the species which today are delighting the tropical fish hobbyists. However, north of the Amazon and close to British Guiana, we did help seine several pools for museum collections. We thus were given a chance to be surprised by the curious forms which live in quiet water. Today the tropical fish collectors must be putting new life into some of those sun drenched ponds along the Amazon. Knowing how hot that Amazon sun is, how bloodthirsty the mosquitos, how plentiful the chiggers and how malaria stalks you, we can appreciate the work which was involved to crown scalare, the beautiful fish from the Amazon, queen of the aquariums.

CUBS PURCHASE LEFTY RICHMOND FROM BALTIMORE

The Cubs' notable and feverish quest for a left handed pitcher of merit yesterday broke out in a minor league reaction when purchase of Beryl Richmond, Baltimore lefty, was announced at the International league meeting in New York. The purchase price was not announced.

Last year, with the second place Orioles, Richmond won 12 games while losing 14. The preceding year, when the Orioles finished third, Richmond had a better won and lost record with 15 victories and 8 defeats. Though he was twelfth in the league in the earned run rating and sixth in percentage rating in 1931, he did not make the big league grade last year, leaving that distinction to his teammate, Monte Weaver, who last year won 22 for the Washington Senators.

The purchase of Richmond gives the Cubs two lefties with the International league last year, the other being Carroll Yerkes, purchased from Albany late in the season and used in two innings, against the Giants. The Cubs also plan to take Roy Henshaw to Catalina with them. Henshaw attracted some notice while pitching for the University of Chicago.

With the advent of colder weather yesterday, prospects for holding the races materially brightened. Several days of freezing weather, however, will be necessary to permit skating on the Garfield park lagoon.

HITCHCOCK AGAIN RATED ONLY TEN GOAL POLO STAR

And Will Rogers Loses His 2 Goal Handicap.

New York, Jan. 11.—(AP)—The United States Polo association announced its annual rankings today, rewarding the outstanding American star, Tommy Hitchcock, with a ten goal rating for the 12th straight year.

With Hitchcock the only ten goal player in the world, alone at the head of the list, the minor awards went to two members of the American team, captained by E. J. Boeseke Jr. of California, that went to South America last fall and brought back the cup and the Argentine open championship.

Guest Gets Raise.

Of the four riders on that team Winston F. O. Guest, former Yale star and internationalist for several years, was raised one goal to eight, and Billy Post, former Princeton ace who played splendid polo with Seymour Knox's Aurora four in the United States open and on the Latin invasion, had his handicap lifted from six to seven.

Boeseke's handicap was left at eight and that of Mike Phipps, who also starred in the South American invasion, at six.

At nine goals, second only to Hitchcock, is Cecil Smith, hard riding Texan who starred all last summer in high goal play and featured the attack of John Whitney's Greentree four in the United States open until forced out by a broken elbow.

Hopping Raised a Goal.

Most interesting of the few handicap changes was that lifting E. W. Hopping, father of the sensational young Earl A. S. Hopping, from six to seven goals, while his son, who teamed with him on the Eastcott four in the United States open, remained at eight goals.

There were but five promotions in all among the players rated above five goals. In addition to the increase in the handicaps of Smith, Guest, E. W. Hopping, and Post, R. E. [Bobby] Strawbridge of Bryn Mawr, and Seymour Knox, Aurora veteran, were raised from five to six goals. There was but one important reduction in the rankings. J. O. Rathburne of Meadow Brook was dropped from 7 to 6.

Another famous father and son combination suffered more than it gained. Will Rogers, who had basked in the glory of a two goal rating, was bumped down summarily to no goals, while his son, James, considered one of the outstanding youngsters in California play, was raised from a zero rating to one goal handicap.

Here Are Rankings.

The high ranking players, with changes, if any, from the summer ratings:

Miss Kolstad Here Tonight for Ski Meet

Miss Johaana Kolstad, women's world champion ski jumper from Norway, will arrive in Chicago tonight for her exhibition at the Cary, Ill., ski meet next Sunday. Miss Kolstad will be competing on an artificial slide and on transplanted snow for the first time.

Six freight carloads of snow will be shipped in for the contest as a guarantee against postponement as well as to provide a faster surface for the contestants.

In addition to Miss Kolstad's exhibition there will be a contest among 50 male skiers, ranging from 15 to 50 years old, for three division championships. Most important of these is the central ski association title, which will attract the finest skiers of the country.

At the head of this group is Casper Oimen, twice holder of the national championship. Arrayed against Oimen will be three members of the United States Olympic ski team of last year. Roy Mikkleson of Auburn, Cal., gave the best performance in the trials for the team and has improved greatly, it is said, since moving to Auburn, where the ground is covered with snow the year round. Lemoine Batson, now of Norge Ski club, which is sponsoring the meet Sunday, also will perform in the red, white and blue Olympic costume, as will Lloyd Ellingson of Madison, Wis.

Harald Sorenson will come from the east for the competition and Gunnar Oman, Guttorm Paulsen, and Rudolph Anderson will try to score a Chicago victory.

PRINCE'S HOME TOWN SPLITS ON HIS ENGAGEMENT

STOLBERG, Germany, Jan. 11.—(AP)—This small Harz mountain town has been split into two opposing camps over the engagement a month ago of Prince Heinrich of Stolberg, 29, the sole male heir of this princely line, to Irma Erfert, 19, the daughter of a Magdeburg civil servant.

His family, which wishes the prince to marry the Dutch Princess Juliana, opposes the match, but is unable to prevent it because Heinrich is their chief. Queen Wilhelmina and Princess Juliana repeatedly visited in Stolberg last summer while vacationing in the vicinity.

One group of the inhabitants here is disgruntled by the prince's choice because they expected economic advantages from a marriage to Juliana.

Irma, who grew up in the home of the Stolberg burgomeister, became acquainted with the prince four years ago.

The prince is enjoying the greatest sympathies of the population, but when the engagement was announced he became the target of intrigue, especially from the womenfolk who saw hopes of becoming the princess of Stolberg spoiled.

The prince has fixed the date of the marriage to Irma as Jan. 22 at Stolberg castle. The population is planning a huge torchlight procession and the illumination of the town in honor of Prince Heinrich and his beautiful young bride.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 11. — In the most active trading since last Aug. 23, the listed bond market extended its broad advance today. The United States government division was the only one to hold back.

Speculative buying swelled especially in domestic rail issues and foreign securities, these gaining from 1 to 3 points to the highest levels in three months.

Besides the rising speculation, there were many instances in which buyers of bonds reached down into the higher yield group for bargains, owing to the diminished rate of return available on prime corporation issues. Traders in the over-the-counter market cited the investment trusts as belonging to this category of buyers.

U. S. Issues Sluggish.

United States government bonds moved sluggishly today, as Wall street waited for the Reserve bank statements showing the system's policy toward its holdings of government securities. In some quarters a reduction of about $25,000,000 was conjectured, and it was held likely that the holdings might be allowed to run off at about the rate of increase in gold and decline in currency.

New high marks for German government bonds and sharp gains throughout the South American list reflected the growing hope for international improvement in business and financial conditions. Australians were strong. Gains in Hungarian bonds extended to about 6 points.

Rail Liens Strong.

Wide gains in domestic rail bonds included such issues as Baltimore and Ohio 4½s due 1960, and 4s due 1948, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh consolidated 4½s, Chicago & North Western general 4s, New York Central convertible debenture 6s, Pennsylvania debenture 4½s, and others.

Improvement in utility bonds of less than top rank included American & Foreign Power 5s, issues of Columbia Gas & Electric, Federal Light & Traction 5s, and others.

United Drug of Delaware 5s of 1953 again were a feature of the industrial list, rising to 70, a new high for the current upswing.

Atlantic Refining.

I should very much appreciate your comments on Atlantic Refining common.—A. W. W.

Atlantic Refining company is active in all branches of the petroleum industry. It is principally a refiner and distributor of gasoline. Refineries are in Pittsburgh, Philadelphia and Frankl... Pa., and Brunswick, Ga. Its seaboard plants are conveniently located to deal with foreign trade, both importing and exporting. Its interior plants are in the vicinities of the Kentucky and Pennsylvania oil fields.

Distribution is mainly in Pennsylvania and Delaware, although considerable progress in acquiring business in other Atlantic seaboard states has been made. The company has a large export business with Europe Africa, South America, and Australia.

Recent years have witnessed an intensive modernization and expansion program on the part of the company.

Net profit for the three months to Sept. 30, 1932, was $1,063,000, or 39 cents per share, against $1,242,000, or 46 cents per share for the third quarter of 1931. The decline was due to lower gasoline prices and, of course, a narrower margin of profit. Net income for the first nine months of 1932 was $4,248,000, or $1.58 per share, against net loss of $2,771,000 for the corresponding 1931 period.

Net income in 1931, the lowest for ten years, was $514,000, or 19 cents a share. Loss in the first half, after inventory writedown of $5,393,000, was $4,018,000, but an increase in oil prices eliminated a large part of the inventory loss. Net income in 1930 was $2,743,000, or $1.02 per share. Gallonage sold in the two years was about the same, but prices in 1931 were lower than in 1930. Net income in 1929 was $17,332,000, or $6.20 per share, against net of $16,849,000 for 1928.

On June 30, 1932, current assets were $42,045,000, and current liabilities were $7,029,000. Cash assets alone were more than $6,000,000 and notes payable were $3,538,000. Working capital was $35,016,000, against $37,803,000 the year before.

There are outstanding 2,664,314 shares of $25 per capital stock. Funded debt totals $14,000,000. The common pays 25 cents a quarter.

The company occupies a strong competitive position and is apparently under capable management. It appears that a return to substantial per share earnings must await improved conditions in the industry itself. The capital stock is medium grade at present.

Held Proof Natural Laws Still Work.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The background of events which prepared the stage for this week's bullish show in the Chicago wheat pit brings home the truth that natural economic laws work in good times as well as bad, although the process is slow and painful in the latter periods.

The results of the natural corrective process which has been going on h s been obscured in the hubbub over relief plans and the despair over low prices. This in brief is the explanation which the grain statisticians offer to explain the sudden spurt in grain prices this week. The grain trade, they assert, is just awakening to the realization that the "burdensome surplus" which has been on the pen of every market writer and the lips of every politician in recent years has become a mental hazard to the trade.

Report No Surplus Now.

Harvey Williams, statistician of Thomson & McKinnon, Chicago commission house, in discussing the market rise yesterday said that there is no longer any "burdensome surplus" in the market . As evidence of this he pointed to the way in which the milling demand is maintaining a premium on cash wheat.

If there is any such thing as a "burdensome surplus" it is on the farms and is not coming into the market. And he cites figures to show that even this "surplus" has been depleted at a faster rate than the grain trade has realized.

The department of agriculture estimated, he pointed out, that the visible supply of wheat in the United States is approximately 166 million bushels, or 58 millions less than last year. United States grain in storage in bond at Canada markets is 22 millions less than last year. Canadian grain in store in this country is 122 millions below a year ago and the total for the three positions is 188 millions against 280 a year ago.

Canadian Supply Lower.

The Canadian visible supply, he adds, is 100 million bushels against 84 million a year ago. Altogether the visible supply of North American wheat, he asserts, is 75 million bushels below a year ago, but prices are ruling 7 or 8 cents lower.

"The answer as far as this country is concerned," Mr. Williams says, "must be that wheat is on the farms and it is not pressing on the market, as cash wheat is selling at May prices or more."

But even the wheat on the farm may be less than is generally believed, he thinks. He cites that Nat C. Murray, leading grain statistician, now estimates that supplies on the farm are smaller than a year ago.

Mr. Murray suggests feeding of wheat to live stock this year might aggregate 125,000,000 bushels, as compared to 88,000,000 bushels estimated by the same country correspondents two months ago.

The estimates made by Mr. Murray showed grain in all positions on Jan. 1 to be approximately 500 million bushels against 537 million last year. These figures include all wheat except that in city mills and at concentration points not included in the government estimates.

Reynolds Tobacco Company Profits 90% of Previous Year

Net earnings of the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco company for 1932 showed up well as compared with those of 1931, being less that $3,000,000 behind the preceding year, according to the annual report issued yesterday by President S. Clay Williams. Mr. Williams in his report called attention to the taxes imposed from all quarters on the tobacco industry and asserted that when conditions permit the industry should have some relief.

S. CLAY WILLIAMS.

The company reported net earnings for 1932 of $33,674,800 after all charges, taxes, and depreciation. This is equivalent to $3.36 per share on the combined 10,000,000 shares of common and class B common stocks outstanding. This compared with earnings of $36,396,817, or $3.63 per share, in the preceding year.

A $4,000,000 Item.

Mr. Williams asserts that this year's earnings were charged with $4,000,000 which represents an excess of advertising appropriations for 1932 over actual expenditures. This amount is to be added to the regular appropriation for 1933 advertising expenditures.

Reserves shown in the statement aggregate $8,149,445, compared with $2,403,710 at the end of 1931.

The company closed the year in the strongest financial condition of its history, the report says. The balance sheet as of Dec. 31, 1932, shows total assets of $186,219,855, compared with $176,856,099 at the end of the preceding year. Total current assets increased to $144,774,133 from $140,461,299 a year ago, while current liabilities were $12,162,268, slightly below the previous year, giving the company net current assets of $132,611,884, a gain of $4,369,633 over the end of 1931. Cash and U. S. government securities totaled $60,340,554, compared with $44,474,270 the year before. Undivided profits at the end of the year stood at $65,908,141, an increase of $2,674,800 over 1931.

The report also discloses the company's holdings of its own stock—585,000 shares at a net cost of $18,208,641.

Williams Discusses Taxes.

The part which the company plays in providing revenues for government is portrayed in President Williams' letter to the stockholders, as follows:

"There has never been any reduction from the war peak rates of federal taxes on tobacco and cigarets.

To say nothing of substantial payments on account of property taxes, federal income taxes, state taxes, and other local taxes, the federal excise tax of $3 per thousand on cigarets represents over 56 per cent of our net selling price of Camel cigarets.

"When translated into terms of retail prices on the basis of those now prevailing, this tax of 6 cents per package of 20 cigarets is almost one-half of that retail price, leaving the other half to cover all of our costs and profits, and all of the expenses and profits of the wholesalers and of the retailers. Certainly, whenever governmental revenues will permit it, the matter of relief from such high taxes on the products of our industry should have consideration at the hands of the taxing authorities."

Grain Leaders Protest British Slap at U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—Representatives of grain interests, ports and chambers of commerce of the eastern seaboard states today protested to the state department against the British government's recent action in refusing to grant the 6 cent preference on Canadian wheat shipped via the United States unless the grain is consigned direct from Canada to firms in Great Britain.

The delegation told Assistant Secretary of State James Grafton Rogers that the British ruling would cause losses of millions to grain and elevator interests which in the past have handled annually around 100 million bushels of Canadian wheat earmarked for shipment to Great Britain. Under the ruling, they stated, Canadians in actual practice are forced to ship their grain by Canadian ports or lose the 6 cent preferential.

Weigh Diplomatic Action.

As a result of the protest, state department officials are considering taking diplomatic action to have the British ruling modified so that Canadian wheat can be shipped to this country, stored here, and eventually consigned to Great Britain without loss of the preference rate. Officials said that the British government already has sent an aide memoire to the state department suggesting the belief that the matter can be worked out satisfactorily for all concerned.

It is also possible that the state department will recommend favorable action on a retaliatory bill introduced in the senate by Senator Wallace H. White Jr. [Rep., Maine]. This measure would slap a 10 cent duty upon all articles imported into the United States from abroad through a country contiguous to the United States, that is, Canada. It would hit Japanese silk, much of which is shipped via Vancouver and Canadian railroads. The effect of the bill would be to increase the silk shipments direct to the United States and thus cause losses to Canadian ports and railroads.

May Protest Ottawa Pact.

It was learned that the state department is considering the possibility of protesting the whole list of Ottawa preferences on the ground they violate our most favored nation treaties with Great Britain.

Col. Frederick Stuart Greene, superintendent of the department of public works of the state of New York, headed the delegation. Other organizations and cities represented included Buffalo, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, the North American Grain association, the Philadelphia Ocean Traffic bureau, and the Port of New York authority.

EASTERN BANKER RESIGNS FROM MISSOURI LIFE

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Stephen Paul, a member of Halgarten and company, New York banking firm, has resigned from the board of directors of the Missouri State Life Insurance company, it was learned today.

William T. Nardin, president of the insurance company, said Paul resigned because executive officers of the company took over an $800,000 loan made by three St. Louis banks to the Insurance Equities corporation for purchase of stock in the Kentucky Home Life Insurance company, which owns stock in the Missouri company. The purchase was to stabilize control of the latter company.

CALGARY DENIED CREDIT BY BANK TO MEET PAY ROLL

CALGARY, Alta., Jan. 11.—(AP)—Calgary may have difficulty in meeting its civic pay roll Saturday because of the deadlock that continued today between the city and Bank of Montreal on Mayor Andy Davison's request for $750,000 line of credit. The mayor announced after a conference with bank officials that he had been unable to secure the credit to carry the city through the first three months of the year.

PROFIT TAKING REDUCES STOCK GAINS A LITTLE

Turnover Speeds Up to 1,500,000 Shares.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 11.—Stocks found the going a bit rough today. Market leaders struggled valiantly to carry on the rally inaugurated in the late dealings of yesterday afternoon, but profit taking held them in leash. Closing figures were slightly lower.

What the market lacked in price progress, however, it more than made up in activity. Sales were in excess of 1,500,000 shares, which made it one of the half dozen biggest days since election.

What's reaction on the Chicago pit was blamed in some measure for the market's movement. Probably for the reason that the sharp upturn in grain prices yesterday was given credit for the share rally. Close observers, however, professed to see evidence that distribution was going on in some sections of the list along with the realizing sales by traders who had been fortunate enough to get in before the upswing started.

Preferred Stocks Rise.

A big batch of preferred stocks managed to continue their forward market in spite of the backwardness elsewhere. Demand was especially helpful in such preferreds as those of American Can, American Brake Shoe, Worthington Pump, U. S. Leather, Willys-Overland, Hercules Powder, Cuban-American Sugar, Engineers' Public Service, General Gas, Case, Commonwealth and Southern, American and Foreign Power, Atlas Powder, and Hahn Department Store, which scored gains of from 1 to more than 4 points.

Railroad shares withstood the selling in determined fashion, Atchison, Lackawanna, Union Pacific, and other favorite trading mediums of the group holding to within a fraction of their previous closing figures. New York Central lost a point. A number of secondary issues succeeded in scoring slight gains. Norfolk and Western shot up nearly 6 points on a nominal turnover.

Hear of "Good News."

Vague rumors of some "good news" supposed to be on the grill for the carriers is largely responsible for the return to speculative favor of these erstwhile despised shares. One guess is that the news will be contained in the forthcoming report of the national transportation committee. It is a more or less open secret in the street that this committee—or members of it—has been exchanging views with the interstate commerce commission—or its members—for some time.

Motor shares as a whole did better than they have since the opening of the national automobile show here last Saturday. General Motors finished fractionally higher and Nash held unchanged. Chrysler and Studebaker eased slightly.

Utilities in Demand.

For no particular reason that the trade could make out the utilities were in fairly brisk demand at intervals. Consolidated Gas was the leader of the group.

Farm implements were strong early in the day, when wheat was on the upgrade, but fell back toward the last when grain prices began to sag. Case and International Harvester each gave up about a point.

Fifteen common stocks accounted for nearly a third of the total sales. These stocks were United Aircraft, General Motors, Steel, Case, United Corporation, Du Pont, Pennsylvania, Southern Pacific, Montgomery Ward, Chrysler, Harvester, Telephone, International Telephone, Foreign Power, and Auburn.

ALDRICH NAMED HEAD OF CHASE NATIONAL BANK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 11.—Winthrop W. Aldrich, vice chairman of the governing board and president of the Chase National bank, was elected chairman of the governing board by directors of the bank at their organization meeting this afternoon following the annual meeting of stockholders yesterday. Mr. Aldrich, as forecast, succeeded to the post for which Albert H. Wiggin did not choose to run for reëlection. In assuming the position held by Mr. Wiggin, Mr. Aldrich retains the title of president.

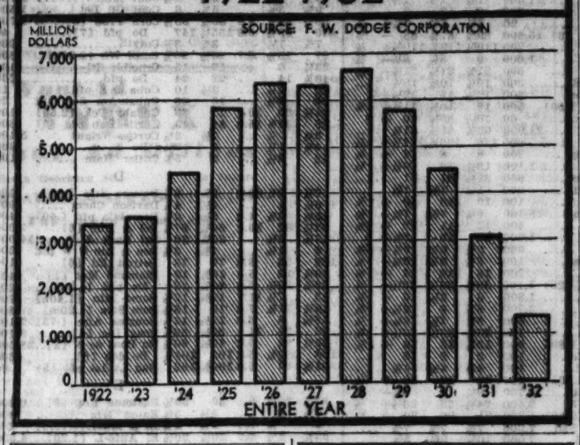
Building Contracts Awarded in the United States 1922-1932



Westinghouse to Distribute Radio Stock

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Jan. 11.—The Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company will distribute to its preferred and common stockholders on Feb. 20 approximately half of the 2,842,950 shares of Radio Corporation of America common stock held in its treasury, thus carrying out the contract decree issued by the United States District court of Wilmington on Nov. 22.

The distribution will be in ratio of one-half share of Radio for each share of Westinghouse preferred or common recorded on Jan. 23. Decision of this stock dividend was arrived at in a special meeting of the board of directors held at Pittsburgh today.

Option on Preferred.

Westinghouse preferred stockholders will have the option of receiving $3.50 in cash in exchange for the half share of Radio common. A statement issued by the company today explained, however, that the stock dividend, including the optional feature, constitutes the full payment of the preferential dividend for the year 1933.

This action by Westinghouse follows the lead taken by the General Electric company, which was involved equally with Westinghouse in the Wilmington decree. General Electric, however, was more generous than Westinghouse. General Electric decided to distribute practically all its Radio stock in one operation, giving one share for each six of General Electric.

Pays 1933 Preferred Dividend.

Declaration of a dividend on Westinghouse preferred in this way means that holders of that stock will receive no cash dividend in 1933 unless they exercise their option to accept $3.50 a share in exchange for the one-half share of Radio. Radio common is selling around $6 a share and unless it should be selling above $7 a share on Feb. 1 it will be to the advantage of all preferred stockholders to take cash instead of Radio stock.

There are outstanding only 79,974 shares of preferred stock of $50 par value.

In reference to the suit filed by the Torquay corporation to enjoin distribution of the radio stock, the Westinghouse announcement said "it is expected that this matter will be decided by the court prior to the payment of the dividend declared today."

CHEMICAL FIRM PAYS 35% DIVIDEND 'MINUS AID OF TECHNOCRACY'

Baltimore, Md., Jan. 11.—[Special.]—Stockholders of the Noxzema Chemical company today received 25 per cent dividend checks, which with the 10 per cent payment in July represents a 1932 return of $3.50 for each $10 stock held.

In his annual message of stockholders President George A. Bunting said that sales for the year increased about 2 per cent. But that profits were boosted 21 per cent. He adds that this showing was made without reduction in salaries or sacrifice of personnel.

Referring to technocracy he added "no labor saving machines have been installed to create additional profits by loss of employment to the workers."

RADIO SYSTEM FOR TELEGRAMS MAY BE FORMED

Washington, D. C., Jan. 11.—(AP)—The Radio Corporation of America today informed the radio commission that it planned to apply for permission to create a domestic radio-telegraph system operating on an unusually high frequency to compete with commercial wire telegraph companies.

"It seems probable," the corporation said in a letter, "that equipment now considered most useful for domestic telegraphy will be on the road to obsolescence when devices and methods which the engineers now foresee have been further developed and that then entirely different frequencies will be found most useful for the purpose."

The corporation also said it intended to abandon applications filed in 1927, now tied up in court litigation, for frequencies of 6,000 to 23,000 kilocycles in favor of frequencies of more than 30,000 kilocycles.

CUBA WILL TRY INFLATION PLAN WITHIN 30 DAYS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Jan. 11.—Octavio Averhoff, secretary of the treasury, announced today that he had begun action to make effective within 30 days the inflation plan proposed recently by President Gerardo Machado to bring back prosperity. The plan involves the issue of $60,000,000 in government credit certificates, that being the approximate amount of the national internal indebtedness to be used for money.

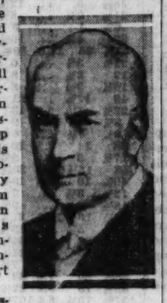
The certificates, fully guaranteed by the national treasury and bearing 3½ per cent interest, are to be given the practical status of legal tender in Cuba, as their acceptance as cash is compulsory up to 30 per cent of the amount in business transactions.

Congress Gets Inflation Bills in Quantities

This is the first of three articles dealing with proposals for currency inflation and tariff revision. This article explains some of the bases for such proposals and different plans suggested. The second article will appear on Saturday.

BY SCRUTATOR.

Shall the United States inflate its currency in an effort to raise commodity prices, stimulate trade and industry, and make debt payments less onerous? And shall we revise our tariffs on foreign goods, either raising them to keep out foreign goods and protect domestic industry or lowering them in consideration of concessions from other countries that will increase our export trade?



REP. KENT E. KELLER.

These questions, which are related because of world conditions affecting currencies and commerce, are engaging economists and politicians at present and are certain to come before the next congress in various guises. While the issue of currency inflation results largely from the domestic problems of heavy debts and low commodity prices, the fact that some 40 countries have suspended the gold standard with resultant depreciation in their currencies and dislocation of international trade has an important influence.

Cause of Trade Curbs.

Moreover, depreciation of so many national currencies has been a prime factor in leading to various kinds of trade restrictions. The object of this has been twofold—to make such countries self-sustaining to a greater degree and to acquire gold and credits to stabilize their currencies.

Proposals for currency inflation are not new. A number of measures in this vein now are pending in congress.

The Patman bill proposes that the treasury shall issue notes to be used to pay the soldiers' bonus. The new Keller bill, fathered by Representative Kent E. Keller of Illinois, calls for issuance of a billion dollars in new currency to finance a public construction program. The new Sinclair bill proposes lending new currency to individuals and corporations on security.

Urge Paying Deficit with Notes.

The Rankin-Thomas bill proposes the issuance of "Liberty notes" for the payment of government deficits until such time as commodity prices are advanced to a predetermined level. They would be retired at that price level and reissued if prices declined.

Then, too, there is the Frazier-Sinclair-Patman bill, providing for issuance of federal reserve notes without gold backing, which the government would use in refinancing farm mortgages at face value. The Lankford bill provides for issuing circulating treasury notes to be secured by first liens on farm property.

The Campbell bill provides for issuance of legal tender treasury notes at the behest of states, counties, municipalities and towns which offer as security bonds based on local improvements. The Kelly bill provides for issuing five billion dollars of emergency currency credit bonds, which would be exchangeable for federal reserve notes to be used through banks in making loans to aid industry.

Silver and Gold Measures.

The Keller-Walsh bill would create emergency currency to be furnished to banks, corporations, and citizens depositing government bonds as security. The Wheeler-Evans bill and the Somers, Cross, Glover, and Borah bills provide for expanding currency backed by silver.

Then there is the proposal to revalue the gold dollar by constantly regulating its gold content so that it will have a constant purchasing power based on an index of commodity prices. This plan is embodied in the Goldsborough, Busby, and Burtness bills and a similar idea is offered in the Ramseyer-Dickson and Strong bills.

RESERVE FAILS TO FORCE WEAK LOANS ON BANKS

Budget Balance Key to Refunding.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

The big squeeze that the federal reserve board is applying to the banks of the nation is to continue, according to the statement of policy given out by the reserve authorities last week.

Seldom do the reserve people make statements for publication. Even less frequently do they announce what they propose to do in the future.

Last week they broke a long silence to make an announcement about the reserve system's "open market" policy, meaning the policy with reference to holdings of United States government bonds by the twelve reserve banks. For about two years the reserve banks have been accumulating short term government bonds—and thereby keeping the member banks from accumulating them—because they believe that by artificially raising the price of government paper to a level where the yield is almost nothing they can force the commercial banks to make more liberal loans.

Banks Denounce Method.

They reason that the commercial banks would prefer to be more liberal in extending credit to business rather than have excess nonearning reserves lying idle or hold government paper yielding them almost no interest at all.

Officers of big commercial banks have denounced this squeeze play on the part of the federal reserve authorities. They have said that nothing will make them extend the frontiers of their loaning policies into the no man's land where the ability of the borrower to repay is clouded with doubt.

They have said, furthermore, that rather than make shaky loans they would let their earnings decline. Many of them have reduced their dividends. In Chicago banks have reduced the interest rate on savings from 3 to 2½ per cent. Some large institutions have thrown out deposits of postal savings funds. Salaries of employés have been reduced.

Won't Make Weak Loans.

Thus have the commercial banks stoutly resisted the pressure put on them by the reserve authorities. They say that they are glad to make loans where the prospective borrower can demonstrate ability to repay the loan when due, but that they won't make doubtful loans and they won't buy second and third rate bonds.

Meanwhile the reserve authorities continue to push. They go on the theory that if all the banks can be forced to widen somewhat their zone of eligible loans the resultant increase in general business activity would fortify the marginal loans.

The commercial banks reply that although this theory may be all right for academic discussion it is too uncertain to take a chance on.

After nearly two years, therefore, the tug of war between the reserve authorities and the member banks is just about where it was at the beginning. Eventually one or the other will have to give. If the federal government continues to sell bonds instead of balancing its budget the federal reserve authorities may surrender, because there is a limit to the amount of government bonds the reserve banks can absorb. On the other hand, if the government does balance the budget by reducing taxes the resultant improvement in general business probably would improve the bank credit of many would be borrowers who cannot now get loans and bank funds would naturally flow more freely.

Reserve Bank's Statement.

The reserve statement given out last week said:

"The first and immediate objective of the open market policy was to contribute factors of safety and stability

DENIAL OF WAR RUMORS CHECK WHEAT ADVANCE

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Wheat prices were again on the upgrade during most of the trading yesterday in the face of heavy profit taking, but reacted near the close and ended fractionally lower. Increased outside speculative buying steadily absorbed the offerings on the way up. Rumors of war between Japan and Russia brought in general buying, with the May touching 51⅜c, or 1⅜c above Tuesday's finish and 8¼c above the low on Dec. 28.

A denial of the rumors was received in the last few minutes of trading and prices dropped faster than they had advanced, a strained technical position being disclosed when longs started to unload. May wheat sold off 1⅞c from the top to 49⅝c, and closed at that figure to ½c over. Net losses for the day were ¾@⅞c, with July finishing at 49⅝@49½c and September at 50¼c.

Market Acts Strained.

A steady flow of small buying orders which pit brokers attributed to outside speculators offset profit taking in the early trading, and at no time was there indications of weakness until near the finish. July and September, representing the new crop, came in for more attention, as the government weekly weather report mentioned heavy damage to the wheat on the north Pacific coast, a section which has heretofore been regarded as in good shape. Western Kansas and Nebraska remain dry and unfavorable crop comments are increasing from the latter two states.

While the trade generally feel that the United States is on a domestic basis, and independent of the action of foreign markets, Chicago has run away from the latter in the last few days.

Liverpool May wheat, which sold at 2⅝c over Chicago last week, was even with the local market at the time the former closed yesterday, although prices were 1@1⅛c better than Tuesday's finish. Winnipeg was again under pressure and closed ¼@½c lower, with the May 8⅛c discount, as compared with Chicago, figured on a gold basis. This discount makes it almost impossible to sell American hard winter in the world's market.

Inflation Talk Helps Corn.

Increased interest was taken in the corn market, a proposal by Senator Thomas of Oklahoma that the currency be inflated until corn was selling around $1 per bu and cotton 25c per lb attracting much attention. Sufficient buying developed to lift prices ⅝c over Tuesday's finish, but the finish was easy with wheat, with final sales unchanged to ⅝c higher. May was 27⅜@27⅝c; July, 29¼@29⅝c, and September, 30½@30¼c at the last.

Intimations of export business in domestic corn have been heard in the last few days, but no sales have been actually confirmed.

Buying of May rye against sales of May wheat by houses with eastern connections was again in evidence, and the spread between the two grains narrowed to 12½c at the last, against 13c on Tuesday. Rye finished ½c higher to ⅝c lower, with May 37½c, and July, 36¼c. Oats lost ⅛@¼c, with elevator interests selling the May. The latter finished at 17¾c and July, 18⅛. Barley was inactive and closed unchanged at 29¼c.

in meeting the forces of deflation. The larger objectives of the system's open market policy, to assist and accelerate the forces of economic recovery, are now assuming importance.

"With this purpose in mind, the conference has decided that there should be no change in the system's policy intended to maintain a substantial amount of excess member bank reserves, the continuance of which is deemed desirable in present conditions. Adjustments in the system's holdings to the open market account will be in accordance with this policy."

This cryptic statement leaves the reserve officials much leeway. They say the policy will be to "maintain a substantial amount of excess member bank reserves." They do not, however, say that the excess reserves shall be kept at the present level, about a half billion dollars.

No Definite Commitment.

Nor does the statement commit the reserve people to maintenance of exactly the present amount of holdings of government bonds by the reserve banks, about $1,850,000,000, which represents a billion dollars increase in a year.

And so the tug of war continues between the commerical banks with their $500,000,000 of excess nonearning reserves and the federal reserve system with its holdings of about $1,850,000,000 in government securities, the prices of which have been manipulated to a level where they yield only a fraction of 1 per cent.

Having accumulated this mass of government paper the reserve system can't dispose of it now without precipitating further deflation. It has a Hobson's choice. And the member banks have dug in their heels and seem determined to maintain their conservative loan policies.

Refunding a Solution.

The treasury could relieve the situation by refunding some of this short term paper with a long term bond issue which could be sold to private investors. That would put both the commercial and the reserve banks in a position to extend credit more freely to industry.

But the government cannot sell long term bonds unless it does some financial housecleaning and gets expenditures down to the level of income, which means definitely balancing the budget.

On the other hand, if the budget is not balanced more government securities will have to be sold to plug up the deficit. That would mean absorbing more bank funds and further curtailing the amount of money available for loans to industry. Or, it would mean higher taxes, which, in turn would reduce the number of eligible borrowers at the banks.

It would seem, therefore, that the reserve system's scheme to end deflation and stimulate the forces of recovery cannot succeed without legislative cooperation in the matter of balancing the budget and reducing the

MILLINERY CHAIN RENTS STORE ON NORTH STATE ST.

Extensive Remodeling Is Planned.

BY AL CHASE.

The National Chain Stores, Inc., milliners, have leased the first floor and basement of the four story building at 160 North State street, owned by Miss Florence M. Kranz, of John Kranz, confectionery, and her sister, Mrs. Ida K. Notz, for two years on a minimum guarantee and percentage basis. The first floor is 23x80. Albert H. Wetten & Co. were brokers for the lessors. Harry F. Tate represented the lessee.

The lessees will install a modern store front and in addition modernize the entire front of the building to the roof. Considerable remodeling will be done on the interior of the floors leased. It is expected the newt tenant will be able to open on Jan. 16.

Bankers' Building Bonds.

Over $2,900,000 of the $4,764,000 first mortgage leasehold 6½ per cent bonds of the Adams Clark Building corporation, owner and operator of the forty-one story Bankers' building, Clark and Adams, already have been deposited under the reorganization plan, according to H. L. Baker, reorganization manager.

The refinancing plan provides for the exchange of the present bonds for new bonds of like security on a basis of par for par. All net income for eight years after the consummation of the plan or reorganization will be allocated to interest payments with a maximum rate of 5 per cent and the balance to sinking fund. Second mortgage bonds, debentures and notes payable are to be surrendered and canceled and stock issued in exchange.

Option to Buy Flats.

An option to purchase the twenty apartment building at 1530 North Austin boulevard, Oak Park, given by Doris Bowers to Oscar F. Johnson, was filed for record yesterday at the county recorder's office. The option provides that Mr. Johnson "shall have the right to exercise this option at any time on or before Dec. 6, 1935, at $57,500, plus interest at 5 per cent from Nov. 28, 1931, to date of such payment."

In reporting the lease of the store at 314 North Michigan avenue by S. F. Wilson & Co. in Tuesday's TRIBUNE, it was stated that Michael Straus is the owner of the building. Mr. Straus states that he is agent and that Mary Howe Straus and Caroline Howe Packard are the owners.

Warning to Property Owners.

Beware of firms or individuals who approach you regarding the collection of back rent from former tenants. Mr. Forner of the Fowler company, giving a fictitious address on North La Salle street, operated the following racket: Locating the owner of a building who had a tenant that moved out leaving several months' back rent, Mr. Forner would call on the owner. He would claim to have secured a judgment against the former tenant and would offer to make the owner of the property a party to the judgment and enable him to collect back rent. But to be made a party to the judgment against the tenant, the owner was requested to pay a portion of the expense, which was usually $20. If Mr. Forner collected the $20 it was the last to be seen or heard from him.

He also called on tenants owing four to five months' rent, presenting bogus credentials claiming to have been appointed receiver of the property and offering to settle several months' rent upon the payment of one month's rent immediately. These ordinary receipts were stamped "paid" by Fowler company.

The state's attorney has a warrant for the arrest of Forner, who claimed to be associated with the Fowler company, Standard Bond corporation, and the Ogden corporation. The men operating such rackets make personal calls, purposely avoiding use of the U. S. mails. Reputable firms and individuals usually send similar notices by registered mail.

BEG YOUR PARDON: Due to a recent ruling on the tax situation, we are republishing yesterday's letter, "1930 Tax Forfeiture," and the correct answer.

TO THE EDITOR: Last week I mailed my 1930 tax bill, amounting to $81.96, together with a cashier's check, to the county treasurer. Several days later the check and tax bill returned stampted "forfeited." Inclosed was a letter signed by the county treasurer stating that my property had been sold for 1930 taxes. I did not file a protest.

1. How can I redeem this property and what will be the cost of redemption?

2. Can this be avoided?

A building and loan association holds the mortgage on this property. —H. S.

ANSWER: 1. When a tax forfeiture is extended by the county clerk, a penalty rate of 10 per cent is added as extended on subsequent collectors' books. [This section was amended in 1931.] Sec. 227, old act Sec. 212 Smith, 1931, pg. 2417, was not changed, and when redemption is made at the county clerk's office a penalty rate of 25 per cent is charged. This will probably we changed by the present legislature. Therefore, request 1930 taxes be extended on 1931 tax bill and pay the low penalty of 10 per cent.

2. No.

Where a portion of 1930 taxes was paid the penalty rate on the balance is ½ per cent per month, which amounts to 3½ at present.
